'RAIN OF DEATH' ON SHANGHAI

ANGER AT BLACK NOMINATION TO COURT SWELLS

Foes Point to Klan, Lynching Stands.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 14.—[Special.]—While the senatorial opposition to Hugo L. Black's nomination to the Supreme court continued today to gather evidence of the Alabaman's Ku Klux Klan affiliations, a tide of protesting telegrams and letters descended upon Capitol Hill.

Alfred A. Cook.

A scrutiny of the congressional record of April, 1935, moreover, revealed Senator Black's unalterable opposition to the anti-lynching bill. Expected to be passed by congress early in the next session, this measure undoubtedly would be brought to the Supreme court for a decision as to its constitutionality and would be one of the first acts to be voted upon by Black if his nomination is confirmed.

Fight for 15 More Votes.

Encouraged by these evidences that Senator Black appears to be lacking in the impartiality which should distinguish a Supreme court justice, the senate minority against his nomination fought stoutly for additional votes. If 15 senators can be won over to the opposition, Black's nomination can be refused senate approval, it is believed, the opponents now numbering about 30.

The betting was still heavily in favor of Black's confirmation, however. The strongest factor in his favor is the clubby atmosphere of the senate. If Black were not a senator, virtually everyone admits, he wouldn't have a chance of receiving the senate's indorsement.

Opposition from Bar.

An objection to this line of thought was recorded by Alfred A. Cook, chairman of the committee on the judiciary of the New York City Bar association, in a telegram to Senator Warren R. Austin [R., Vt.].

"The members of the legal profession, irrespective of party or any differing viewpoint on national policies, always unite in the conclusion that any one selected to sit in the United States Supreme court must be judicially qualified," Cook wired.

"It consequently is essential that there be no haste in the consideration of a nominee, and that proper and reasonable opportunity be given to the bar of the country to submit to the judiciary committee of the senate its views as to the fitness and qualifications of the nominee.

Decries Senate Shibboleth.

"As a member of the bar I refuse to believe that membership in the United States senate in and of itself qualifies one to occupy any other office, and least of all that of a justice of the Supreme court. Careful and mature deliberation remains vital if the confidence and respect of the nation are to be assured."

Whether the senate judiciary committee will hold open hearings at which representatives of the bar may present their opinions remained in doubt.

As to Black's klan connections, there appears no doubt in the mind of any senator that the Alabaman was a member of that organization in 1926, when he first ran for the senate. Black has not denied this connection, which was mentioned openly in newspaper dispatches telling of the campaign of that year.

Old Klan Fight Recalled.

A series of dispatches to the old New York World in August, 1926, before the Democratic primary, stated that Black was indorsed by the state klan organization and had won the klan support away from L. B. Musgrove, wealthy coal operator.

Musgrove protested to klan headquarters in Washington and the imperial wizard of that time rebuked the local klans for supporting Black. As a result there was some splitting of the klan vote between Black and Musgrove, but Black emerged the victor over four other candidates. Alabama had no second primary at the time and Black gained the seat in the senate, although he received only

St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 14.—(AP)—The river steamer President was lodged on a sandbar in the Mississippi river north of here tonight with 1,600 passengers aboard.

The $1,000,000 excursion boat struck the sandbar at 5 p. m. and efforts of two tugboats to dislodge it failed. River men said the President had veered too close to the Illinois side of the channel.

The passengers merrily danced, dined, and watched the fruitless efforts of the workmen. It was said many of those aboard probably would have to spend the night on the boat, because there were not sufficient craft available to take them ashore.

Truck Driver Tries Hand at High Finance

East Orange, N. J., Aug. 14.—[Special.]—The case of the truck driver who bought $90,000 in postal money orders in six months turned out today to be just a matter of a guy who outsmarted himself.

When postal inspectors found that a substation in a drug store here had sold so impressive an amount of money orders to one man they scented something deep, mysterious, and unsavory.

The truck driver and the druggist alike refused to explain.

Druggist Trustful Soul.

But the explanation finally came out this afternoon. It is a matter of high finance needing practically an Einstein to understand, but here is the story as it now appears:

The truck driver [name withheld by the authorities because, after all, he committed no crime] and the druggist [name likewise withheld] were and still are friends. Six months ago the truck driver bought an $80 money order from the druggist's postal substation, but didn't have the money to pay for it. The druggist agreed to trust him until the next day because under postal regulations he wasn't required to deliver the cash to the main postoffice until the day after the transaction occurred.

The driver cashed the money order, but was unable to pay as promised. But the driver had the answer. He bought another, for the original amount plus the fee charged by the postoffice for money orders, and again postponed payment for a day.

And So On, and So On.

The same thing happened the next day, and continued daily for six months, the amount of the money order rising by the amount of the fee each time.

Eventually it reached the point where the truck driver was buying at the rate of $2,000 a day. This was the amount the episode cost the druggist.

Under the sliding scale of money order fees charged by the postoffice department the driver paid an average of about one-fourth of 1 per cent a day interest.

This amounts to the highly usurious rate of approximately 90 per cent a year.

The postal substation, authorities said, probably will be closed, but no action can be taken against either the borrower or the lender.

MAETERLINCK SOLVES MOSQUITO PROBLEM; DOES IT WITH RABBIT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROYAT, France, Aug. 14.—If you are afraid mosquitos will spoil your vacation, try a remedy invented by Count Maurice Maeterlinck. All you need is a live rabbit.

Explaining his technique to a circle of friends, the Belgian writer, who is vacationing here, declared today that turning a rabbit loose in your bedroom when you want to sleep is just as good protection against the pests as the strongest mosquito net. Mosquitos, according to Maeterlinck, like rabbit meat so much better than human flesh that they will never attack a man if a rabbit is around.

He insisted that the method is not a joke and that it is not as cruel to the rabbit as it sounds. A rabbit, he declared, does not feel the bites.

CHINESE BOMBS, AIMED AT JAPS, HIT BUSY STREETS; 860 CIVILIANS DIE

Hull Appeals to Two Nations to Stop War in City.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 14.—[Special.]—Most earnest representations have been made by the United States to both China and Japan against making Shanghai a theater of war, Secretary of State Hull disclosed today.

The secretary revealed that the United States government has made preparations for a wholesale evacuation of Americans from China's troubled zones. The decision to evacuate rests with diplomatic, consular, and military officers on the scene.

The navy is prepared to take aboard 3,000 Americans at one time on the vessels of the Asiatic fleet, Hull said. There are about 4,000 Americans in the threatened areas of China.

Will Make Danger Known.

In revealing these developments, Secretary Hull made it clear that the United States has no intention whatever of becoming involved in the Sino-Japanese hostilities, even though American lives are lost. He said all this government proposed to do was to make the danger known to its citizens and aid them to places of safety.

The secretary said the U. S. S. Augusta, flagship of the Asiatic fleet, is anchored in the harbor of Shanghai, ready to take American nationals aboard. The cruiser could be joined by other units of the fleet at short notice, to aid in the removal, he said.

All Americans in Shanghai have been warned repeatedly of their danger. They have been advised to be ready to leave the city and to keep in places of safety until removal is deemed necessary.

Consular Stafs to Act.

Because of the great distance between the United States and China and the uncertainty of maintenance of communications the American diplomatic and military stafs in China have been given complete discretionary powers to order evacuation of Americans.

Secretary Hull said American officials are working constantly with representatives of other foreign governments in China. All have taken part in the drafting of plans for joint safety.

Thirty-nine American warships and nearly 7,000 soldiers, sailors, and marines are in the orient.

Official Statement Expected.

Latest dispatches from Shanghai were put aboard a navy seaplane this afternoon for delivery to President Roosevelt, who is week-ending aboard the Presidential yacht Potomac, in Chesapeake bay.

As the President cruised, Chairman Key Pittman of the senate foreign relations committee predicted that if hostilities continue at Shanghai, an official statement may come from the White House Monday or Tuesday.

The statement will not be invocation of the neutrality act, the senator indicated. He expressed himself as favoring delay before imposing an embargo on arms shipments and extension of credits to China and Japan.

Borah Urges U S. to Stay Out.

Senator William E. Borah [R., Idaho], former chairman of the committee, urged that whatever course this country pursues, its sole objective should be keeping out of the controversy.

"Not having all the facts as to the situation," he said, "I am not prepared to say what steps should be taken to accomplish that end.

"The world seems determined to commit suicide by more wars and more armaments and more taxes. I think we can longest preserve our civilization by staying out of it."

BRITAIN IS NEUTRAL.

[Copyright: 1937: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, Aug. 14.—Although a number of British casualties are reported among the Shanghai dead, it became known tonight that the British still are determined to confine their action to the defense of their own area in the stricken city. A policy of complete neutrality will be maintained by the London government in collaboration with the United States and other major powers which independently sent warnings to Tokio and Nanking against any violation of their rights.

FLYERS! A FLASH FROM THE SKY AND THEN CARNAGE

BY JOHN MORRIS.

[UNITED PRESS STAF CORRESPONDENT.]

SHANGHAI, Aug. 15 [Sunday].—For 30 minutes today I stood in the midst of screaming men and women and watched them die as black winged Chinese bombing planes flew over the heart of Shanghai, dumping destruction and death on terror stricken Chinese and foreigners.

When the first bomb was dropped, I was standing in the lobby of the British-owned Palace hotel, watching the anti-aircraft guns of the Japanese warship Idzumo, out on the Whangpoo river, blaze away at an aerial target.

Out of a dark sky three bombing planes appeared, circling over the Whangpoo. I saw the first load of bombs drop toward the river.

Almost simultaneously came the roar of an explosion, but it was behind me, in the direction of the Nanking road, where the big Cathay hotel stood, across the street from the Palace.

Streets Littered with Dead.

I ran across the lobby, hurdling chairs and tables, overturned by guests who dropped to the floor at the instant of the explosion.

About 50 persons, knocked down by the shock, were writhing on the pavement. Some staggered to their feet; I watched a foreigner crawling over the bodies of two dead Chinese, trying frantically to reach the sidewalk.

The big planes circled back, and the thunder of explosions by now was continuous, like the reverberations of thunder. Smoke billowed up from buildings along the Nanking road.

Victims Die on Hotel Floor.

I went back into the lobby. It was densely packed, with wounded and dying people on the tile floor, which was wet and slippery from blood. Foreigners and Chinese had fled helter-skelter into the hotel and were huddled in frightened groups.

Out on the street I saw a white woman crouched in the middle of Nanking road, assisting another woman in giving birth to a child, while a hail of death pelted from the skies. The crowd streamed past. The agony of this pair seemed only an incident in the carnage that was going on.

An automobile, apparently struck by a shell, was blazing across the street. I thought it was my own, and ran over expecting to find my chauffeur, Wang, dead in the seat.

Burning Gasoline Perils Crowds.

The car belonged to Dr. W. S. Parsons, a Canadian resident of Shanghai, and I learned that he had dashed out, intending to use the car to take 3 Americans Among Slain; Big Hotels Shattered.

BULLETIN.

SHANGHAI, China, Aug. 15 (Sunday).—(U.P.)—Mayor Yui at noon today in a Chinese radio broadcast threatened new bombings. He charged that Japanese had mounted anti-aircraft guns on the roofs of Japanese banks along Shanghai's chief thoroughfare—the bund. Unless these guns were removed at once, he said, the Chinese would bomb the buildings. Shortly afterward batteries of Chinese long range guns in Taichang north of Hongkew effectively got the range of important Japanese positions. Incendiary shells fired the office of the Japanese naval attache. Other shells struck the headquarters of a Japanese naval landing party, killing a sub lieutenant. A Japanese newspaperman was killed by a Chinese shell in Hongkew where shells were falling at intervals.

BY JOHN POWELL.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, Aug. 15 (Sunday).—Nearly 2,000 persons were killed or wounded here yesterday, the most tragic slaughter of noncombatant men, women, and children since the invention of the air bomber. Police estimates set the dead at 860 and the wounded at 1,110.

At least three Americans were among those killed and at least two were wounded. Many citizens of other occidental powers also were killed and wounded.

The holocaust was caused by Chinese planes, purchased in the United States, which dropped bombs into the International settlement of Shanghai, where 4,000 American civilians and more than 1,000 American marines and soldiers are concentrated, together with many thousands of citizens of other occidental powers.

A Tragedy of Error.

The Chinese bombs were aimed at Japanese warships in the Whangpoo river and at Japanese marines in the Hongkew section of the International settlement. But China's own people were the chief victims. For the bombs missed their marks and fell into streets congested with Chinese refugees of the poorer class who had fled Japanese artillery fire upon the Chinese areas of the city to the sections inhabited by occidentals. Frightful, indescribable carnage followed. The streets literally ran with blood.

American Dead Listed.

The three Americans known to have been killed were:

Dr. Frank J. Rawlinson of Boston, Mass., 66 years of age, a missionary. He was editor of the Chinese Recorder, supported by the American board of commissioners for foreign missions. He is survived by his widow and eight children.

Dr. Robert Reischauer of Boston, Mass., professor of international affairs at Princeton university. He was making a study tour of the far east.

MORE THAN 800 SLAIN BY BOMBS DROPPED UPON POPULOUS AND BUSY CENTER OF SHANGHAI

Warfare between Japan and China caused more than 800 deaths, injuries to hundreds of others, and heavy property loss in the Chinese metropolis yesterday. Aerial bombs caused hundreds of deaths in the Bund, the waterfront business district in the International settlement, here shown in panorama. The Maltese cross at extreme right marks the spot where the Japanese flagship Idzumo lay at anchor in front of the Nipponese consulate when the cruiser was the target of bombs dropped by Chinese airmen. A circle calls attention to the Palace hotel, British owned, and the famous Cathay hotel, around both of which many, including foreigners, were killed. Most of the 150 patrons of the Cathay hotel, largely Americans, transferred to the Metropole hotel. A majority of the persons killed were natives of the poorer class.

hai. His Russian wife was also killed.

Chicagoans Escape Injury.

Among the Americans wounded were:

R. R. Rouse of Saco, Mont.

J. M. Kerbey, an employé of RCA-Victor in Shanghai.

Among Americans who reported themselves safe after the bombardment were Mr. and Mrs. Joseph L. Valentine, 1322 Ritchie court, Chicago, and Dr. Robert B. Preble of Chicago. Valentine and his son, who had a narrow escape while on the roof of the Cathay hotel, were separated in the confusion attending the first bombing, but later were reunited at the Hotel Metropole.

Chinese Cheer Planes.

In the previous warfare between China and Japan here in 1932 China was without planes. Hence the Japanese made unrestricted use of theirs to destroy Chapei, one of the Chinese areas of the city.

The tables were reversed yesterday, when the Chinese for the first time used their new military air branch, which had been developed at great expense and sacrifice since 1932.

When the Chinese planes came into view overhead thousands of Chinese, mostly refugees from Hongkew, the Japanese section of the International settlement, cheered wildly and clapped their hands.

Cheers Turn to Screams.

Their air fleet was on the way to strafe the Japanese invader! The time had arrived to exact vengeance for the atrocities perpetrated by the Japanese in 1932!

But the joyful shouting and handclapping suddenly ceased. Screams of horror took their place. For the planes were dropping their deadly cargoes upon their own people.

The missils struck with resounding explosions, shaking the entire downtown area and breaking plate glass windows for several blocks around. All windows fronting on the narrow Nanking road were blown out.

Two or three bombs were dropped on the swanky Cathay hotel and the Palace hotel. The latter is a landmark. The top of each structure apparently was struck by one bomb, while a third bomb apparently struck the side of the Cathay and ricocheted to the street.

The newly constructed steel and concrete Cathay was shaken to its foundations, while the older Palace of brick construction was so badly shaken that the municipality ordered it condemned. It must be removed immediately, as the walls are on the point of collapse. Most of the foreigners killed were guests on the top floors of the Palace or standing in its lobby on the ground floor.

Nude Corpses Litter Streets.

The worst carnage, however, was among the hordes of Chinese refugees strolling aimlessly on the sidewalks. A living stream of people within a few seconds was converted to a group of corpses grotesquely scattered about at all angles, mostly with their clothing burned off. Some bodies were colored fantastically by chemicals from the high powered bombs, or burned to a crisp or torn asunder with horrible wounds.

A few minutes after the planes had roared away more fire department trucks, ambulances, and commercial trucks, manned by volunteer units, arrived on the scene. They first collected the wounded, who were sent to hospitals, and then began the gruesome task of picking up the torn bodies of the dead. They were heaped in vans and rushed to morgues. The casualties at this center were set at 295 killed and 182 wounded.

Similar scenes were repeated at the even worse center of death on the broad plaza at Tibet road and Avenue Edward VII., which divides the international settlement from the French concession. There 565 persons were killed and 928 wounded.

Hospital Target of Bomb.

The plaza is flanked on one side by the Great World amusement building, which was jammed with hundreds of persons. On the opposite corner is a Buddhist temple. Alongside is a small hospital for contagious diseases.

About 70 patients were thrown from their beds to the floor, while windows were blown in and a section of the wall collapsed.

Here havoc was caused by two bombs which fell near the center of the plaza and made a crater 28 feet long by 10 feet wide, and possibly 12 feet deep.

The section of the plaza adjoining the amusement building, where the people were massed most densely, was converted into a vast shambles. Bodies were piled against the building in a human ramp of dead and wounded heaped together. Hundreds were dying, sitting about dazedly clutching at gaping wounds or struggling in their last throes.

About 20 automobiles, many occupied by foreigners were stopped at a trafic island waiting for a red light to turn green. The cars were transformed from the latest American and European models into scrap metal. Victims were burned into mummies by the fierce heat. The hands of many were burned to skeletons, still grasping the wheels.

In one car the bodies of five passengers—two in front and three in the rear—all were burned to cinders, but still sitting lifelike. A trafic officer standing in a cubicle 10 feet from the elevation was blown to smithereens.

Chiang Orders Probe.

As soon as news of the bombings reached Nanking, the Chinese capital, Gen Chiang Kai-shek, dictator of China, ordered an investigation. He said he would punish the pilots if he found the tragedy was due to careless marksmanship.

It was stated that the Chinese government was deeply impressed by strong protests which were lodged by the American, British, and French governments.

The squadron leader of the six planes involved, which had attempted to bomb the Japanese cruiser Idzumo, said he had met a hail of shells from anti-aircraft guns. One Chinese plane is missing and two were damaged. Several pilots were wounded and were barely able to reach their landing field in Chapei. It was stated the bombs were dropped either accidentally or when the bomb racks were damaged by the Japanese antiaircraft fire.

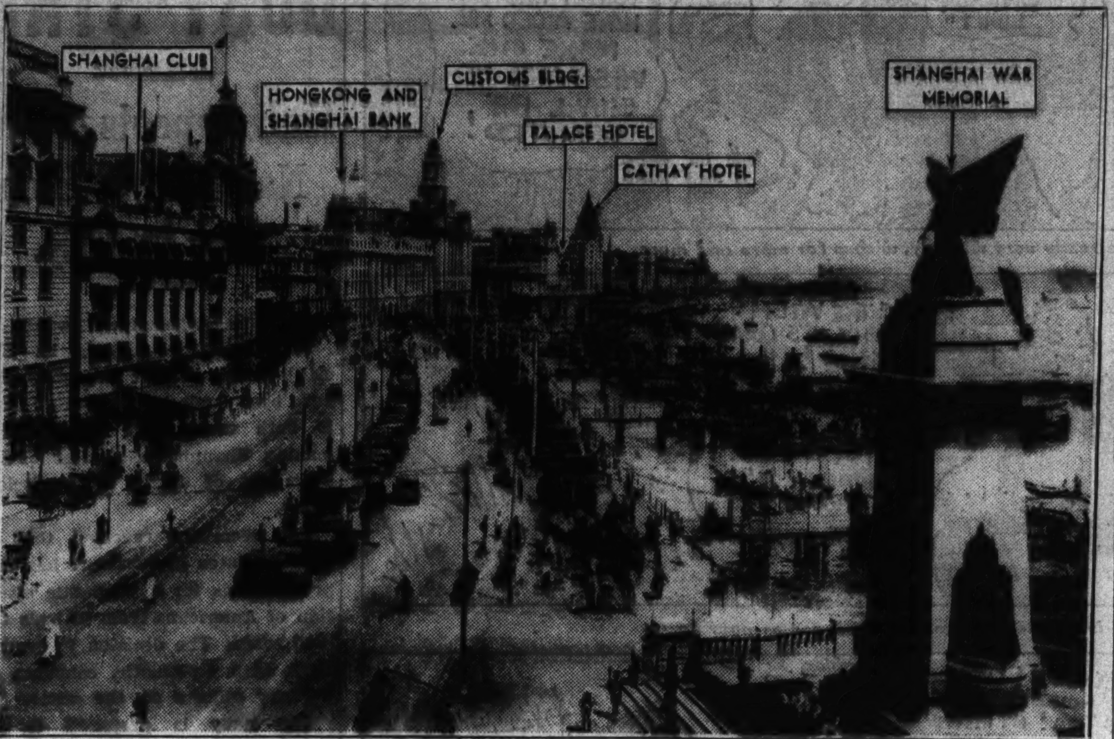
It was stated that Nanking also was anxious over the fate of five other planes of a squadron of six which tried to bomb a Japanese aircraft carrier anchored at the mouth of the Yangtze river at Woosung. It was stated that Japanese anti-aircraft guns had damaged the planes and that only one thus far had returned to its base. It was damaged and forced to make a pancake landing.

Jap Mills Bombed.

The Chinese activity in the air apparently also did considerable damage to Japanese properties in the Shanghai area. This was admitted by the Japanese.

Of the Kungdah mill the Japanese said: "Damage was slight, but a Japanese bluejacket and two Japanese employés were killed and several wounded." A Chinese report said the Kungdah mill served as quarters for the Japanese headquarters staf and chief storehouse for munitions. The Chinese claimed three of their bombs found their mark and caused the Japanese to evacuate hurriedly.

A Japanese report said another Japanese mill and warehouse in the Pootung area, across the Whangpoo river from the international settlement, were bombed and burned.



A street view looking north along the Bund. This picture shows the modern appearance of the business center, controlled by foreign nations under treaty provisions. Shanghai, with a population of some three and one-half million, is the principal commercial and industrial city of China.

British Demand Japs Leave.

Yesterday was a day of sharp international protests. They began with a British demand that the Japanese withdraw the cruiser Idzumo downstream. The British authorities said the presence of the ship alongside the Japanese consulate was "contributing to the bombardment of the international settlement by Chinese aircraft" and requested that Vice Admiral Kiyoshi Hasegawa, chief commander of the Japanese third fleet, "take adequate measures to remedy the situation."

Admiral Hasegawa replied that he regretted the damage inflicted upon the settlement, but said "most persons share the belief that the uneasiness and damage is due to 'blind bombing' by Chinese aircraft."

He declared that while he desired to preserve the safety of the settlement, it was incumbent upon him to protect the lives of Japanese nationals and their property, and that to carry out this charge he was entitled to carry out, independently and at his own discretion, "certain operations." He refused, therefore, to move the Idzumo.

As soon as the aerial bombing of the city began the American consul general, Clarence Gauss, telephoned United States Ambassador Nelson T. Johnson at Nanking. Gauss urged the ambassador to make an emphatic protest to the Chinese government.

Gauss also protested against Chinese planes dropping two bombs alongside the United States flagship Augusta as the ship was entering Shanghai harbor. The force of the explosion shattered porthole windows and shook up the crew.

Mayor O. K. Yui of the Chinese municipality of Shanghai protested the presence of neutral warcraft within the harbor, anchored almost alongside the Japanese vessel which the Chinese had been trying to bomb.

Holds China "Not Responsible."

Mayor Yui urged that neutral ships be anchored at a greater distance from Japanese ships in view of the possibility that the Chinese might attack the Japanese vessels. In event the neutrals do not comply, Yui declared, the Chinese government will hold itself not responsible for damage or loss of lives which might result.

Vice Admiral Hasegawa early this morning issued a proclamation advising Chinese noncombatants to evacuate the areas occupied by Chinese military forces. His proclamation said that, "having received provocative attacks by armed forces, the third [Japanese] fleet is compelled to take measures necessary for self-defense. Therefore, noncombatants in areas occupied by Chinese forces and located in the vicinity of Chinese military establishments are hereby advised to evacuate to places outside these mentioned areas."

The Japanese naval attaché's office also charged that the American missionary university of Shanghai had been "harboring Chinese snipers."

Threaten to Raze School.

"Hence Japanese naval authorities have disclaimed any responsibility for the future safety of the institution. Since the school has permitted the entry of combatants, the university automatically is shorn of its status as a peaceful educational institution. Under the circumstances it is clear that any consequences arising from the misuse of cultural institutions by the Chinese should be the responsibility of the Chinese military command, and not of the Japanese."

Dr. Herman Lieu, president of the university, and graduate of the University of Chicago and of Columbia university, denied that the institution harbored snipers. He said he believed the Japanese were planning to destroy the institution, as they did Nankai university in Tientsin. The Shanghai school is financed largely by contributions from Baptist churches in the middle western section of the United States.

JAPAN CONDEMNS TWO LEADERS OF REVOLT TO DEATH

TOKIO, Aug. 14.—(AP)—Two men charged with being the principal civilian leaders in the military uprising of February, 1936, were sentenced to death today.

They are Ikki Kita, 57 years of age, author of a banned pamphlet advocating "patriotic" revolution, and Zei Nishida, retired lieutenant of infantry.

Tetsuya Kamekawa, 46 years of age, lawyer and economist, was sentenced to life imprisonment and Teruo Nakabashi to three years imprisonment.

Investigation of the bloody uprising, which brought martial law to Tokio for five months, has been carried on by a Tokio special court martial with unprecedented powers. Fifteen former officers and cadets were executed on July 12, 1936. The uprising saw the assassination of government officials and others.

JAP SAILOR SLAIN, ANOTHER SHOT IN TSINGTAO, CHINA

TSINGTAO, China, Aug. 14.—[U.P.]—Two Japanese sailors were shot here today. The Japanese version was that a navy patrol of five was passing a Roman Catholic convent when a black garbed Chinese bicyclist passed them, turned and shot a petty officer, then wounded a sailor. The petty officer was killed and the wounded man was expected to die. The assailant escaped.

Japanese invited the American and British consuls to inspect the scene, meanwhile guarding the street.

The Chinese authorities contended that two Japanese sailors were attempting to arrest a Japanese reservist, who resisted and fired upon them.

JAPS RUSH 12,000 MEN TO BATTLE AT NANKOW PASS

Chinese Halt Nipponese North of Peiping.

PEIPING, China, Aug. 14.—(AP)—Twelve thousand Japanese soldiers were reported to be moving hurriedly into this war-shattered section of north China today from Mukden, Manchukuo.

Japanese commanders were said to have prepared 100 trains to transport these reinforcements into Hopei province at the rate of twelve trainloads a day.

They will reinforce Japanese forces battling desperately with 4,000 Chinese defenders in Nankow pass, gateway to Chahar province and Mongolia. The pass is about 35 miles north of Peiping.

Japs Pour Through Tientsin.

By way of Tientsin a steady stream of Japanese soldiery was pouring rapidly into the area throughout the day, apparently bound for the more acute trouble zones north of Peiping and south along the Peiping-Hankow railroad. It was estimated that 5,000 had passed through Tientsin in the past 24 hours, heading for the battlefronts.

The heaviest concentrations were being moved to Nankow pass, where Japanese troops and artillery had attacked continuously for more than 30 hours in a vain attempt to dislodge the Chinese soldiers from the rocky slopes.

Chinese forces, entrenched on the mountain side, poured a deadly machine gun and artillery fire into 2,000 Japanese infantry men who had stormed the steep slopes time after time.

Japs Inch Way Forward.

The Japanese, bolstered by tanks and heavy guns, had only been able to inch their way to the entrance of the pass, pushing the Chinese defence forces farther into the canyon.

The Japanese seemed determined to take the narrow defile at any cost in order to control the Peiping-Suiyuan railroad and prevent Chinese soldiers from pouring down from the north and west to recapture Peiping.

But the fighting was so desparate that the Japanese had dropped their air of casual assurance and taken on an attitude of nervousness as the Chinese continued to fight stubbornly.

The Chinese were reported to be prepared to dynamite the railway winding through the pass, as well as bridges and tunnels, if they should decide defeat were inevitable. Such tactics would delay a Japanese advance through the pass for months.

At the head of the Chinese was Gen. Fu Tso-yi governor of Suiyuan. Gen. Fu gained fame last year by successfully repulsing the invasion of his province by Manchurians and Mongols, led by Japanese officers.

"Now the tone of a piano," explained the gentleman in the music store, "depends so much on the sounding-board; just the right kind of spruce; just the proper shaping of it. "Thanks for the information; think I'll mosey on," said Farmer A., as he edged out the door and started in search of the place where Steinway Pianos were sold.

JAPAN CRIES SHE IS THE VICTIM OF AGGRESSION

Tokio Cabinet Paints China as "Arrogant."

TOKIO, Aug. 15.—[Sunday.]—(AP)—After a three hour cabinet session the Japanese government early today asserted that latest developments in China made it necessary for Japanese authorities to resort to "firm, resolute measures."

These measures would be taken to make the Nanking government and the Kuomintang effectively reconsider past positions, the statement said. The Kuomintang is the National People's party of China.

Japanese authorities said they did not intend any harm to the Chinese masses in general and that their aim was still for coöperation between China, Manchukuo, and Japan.

Charge Chinese Are "Arrogant."

The cabinet heard from Admiral Mitsumasa Yonai, minister of navy, and Koki Hirota, foreign minister, detailed reports on the Shanghai situation, after which measures to be taken were discussed.

The navy office issued a long statement reviewing clashes between Chinese and Japanese since July 7, when Chinese-Japanese forces clashed west of Peiping, and emphasizing the claim that Japan had exercised self-restraint throughout. It alleged that the Chinese grew "increasingly arrogant and offensive."

The Chinese attitude, the statement asserted, showed that the Chinese misinterpreted Japanese measures, such as evacuation of the Yangtze valley, which was intended primarily to prevent the spread of hostilities.

"Horrified" Over Shanghai.

"The Chinese grow presumptuous and advance two steps if the Japanese concede one," the statement said. "There is no limit to their atrocity and avarice. The Japanese are now compelled to take necessary and effective measures for self-defense."

Tatsuo Kawai, a foreign office spokesman, expressed "horror and distress" over the Shanghai bombing, in which hundreds were killed. He said the foreign office had learned that the Chinese government had warned all foreigners except Japanese to evacuate the Hongkew area.

Kawai said the Japanese government was prepared for attack and was ready to coöperate in keeping Shanghai free from insecurity and disorder. He said he hoped the Chinese troops would display greater discipline than on past occasions, but he feared they wound run true to pattern."

Says World Will Understand.

"Our fears, alas, were too well founded," Kawai said. "We were prepared to resist attacks on Japanese forces, but unprepared to witness the massacre of innocent Chinese refugees by Chinese bombs and the wanton destruction of foreign property, or the slaughter of foreign friends of the Chinese people by Chinese planes."

Kawai said the "world will recognize that Japan has shown the greatest restraint and moderation in recent events and has done the utmost to minimize the effects of untoward happenings, but efforts have been thwarted by the prejudiced and disorderly attitude of the Chinese."

He recalled that recent "incidents" had been settled speedily until the Nanking government intervened and revived them.

"Japan Stands for Order."

"Japan stands for order, but will insist on protection of Japanese citizens in their legitimate rights," he declared. "Japan is conscious of her duty to her friends and those putting trust in her. Japanese troops, if necessary, will fight therefore, reluctantly, but without flinching."

Admiral Yonai will broadcast a message to the nation tonight. His subject will be: "The determination of the Imperial Navy."

From all over Japan, voluntary contributions to the nation's war chest soared to around $2,500,000.

Wholesale evacuation of Chinese in Japan was hinted as the Chinese consul in Yokohama registered the property and names of his nationals.

Rifle Shot Explodes Bomb; Soldier Killed, One Hurt

March Field, Cal., Aug. 14.—(AP)—Private Hubert Carver, Portsmouth, O., was killed and Private Hershel Mays, Compton, Cal., was wounded in one foot and the abdomen by a bomb explosion near Muroc dry lake, scene of army air service bombing practice today. Mays said they were hunting lizards with a rifle when one of them fired and an explosion followed. Army officials said that due to recent maneuvers there are several "dud" bombs lying about the dry lake.

AIR VIEW OF THE THEATER OF WAR IN THE CHINESE METROPOLIS

wounded to hospitals. He narrowly escaped being burned.

Along Nanking road and the waterfront other motor cars were blazing. Exploding gasoline sent sheets of flame over the streets.

Thousands by now were milling in the streets, frantically seeking relatives. Two Chinese, their faces bloody, screamed from the roof of Sassoon House, in which the Cathay hotel is located.

Thunder of Guns Deafening.

Meanwhile the Idzumo had found the range, and its powerful anti-aircraft battery was belching smoke and flame into the sky. The detonation of shells, the screams of hurt people and the thunder of the warship's guns was deafening.

Ambulance attendants pawed over bleeding figures in the street, selecting only those who had a chance to live. Others, still able to gasp out cries for help, were left to die because facilities were limited.

Relatives fell by the sides of the wounded and pounded bleeding hands against the pavement and wailed their grief. I saw a foreigner with the upper half of his face blown away. A few yards further along the street I helped an aged Chinese load a dying man on a cot we commandeered from a group of refugees.

I counted 100 dead in less than a block.

F. Boss, Swiss manager of the Palace hotel, raced downstairs into the lobby as I entered, shouting for the clerks to "call ambulances." He said six people were dying in one room upstairs.

Fire meanwhile had burst out in the hotel and the fire brigade had arrived with a clang of bells.

Women had been taken to more protected parts of the hotel, down in the basement.

R. E. Raschle, a Swiss who is representative of the Union brewery, said another Union brewery man, Max Jakaby, was walking along the street when a bomb exploded near him, blowing off his leg.

Sees Fours Planes Dump Bombs.

Robert Bellaire, United Press correspondent whose home is in Sioux City, Ia., told me he saw four Chinese planes fly low over the settlement and dump bombs.

Thirty-five minutes after the first bomb struck a British armored car battalion arrived and began to organize some semblance of order near the two hotels.

The management of the Cathay hotel was evacuating 150 guests, mostly Americans, to the Metropole. Every window in the hotel apparently had been shattered, and the lobby was a shambles.

In front of the arcade entrance to the Sassoon house was a shell crater four feet deep.

The United States patrol boat Sacramento steamed up the Whangpoo river yesterday and sailors landed at the Shanghai power plant (A) to protect it from damage that might plunge the war stricken city into darkness. Nearby the Japanese were reported using for a military airdrome Yangtzepoo field (B), just across the street from the eastern division of the International settlement (C). Across the river in Pootung (E) air bombs fired huge oil storage tanks. Japanese sources said burning tanks belonged to the American Standard-Vacuum Oil company, which owns such properties as those shown here (D), but it was not definitly known whether these particular tanks were ablaze.

ROBBER KIDNAPS FAMILY; TAKES CASH, GEMS. CAR

Herman Strauss, 42 years old, 6344 South Whipple street, an interior decorator; his wife, Marie, 40, and their son, Herman Jr., 9, who was asleep on the rear seat, were forced by a bandit to take a thrilling ride in their automobile early today. They also were robbed of their money, jewels, and car.

The robber threw open the car door when Strauss stopped at a trafic light at Kedzie and Grand avenues and sprang into the rear seat beside Mrs. Strauss. He pressed a revolver against her side and announced: "This is a stickup. Do as I tell you and no one will be hurt."

He then directed Strauss to drive through side streets until told to stop. During the half hour trip he took Mrs. Strauss' ring valued at $200 and $40 in cash. From Strauss he took $1. The family then was ejected from the machine which the bandit said he would leave at Fulton street and Western avenue. Police went there, but found no trace of the car.

BRAZIL HITS BACK AT ARGENTINA ON SHIP LEASE PLAN

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil, Aug. 14.—(AP)—President Getulio Vargas of Brazil, in a curt statement tonight, declared that Brazil "does not hold itself bound" to explain to any third nation its intention to lease naval vessels from the United States.

[The United States has postponed the leasing plan, which was opposed by Argentina. In Buenos Aires today, Argentine official circles expressed satisfaction with the United States decision.]

Earlier, the Brazilian foreign office, in a press statement regarding the proposal to lease six overage destroyers from the United States, said danger of an armaments race in South America could originate only in Argentina.

The statement observed that neither Brazil nor Argentina was a party to the London naval treaty invoked by Foreign Minister Carlos Saavedra Lamas of Argentina in criticizing the proposed destroyer deal.

Flagship of British Fleet Bombed by Chinese Planes

LONDON, Aug. 14.—(AP)—The admiralty announced tonight that the British cruiser Cumberland had been bombed but not hit by Chinese aircraft at Woosung, gateway to Shanghai. The Chinese mistook the Cumberland for a Japanese vessel. The Cumberland is flagship of the British China squadron. It arrived at Woosung early today and put ashore 200 marines to reinforce the 950 British infantrymen defending positions around the settlement's borders.

MRS. ROOSEVELT JR. ASKS MME. CHIANG TO END AIR BOMBING

SHANGHAI, Aug. 15.—[Sunday.]—(AP)—Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt Jr., a visitor in Shanghai, today telegraphed Mme. Chiang Kai-shek in Nanking urging that there be no repetition of yesterday's bombing of foreign areas in Shanghai.

Mme. Chiang, Wellesley-educated wife of the dictator of China, is secretary general of the national air forces.

Mrs. Roosevelt said she entreated Mme. Chiang "as a sincere friend" to make sure that the Chinese air force does not bomb the international areas again pending arrangements to ensure the safety "not only of foreigners but of your own refugees." Mrs. Roosevelt, touring the orient with her 19 year old son, Quentin, was Mme. Chiang's dinner guest recently.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, Aug. 14.—Commercial metropolis of China and greatest seaport of the far east is Shanghai, now a disturbance center in the warfare between Chinese and Japanese troops. It is fifth port of the world, from the seven seas comes shipping to its docks, and, though not on the ocean, it is the sea gate for the great Yangtze river basin, main artery of the heart of China, a hinterland with more than 180 million population.

A great swarming, cosmopolitan conglomeration of more than 3,500,000 people, Shanghai boasts it is a market for perhaps one-tenth of the world's population. It is the nearest port of China to Japan proper.

Once a Fishing Center.

Shanghai is of some antiquity, but it was little more than a fishing center with fleets of coastal junks before the treaty port period. Nearly a hundred years ago the British took the city in an Anglo-Chinese or "opium" war, and in 1842 the Chinese signed the treaty of Nanking with Great Britain. Under this Shanghai was one of five ports, "treaty ports," where foreign merchants might, in a restricted area, build warehouses and residences.

It is the foreign settlements that have expanded the port and its oceanic commerce into tremendous proportions. Shanghai lies some 13 miles up the Whangpoo river from the point where it empties into the Yangtze.

After the port was thrown open to foreign trade in 1842, the British established the first foreign settlement, on the south side of Soochow creek and on the left bank of the Whangpoo. Six years later the French were given a concession immediately above the Chinese city, and a few years later an American settlement was established. This was merged with the British district in 1863 in an international settlement, and became what was known as "The Model Settlement." The French still administer their own area as a separate unit.

City Divided Into 3 Parts.

Thus Shanghai is divided into three chief parts—the international settlement, the French concession and the Chinese municipality of Greater Shanghai. The international settlement has a population of about 1,000,000, the French concession about 400,000, and the Chinese part of the city has some 2,000,000.

The international settlement is governed by the municipal council, which operates under a charter known as the Shanghai Land Regulations. The fifteen council members are elected by the taxpayers of American, British, Japanese, and Chinese nationality and they direct the affairs of the settlement. Troops of the chief foreign nationalities have been maintained to afford protection to residents of the section.

In the settlement, Chinese not actually in foreign employ are under control of Chinese officers as much as in the Chinese city, while each foreign consul has the government of his own people. The municipal authority simply arrests offenders against the public peace, hands them over, and prosecutes them before their respective authorities, Chinese or other.

Also a Manufacturing Center.

The settlements form the chief central district, comprising the principal commercial area and the famous river front or Bund.

Not only is Shanghai the leading seaport and commercial metropolis of China, but it is the chief manufacturing center of the country. This is ascribed to its geographical position as the gateway of commercial China and the base of western influence. Major industries are concerned with ship building [the city has five yards] and with large scale manufacture of raw materials on modernized factory lines. Shanghai has 58 of the 119 cotton mills in China, and it employs more than half the cotton operatives in the country. Lether factories, textiles, silk, woolen, cotton, small handicraft industries, paper mills, and engineering works are important products, and one growing item in recent years has been the export of frozen eggs, albumen and yolk, to Europe.

In 1932 there was protracted battling in Shanghai during the clash between China and Japan over Manchuria.

SHUT LOOPHOLES IN CITY'S SYSTEM ON INJURY DEBTS

A new system which will give Controler Robert B. Upham accurate information on personal injury judgments in effect against the city was disclosed yesterday by Corporation Counsel Barnet Hodes. Hodes said that previously the city controler has never known how much the city owed litigants.

"Before an attorney can get payment on a judgment entered in one of the lower courts he must secure our waiver of the right to appeal," Hodes said.

"Under the new system a letter will be sent to the attorney representing the person who sued the city informing the attorney the judgment has been agreed to by me and that the waiver of appeal will be signed when he presents his bill of costs and the record of the court proceedings.

"Meanwhile a letter will have been sent to the controler notifying him that the judgment has been approved as final by the corporation counsel. This will give the controler an accurate record of all judgments pending against the city.

SOVIETS BAR 15 MORE AMERICANS ON TOURIST SHIP

[Copyright: 1937: By the New York Times.]

MOSCOW, Aug. 14.—Fifteen more American tourists have been barred from entering the Soviet union on their arrival at Leningrad. They are passengers on the Swedish-American liner Gripsholm, which arived at Leningrad Wednesday with 420 tourists for a four day visit to Leningrad and Moscow. As in previous instances involving cruise ships, some members of a family are admitted and others are excluded.

At Leningrad, passport officers with a list of passengers stood at the gangway and waved back certain passengers.

The Gripsholm passenger list included three persons by the name of Robinson. They are unrelated. One, Miss Mary B. Robinson, was said by fellow passengers to be a publicity director for the United States department of labor. All three were turned back. Frederick Hanssen, New York investment banker, and Mrs. Hanssen were among those not permitted to land.

FACING MURDER TRIAL, ROBBER LEAPS TO DEATH

St. Paul, Minn., Aug. 14.—[Special.]—Already sentenced to serve 40 years in prison for bank robbery, and also facing extradition to Iowa for trial on a charge of murder, Clair Gibson, dived to his death today from the third floor of Ramsey county jail.

William Goslin, jailer, went to a second floor cell to get Gibson this morning when his attorney, A. J. Hoffman, arrived at the prison to inform him the federal government had designated an Iowa prison for his confinement.

When Goslin unlocked the cell door Gibson ran out, fled up to the third floor and dived before Goslin could reach him.

Gibson had admitted 22 bank robberies to federal agents. He was arrested in Oregon and returned here. On Wednesday he pleaded guilty of having robbed the state bank of Cold Springs, Minn., in June, 1936, and the state bank of Eyota, Minn., in December, 1936.

British Seaplane Hops from Ireland for Newfoundland

FOYNES, Irish Free State, Aug. 15 [Sunday].—(AP)—The British flying boat Caledonia took off today at 5:37 a. m. [11:37 p. m. Saturday, Chicago time] on a trans-Atlantic flight to Botwood, N. F., along the northern route of the projected regular passenger and mail service across the Atlantic. The Imperial Airways plane already has one complete round trip between New York and Ireland to its credit, having flown the route while the Pan-American Clipper was making the same trip in the opposite direction.

RUSSIA A LAND OF TERROR AS PURGE HITS ALL CLASSES

Stalin's Spy Hunters Jail Hundreds of Victims.

BY RICHARD MASSOCK.

MOSCOW, Aug. 14.—(AP)—The newcomer to Moscow finds the undercurrent of conversation full of rumors about the latest supposed victims or victims-to-be of Dictator Stalin's purge, which is rubbing out enemies of the soviet régime and which is reaching into all classes of the population.

He hears it whispered, for instance, that an admiral of high rank is believed to be on the skids.

He hears that 2,000 officers of the Red army are under arrest, that so-and-so, who was a dinner guest a few weeks ago, has disappeared, that new, sensational trials may be expected soon.

Officials Are Terrorized.

Such rumors may have no foundation. They may only be the figment of nervous preoccupation with the hunting down of "enemies of the people," which is in full cry. Their confirmation comes, if ever, not from officials, but more likely from some announcement of a shakeup in the soviet hierarchy or some denunciation in the newspapers.

The tension is most apparent in government offices, where the higher a man's post the better target he offers to the critics and enemy-hunters in the administration. It has become virtually impossible to obtain official comment on any subject, even though it be nonpolitical. If the censor passes an unofficial report, that is considered a sign of its accuracy.

Outside of official circles, there is less of tension and nervousness. The tourist, who finds army officers dancing in the crowded restaurant of the Metropole or having their hands manicured in the hotel's institute of beauty, is unlikely to detect worry in their faces.

Foreigners Closely Watched.

Foreigners complain they are closely watched, but the surveillance is not obvious, except when they must show their credentials to the guards of the NKVD, formerly the GPU, at office doors. Even the line of visitors to Lenin's tomb in Red square is closely watched.

The department stores are crowded with jostling customers, the street cars are packed to the steps with passengers who find them preferable or more convenient than the new subway, and people go about their business in the street with seeming unconcern.

Yet I saw an old woman twice make the sign of the cross immediately after passing an NKVD guard who was on duty outside a foreign legation, which might or might not have been significant.

Russians Avoid Foreigners.

It is difficult to obtain the reaction of the Russian in the street to the purge. Contacts between Russians and foreigners, long rare under the soviet régime, now have been almost completely severed.

The foreigner is told that no Russian dentist will treat him, so that even diplomats must go to Finland for tooth pullings. Foreigners who were studying the Russian language say their teachers stopped coming to the lessons several weeks ago. The dentists, teachers, and others are holding aloof from contact with anybody whose foreign nationality might bring the spy chasers to the door.

The newspapers remain virtually the only source of learning what goes on behind the Russian's stolid face. They indicate the drive against "spies, wreckers, and enemies of the people" has had profound effect.

Purge Reaches Smaller Fry.

The purge now is reaching the smaller fry in the provinces. Hundreds of comparatively little men have been arrested.

Izvestia, the government newspaper, and Pravda, the communist party mouthpiece, uncover case after case of "Trotzky-Bukharin, Japanese-German spies, wreckers, diversionists, and traitors." Three words almost always appear together—"spies, wreckers, diversionists."

"Spies" appears to apply not only to foreign snoopers but to supposed agents of Leon Trotzky, exiled former war commissar of Russia. Diversionists have been described as those who wilfully try to undermine the régime by acts of destruction and sabotage. Wreckers include those who, through negligence, inefficiency, or incompetency, hinder the output of factories and farms. They seemingly are the most numerous.

Chaos in Industry.

With reports of soviet Russia's further technical progress in industry and agriculture, the newspapers also reveal low efficiency and wasteful production. Much of this is blamed by the soviet leaders on enemies who are shot, imprisoned or exiled.

Unlike earlier purges of soviet enemies, such as that in 1928 which put many bourgeois holdovers from the old czarist régime in prison, the new wreckers are described as "holders of communist party cards who were trusted by the soviets and were working for enemies of the soviet union."

Some appear in the records as burocratic, befuddled, careless or inept officials who were overwhelmed by their jobs. Others are accused of misusing their authority to embezzle funds, shake down workers and peasants, or indulge in profligate living. Many are revealed in the accusations as too timid, frightened or indifferent to assume responsibilty.

The diversity of misdeeds charged against industrial and farm executives include such examples as explosions, accidents and fires in mines, factories and collective farms, manufacture of defective tires of synthetic rubber by an untested formula and the emptying of factory waste into a river, causing an epidemic among drinkers of the water.

Boasting of achievements which fail to show on the balance sheets has been condemned by Dictator Stalin and other leaders.

Chicagoans Safe

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph L. Valentine, visitors in China, also escaped injury. Mr. Valentine and his son, however, were endangered.

Relatives of the four Chicagoans visiting in Shanghai, Dr. Robert B. Preble, 30 North Michigan avenue, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph L. Valentine, 1322 Ritchie court, and their son, Joseph W., have received no word from them regarding yesterday's bombardment in Shanghai, they said yesterday.

Dr. Preble, who is 71 years old and has offices at 900 North Michigan avenue, cabled his daughter, Mrs. Leon Stolz, 332 Oakdale avenue, Friday. His message said only that his party would sail Aug. 19 on the Empress of Asia, a month earlier than was planned. Mrs. Stolz said yesterday that her father had intended to go on to Peiping when he landed at Yokohama, Japan, but the fighting in North China had diverted his party to Shanghai.

The Valentines, traveling with Dr. Preble, sent a message to their daughter, Mrs. Newton Noble, 1322 Ritchie court, announcing their early return. Both Mrs. Stolz and Mrs. Noble said they have been reassured of the safety of their families by newspaper dispatches.

HOMEWOOD GIRL UNDER FIRE.

SHANGHAI, Aug. 15 [Sunday].—[U. P.]—A sniper's bullet whanged close to Miss Elsie Voight of Homewood, Ill., a Chicago suburb, early today. She was crossing the sidewalk to her car. A bullet whined close by and struck a Chinese, wounding him critically. He apparently was a victim of a sniper. Miss Voight is employed here.

FIRE DESTROYS 47 FT. CRUISER OFF 63D STREET

The Narragansett, 47 foot pleasure cruiser, burned to the water line yesterday, 2 miles off the 63d street beach. Its owners, M. A. Hyde and W. J. Krill, who live at 4626 Indianapolis boulevard, East Chicago, Ind., both 35 years old, escaped by lowering a dinghy and rowing a short distance away, where they were picked up by coast guardsmen from the Jackson Park station.

The two men were cruising from East Chicago to the navy pier and were about 5 miles northeast of the 68th street crib when there was an explosion in the hold that started the fire. They fought the blaze for half an hour with a fire extinguisher, they said, before they abandoned the craft. The crew of the sansucker Gilbert and coast guardsmen put out the flames. The Narragansett was valued at $8,000.

LAUNCH BIG HUNT FOR LOST SOVIET PLANE IN ARCTIC

Moscow Acts as Alaskan Flyers Search in Vain.

FAIRBANKS, Alaska, Aug. 14.—(AP)—Three groups of "mercy flyers" searched futilely through the arctic wilds of northeastern Alaska today for a missing soviet transpolar plane and then turned back toward Fairbanks, leaving the hunt to airmen on the other side of the world.

While Russian airmen were reported moving out of Moscow to comb the polar regions for Pilot Sigismund Levanevsky and his five companions, American planes with famous Alaskan pilots at the controls and Russian representatives as observers scanned the area from Fairbanks to the Arctic ocean.

Icebreakers Ordered Out.

Weak radio signals received early in the day indicated the six flyers, who left Moscow at 10:13 p. m. [Chicago daylight time] Thursday, were safe somewhere in the bleak northland.

Meanwhile eight planes and two icebreakers were ordered into the hunt by the soviet government and shortly thereafter Moscow reported three of the aircraft were believed to be on the way from the soviet capital to Rudolf Island, 560 miles from the pole.

The floating soviet north pole camp was advised to convert its station into a base for the rescue operations.

For clews the searchers had only fragmentary messages from the plane, which was bound for Fairbanks, 4,000 miles from Moscow, on the first leg of a flight to Oakland, Cal.

The last of these messages was picked up at 9:53 a. m. [Chicago time] today by the United States army signal corps station in Anchorage.

Ice on Wings Is Blamed.

The signals were so weak that only a part of the message was received. As translated it said:

"No bearings . . . having trouble with . . . wave band."

The soviet flight committee concluded that ice forming on the plane's wings had forced it down on a floe in the arctic after one of its four motors quit.

There had been no position reports since 5:40 a. m. [Chicago time] yesterday, when the plane broadcast that it was passing over the polar region in a temperature of 35 degrees below zero.

Levanevsky's predicament brought a quick reaction among American as well as Russian flyers, including Joe Crosson, noted for his aerial "mercy" exploits in the far north.

Mattern to Aid Hunt.

Crosson hopped over the forbidding Endicott mountain range 250 miles north of here and continued on to Flaxman Island, near the arctic shore at the 146th meridian. He covered a large area at a 200 mile an hour clip without finding anything.

One of the planes searched to the northeast of Fairbanks as far as the Porcupine river district near Fort Yukon, 150 miles from here, and the other flanked Crosson on the left, going as far as Wild River pass, 250 miles to the northwest in the Endicott range.

Jimmy Mattern, American long distance flyer, joined the hunt in an effort to repay an act of mercy by Levanevsky. Mattern took off at 8:30 p. m. [Chicago time] today from Los Angeles for Oakland on the first leg of his flight to the arctic to search for the Russians. Levanevsky rescued Mattern from Siberian wastes after a crash on a world flight in 1933.

NEW WITNESSES WILL BE QUIZZED IN SHAW'S DEATH

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Prairie du Chien, Wis., Aug. 14.—[Special.]—District Attorney Sidney J. Hanson of Richland county, and an investigator left his office today to question several witnesses in connection with the mysterious death of Orla Shaw, 34 years old, of Soldier's Grove and the slaying of his niece, Mildred Best, 11, two months ago.

The prosecutor refused to reveal what information he expected to obtain or the identity of the witnesses. Mildred Best was found shot to death in her bed in the Shaw home June 4. Shaw died two weeks later in the Richland Center, Wis., hospital, apparently of natural causes. His body later was exhumed and a large quantity of poison was found, according to a report of Dr. Frank Kozelka, state pathologist.

Harold Best, 15, Mildred's brother, is held in Crawford county jail here awaiting trial on a charge of having murdered his sister. He made two confessions that he shot his sister, but since has denied both. Requests for his release have been refused.

SIGNAL CAPTORS OF U. S. DANCER; RANSOM IS READY

PARIS, Aug. 14.—(AP)—Miss Ida Sackheim placed a white flag in the window of her hotel room today as a signal to the abductors of her niece, the American dancer, Jean De Koven, that she was ready to pay their ransom demand.

She displayed the flag on the suggestion of police who have been investigating the disappearance of the Brooklyn, N. Y., girl.

There was no indication that Miss Sackheim had established any contact with the supposed kidnapers. She has received several notes demanding $500 for the return of Miss De Koven, 22 years old.

MAGIC OF BRASS BANDS TO SWELL MUSIC FESTIVAL

Field Will Resound to Melody by 2,500.

BY JAMES O'DONNELL BENNETT.

Everybody loves a brass band.

Frederick D. Walker. [Leader of the Canton Band.]

At THE TRIBUNE's eighth Chicagoland Music Festival next Saturday evening the eighty thousand people assembled on Soldiers' field will hear David Rubinoff, one of the outstanding European violinists of the age, and Marion Claire, whom the public has taken to its heart because of the endearing delicacy and charm she brings to operatic rôles.

The eighty thousand will behold such eminent directors as Charles Wakefield Cadman, Henry Weber, Noble Cain, Austin Harding, Homer Rodeheaver, and J. Wesley Jones conducting musical organizations the total membership of which numbers thousands.

2,500 in Bands.

Those soloists and those directors will give the festival high distinction. They will make it an authentic contribution to the annals of American music.

But the brass bands—streaming into the vast setting of Greek architecture with their two thousand five hundred musicians, their banners showing what states they hail from, their rumbling drums, their glittering instruments, and their score and a half of haughty drum majors—will give the festival its tremendous popular appeal. They will make it such a peace time spectacle as is not to be seen elsewhere in America—nor, says Henry Weber, anywhere in Europe.

It is with the entrance of this moving mass of color and melody that the eighty thousand will, as in years past, rise and cheer. It is then that artists and the public of wide Chicagoland are enveloped in a glow of neighborly feeling. Chicagoans who have not visited their old home towns for perhaps a dozen years behold the bands from those towns and are made young again by the sight. The festival becomes a reunion.

Memories Touched to Life.

A thousand fond memories are touched to life. We rejoice to see and greet the neighbors of the old days—the bandmasters whose hair has grown gray since last we saw them, and such veteran bandsmen as William E. Main, forty-two years a member of the celebrated band of Canton, metropolis of the rich corn and coal region in Fulton county, Illinois. He is 75 years old now, but he can march all day and he plays a bass horn nearly as big as he is.

William Main will be here next Saturday night and the seven hundred Cantonians who are to accompany their band to the festival will, by their cheers, make it known to Chicago that the oldest veteran of Illinois bandsmen is on the scene.

This year the twenty-eight brass bands competing for honors in the festival will come from the five Chicagoland states of Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Wisconsin, and Iowa, and from Florida. When these twenty-eight bands, with a membership of nearly fifteen hundred, march on to the field they will be welcomed by the silken standards of the commonwealths whence they come—the crimson of Indiana and Wisconsin, the blue of Illinois and Michigan, the tawny gold of Iowa, all swaying on the northern terrace of the arena.

In addition to these visiting bands, Chicago will send on to the field a massed band of one thousand musicians recruited from thirty-two high schools and to be led at 8 o'clock by Capt. Howard Stube, president of the Chicago Public Schools Band association, in Granville English's "Chicago March," and at 8:27 o'clock by Oscar Anderson, supervisor of instrumentalists in the Chicago public schools, in Ferde Grofe's "Mardi Gras."

Henry Weber, who now becomes general musical director of the festival, is a classicist. No man's musical standards are higher. No other director's discipline is stricter. In view of those facts, you may think that his attitude toward the brass band would be condescending.

Emphatically it is not condescending.

"In our smaller cities," said Mr. Weber, "the brass band is a cultural factor of genuine worth. A long established and loyally supported brass band enlists hundreds of citizens from decade to decade, and that is important because people are always much more interested in something they can take part in. The small town lacks opportunity to secure musicians trained to meet the demands of the symphony orchestra. The band is more democratic because it is a part of the people and the people are a part of it."

Those remarks set me pondering. How long, I wondered, does it take to build a good brass band such as makes a musical oasis in a small town. What, as to instruments, uniforms and maintenance, does such a band cost? What is the source of its funds? How many hours a week does it reherse? Who are its favorite composers? From what trades and professions are the bandsmen usually recruited?

To find the answers Philip Maxwell, general manager of the festival, and I motored 155 miles southwest of Chicago to Canton, Ill., there to meet a typical American brass band on its native heath—the kind of band that goes to the grass roots of American musical culture.

What we learned amazed and delighted us—so solid, earnest, unselfish, and aspiring is the spirit of Canton's band and so loyal the town's response to it.

Canton Band Founded in 1840.

Canton's population today is 12,000. Its band was founded in 1840, when Canton was a hamlet of 500 pioneers. In eighty-six years it has woven itself into the life of the people as closely as has any church or lodge in the community. In 1856 it made music for Abraham Lincoln at some of the Lincoln-Douglas debates on the slavery issue. So many of its members enlisted as soldiers in the civil war that there were not enough members left to enable the band to enlist as a band.

We listened to the band's director, Frederick D. Walker, graduate of the Boston Conservatory of Music, who has given twenty-four of the best years of his life to the band and who also teaches music in Canton's public schools.

We listened to George F. Cogshall, the band's business manager, who gives more solicitous attention to its affairs than he does to his own.

And we listened to Earle Mavity, editor of the Canton Daily Ledger, who is one of the band's best friends in print or out and who publishes that paper from a plant which for architectural dignity and technical equipment would do honor to a city ten times the size of Canton.

Building a Band.

And this is what we learned about the building of a band.

It takes ten years to create a proficient brass band of semi-professionals, and that means two rehersals a week of two hours each.

It costs about $4,000 to equip Canton's thirty-five piece band—thirty active members and five understudies—with instruments. To provide it with uniforms that are not fuss and feathers, but handsome pieces of military tailoring, costs $1,200. The large cost of some of the instruments surprised us. A first cornet costs $150, a tuba bass $375, trombones $90 to $100, flutes, piccolos and clarinets $85 to $140. Drums are the cheapest instruments, the barrel of a drum costing $16 and its heads $12.50 each. Sometimes a new head has to be replaced in forty-eight hours because if drawn too tight in moist weather it will split like glass in a sudden spell of dry weather.

Mr. Weber said the brass band is essentially democratic. The callings of the Canton bandsmen prove that. Eleven of its members are coal miners, two are auto mechanics, one is the head of the Studebaker auto agency and the bass drum player works for him; eight are operatives in the old Parlin & Orendorff Plow factory, now a subsidiary of the International Harvester company and long a benefactor of the band.

The rest of the band's membership includes a grocer, a butcher, a locksmith, a janitor at the Y. M. C. A. building, a coal mine owner, a student at the University of Illinois, an insurance agent, and a real estate agent. An elevator operator plays the piccolo and he is 73 years old.

The band's repertory comprises 1,000 pieces, ranging from classic and semi-classic to popular. Seventy-five per cent of that repertory is classic.

From May 20 to Sept. 1 the band gives sixteen concerts in the open air for which the men are paid $2 each from a fund provided by the park board, but of his payment each man gives a part for the purchase of music. The rest goes into the upkeep of instruments and uniforms.

Finally, the response of these devoted bandsmen to Frederick Walker's direction is a triumph of precision. The traditional village wag once said: "If Fred Walker fell off the bandstand they'd all fall off with him."

Strip-Teaser Weds

[Associated Press Wirephoto.]

Gypsy Rose Lee, burlesque queen, and Robert Mizzy in Hollywood yesterday after their wedding at sea was revealed.

Hollywood, Cal., Aug. 14.—(AP)—Louise Hovick, who won a movie contract as Gypsy Rose Lee, America's No. 1 strip tease dancer, defied superstition and accepted a proposal of marriage and was wed to Robert Mizzy in a water taxi twenty miles off shore on Friday, the 13th.

The marriage was announced today by 20th Century Fox Studios. Mizzy, who is 25, came here from New York two months ago. Miss Hovick gave her age as 23.

The couple avoided the California three day marriage law by going to Long Beach and chartering a water taxi. Capt. James Williams, master of the craft, exercised the right of a ship captain to perform the marriage on the high seas. The couple plan a second wedding ceremony on dry land later.

HUSBAND, 18, HELD AS BIGAMIST IN VIRGINIA; BRIDE, 14, A WITNESS

Danville, Va., Aug. 14.—[Special.]—James Edward Johnson, 18, the youngest man to be charged with bigamy in Virginia, was remanded for trial on that charge in the Halifax Circuit court today. Detained as a witness is Florence Crosby Johnson, 14, his bride of two weeks.

In a signed statement Johnson admits that his first wife, Dorothy, lives in Bristol, Va., with their infant child. He says he left her two years ago and that late in July she sent him a letter saying she had obtained a divorce and that he was free to wed again.

SPRINGFIELD BOY WINS STATE FAIR HEALTH CONTEST

Springfield, Ill., Aug. 14.—(AP)—Slightly overweight, Alvin Mavis, 18 years old, made a score of 99.8 per cent today to win the 4-H club healthiest boy contest as the Illinois state fair opened for its eigthy-fifth exposition.

A high school graduate who lives on a farm near Springfield, Mavis made one of the highest marks in years. Judges penalized him only because his 161 pounds were slightly too much for his 5 feet 8 inches of height. Joseph Vallow, 15, of Kinmundy was second, with 99.1 per cent, and John Ewan of Cuba third with 99.

Mavis, who plans to take an agricultural course at the University of Illinois, said he specialized on drinking two quarts of milk a day, eating only at meal time, avoiding stimulants, and getting plenty of sleep.

Adrienne and her sister, Joan, 3, were placed by Town Hall police with Mrs. Shelley's mother, Mrs. Annamay Hambrock, 665 Melrose street.

EXERCISES TODAY MARK MASSACRE AT FT. DEARBORN

Mayor Is Speaker for 125th Anniversary.

Patriotic exercises will be held this afternoon in commemoration of the 125th anniversary of the Fort Dearborn massacre — Chicago's historic tragedy of old Indian days and the war of 1812. Mayor Kelly will be one of the principal speakers at the exercises.

The massacre occurred on Aug. 15, 1812, along the line of what is now Michigan avenue, near 18th street. In 1812 this area was covered with dunes that rolled to the silent shores of Lake Michigan. South along the lake lay the rough road to Fort Wayne and safety.

Built as an Outpost.

Fort Dearborn stood where the London Guaranty building now stands at Michigan avenue and Wacker drive. It was built in 1803 as a frontier outpost at the demand of Gen. Anthony Wayne.

For twelve years Fort Dearborn stood as a frontier guardian of the young American republic. Then came the war of 1812 and the British and Indians threatened it. The fort had to be abandoned. On August 15, 1812, fifty soldiers, fifteen militiamen, and the women and children of the post started out for Fort Wayne, deluded by promises of safe conduct. Without warning the Indians fell on them. Twenty-six soldiers, twelve militiamen, an Indian scout, two women and twelve children were killed and many others wounded.

Sponsor Day's Observance.

Today's program is sponsored by the Junior Association of Commerce in cooperation with the Chicago Historical society and the Society of the War of 1812. Richard C. Swander is general chairman.

Exercises beginning at 2 p. m. at Michigan avenue and Wacker drive will be continued at the Chicago Historical society museum, Clark street and North avenue. There will be an opening parade by the Queen Elizabeth Belgian drum and bugle corps; Fort Dearborn post, American Legion; the Camp Fire Girl color guard; the Polish Falcons Juvenile drum and bugle corps; the naval reserve rifle squad; the Girl Scout color guard, and the Polish Roman Catholic Boy Scouts drum and bugle corps.

Indian and pioneer ceremonials will be presented by the Chicago Boys club under Howard Tooley, and the Children's Civic theater under Julia R. Donaldson.

SWIMMER'S BODY RECOVERED.

The body of John Stanulis, 27 years old, 4602 South Fairfield avenue, was taken from the lake at 40th street yesterday by Lifeguard Jan Garcia. Stanulis disappeared Thursday after going swimming.

Actor in Ceremonial

Louis Hernandes of the Chicago Boys' club Indian tribe reherses for his part in program today commemorating anniversary of the Fort Dearborn massacre.

AUSTRIANS PICK A QUEEN FOR DAY OF CELEBRATION

Miss Ernestine Kleiber, 703 Willow street, was selected from among some 50 Chicago girls of Austrian ancestry yesterday to reign over Austrian day next Sunday.

The selection was made at the Germania club, 108 Germania place, in the presence of Chicago charter jubilee officials, who are sponsoring Austrian day, the Austrian and Hungarian consuls and representatives of various patriotic societies.

Miss Ottilia Propst, 4239 North Oakley boulevard, was awarded second place, and Miss Dora Winkler, 1414 Clybourne avenue, third place. Miss Kleiber, the winner, also will enter the "Miss Chicago" contest at the jubilee's Carnival of the Lakes Aug. 22-29.

Bandit Robs, Then Shoots Conductor on Street Car

Without provocation, a colored bandit shot John Costello, 51 years old, 6817 South Washtenaw avenue, a street car conductor, early today after he and a confederate had robbed him of $12. The wound is in the hip and not serious. The colored pair boarded Costello's street car at 39th street and Wentworth avenue, robbed him of his money, and then alighted at Federal and 39th streets. As the street car moved away, one of the men turned and fired at Costello.

Water Carnival to Recall Heyday of Sailing Ships

Chicago's lake front will assume a prominence the week of Aug. 22-29 that it has not had since the heyday of the sailing vessel. During that week it will be the setting for the Charter Jubilee's Carnival of the Lakes, which, authorities say, will be the most spectacular water show in the hundred year history of the city.

The site of the show will be the lagoon theater in Burnham park, directly east of Soldiers' field, but for the occasion the lagoon and Lake Michigan waters will be thick with watercraft.

Sailboats, their sails of white and scarlet and rainbow hues, will be moored there for the week. Cruisers, power boats, luxurious yachts, and canoes will be scattered among them.

Rubinoff Will Play.

With the romance of the waters as its theme, the carnival will deal especially with water sports, but there also will be a fur show, Indian dances, and the music of Rubinoff and his violin.

Because the lagoon theater, a remnant of the Century of Progress Exposition, seats 30,000 at most, a second theater is being constructed at the south end of the lagoon at approximately 16th street. This will care for another 30,000. Simultaneous performances will be given on the two stages.

The carnival will start at 8:30 o'clock each night with Neptune's parade. Floats will depict such scenes from history as Capt. Kidd and his buccaneers, Cleopatra's barge, Noah's Ark, Moby Dick, the fisherman and the genii, Robinson Crusoe, and others.

Following this an 82 foot serpent, with writhing green body and flaming jaws, will slide through the waters, followed by a host of grotesque, inflated animals. A parade of champion boats, with stunt flyers from the naval reserve air base at Glenview zooming overhead, will end the opening parade.

The program on the north stage will open with a million dollar fur show sponsored by the Associated Fur Industries of Chicago. An elaborate water review will follow, in which a water ballot of thirty-two girls wearing phosphorescent caps and gloves, will do rhythmic swimming. At the same time a ballet of twenty-four girls will appear on the stage as dancing, silvery mermaids, later simulating cascades and a storm on Lake Michigan.

Indians to Perform Dance.

At the same time, on the south stage, six Otomi Indians from Pahuatlan, remote Mexican village, will present their age-old ceremonial flying dance, in which they whirl eighty feet downward with the unwinding of their ropes.

A Miss Chicago contest, an amateur talent contest, surf board riding, canoe tilting, cutter racing and a coast guard capsize drill also will be given nightly. Fifteen minutes of fireworks shot off from Northerly Island will end the program.

BEG YOUR PARDON

An item yesterday said that Joseph Sterrett, 13 years old, arrested Friday as a leader of a car theft gang, lived at 3509 Jackson boulevard. Fred I. Simon, owner of the building at that address, says Sterrett has never lived there.

50,000 WITNESS WAR SPECTACLE AT GUARD SHOW

21 Planes Roar Down on Soldiers' Field.

BY WILLIAM O'NEIL.

The thunder of heavy guns and the roar of a massed flight of airplanes startled Chicagoans in and near the loop last night, but no shells or bombs were dropped into the city. The din came from the military show presented by Illinois National Guard in Soldiers' field and all of the ammunition used was blank.

Fifty thousand spectators cheered the smoothly presented demonstration of the state's military might. The show, which will be repeated tonight, was arranged and executed by the guardsmen, with the exception of a light tank drill by a detachment of the regular army's 1st cavalry from Fort Knox, Ky.

Spectators Gasp at Planes.

Twenty-one observation planes brought from the spectators gasps when they roared down on the stadium in a train of mile long power dives to start the show. From the stadium it appeared that some of them came within five or six hundred feet of the ground. The planes also executed mass flying maneuvers high above the neck craning crowd.

Next the tanks brought all eyes back to earth as they sped around the track encircling the field. Behind them came a parade of the other units which were to put on the show. For the opening acts the field was divided into four "rings" by wooden barriers.

Precision Drills Presented.

The 106th cavalry, including Chicago's Black Horse troop, the 122d Field Artillery's lancers, and the rodeo riders from the 124th Field artillery, opened the show proper. The Lancers and the Black Horse troop presented precision drills in the two center rings, while a cavalry detachment and the rodeo riders out-circused circus riders in the two end rings.

Seven infantry detachments and one of the Illinois naval militia then claimed the field. They demonstrated a foot lancer drill, firing of the 37 mm. howitzer [one pounder], erection of a bivouac camp of pup tents, the rifle manual, bayonet drill, firing of machine guns, guard mount, and setting up drill by the naval militiamen.

Intricate Maneuvers Executed.

A spectacular exhibition of horsemanship was put on by the "Red Devils," crack drill team of the 124th Field Artillery. Eight six horse teams, four of the teams pulling guns and the others ammunition caissons, went through intricate maneuvers in the center section of the field. Cavalrymen and artillerymen, meanwhile, demonstrated jumping at the ends of the field.

A reënactment of the Fort Dearborn massacre was done as part of the ceremonies commemorating the historical event, which occurred 125 years ago yesterday. A replica of the fort was constructed at the northern end of the field and the killing of Chicago's early settlers by Indians was shown by the 108th Combat engineers and part of the Black Horse troop.

Tank Takes a Hurdle.

The traditional precision drill of the cavalry was given a new treatment by the 1st cavalry. Their "mounts" were four light tanks and two armored scout cars, with accompanying motorcycles. Capt. H. A. Sears put this modern cavalry unit through a drill that he worked out for the show.

As a climax to the demonstration, one of the tanks, all of which can travel fifty miles an hour on their caterpillar treads, made a running "jump" from a slanting runway set in the middle of the field.

The roaring of heavy guns from the 202d Coast artillery, an anti-aircraft unit, and the 123d Field artillery, which has the biggest guns in the division, closed the show in a reenactment of the battle of the Argonne in France 19 years ago. During the battle, Capt. Wislon V. Newhall of the 33d division's [Illinois National Guards] observation squadron, was "shot down" in flames by the anti-aircraft guns.

WAR SHOW THRILLS THOUSANDS

A mounted soldier riding through a flaming loop was one of scores of stunts which entertained the throng that gathered in Soldiers' field last night for an exhibition by the Thirty-third division, Illinois National Guard. There will be another show tonight.

Son Refuses Job; Father Shoots Him; Is Arrested

Angered when his son, Joseph, 25 years old, refused to go to work on a job he had obtained for him, Andrew Ignaczak, 48, fired two shotgun charges at the young man yesterday in their home at 12612 Wallace street. Pellets from the gun struck Joseph in his left hip and in the side of his face. He was taken to the Roseland Community hospital, where it was said the wounds were not serious. The father was arrested.

MUSICIANS GIVE UP WHEN PLANES ROAR OVER PARK

Twenty-one military planes routed the Chicago Symphony orchestra last evening in a battle of sound at the Grant park band shell.

The orchestra, under the baton of Hans Lange, had just started its concert with a tender song from the opera "Mignon" when the planes roared over. They circled Soldiers' field, where a military show was in progress. then passed out of sight. Soon afterward the air fleet reappeared. Mr. Lange quickly revised his program to have the orchestra play a stirring processional in keeping with the military atmosphere. The planes drowned it out.

Mr. Lange tried once more, ordered Sousa's march, "The Stars and Stripes Forever." But the discord from the skies was too much, and the orchestra, after performing for only fifteen minutes, flew the white flag of intermission. Fifteen minutes later it was dark, and the planes retired. The orchestra resumed its concert, the forty-fifth of sixty-eight open air programs presented by the Chicago park district and Chicago Federation of Musicians.

PROBE 8 DEATHS; JURY WILL SCAN MRS. HAHN CASE

Ex-Teacher Enters Plea of Not Guilty.

Cincinnati, O., Aug. 14.—[Special.]—Shortly after Mrs. Anna Hahn, former German school teacher, pleaded not guilty of the murder of George Gsellman, 67 years old, this morning, police revealed they have additional information about another suspicious death and that they will present this case to the grand jury Monday.

Believing he is on the trail of "one of the biggest mass murderers in this country," Prosecutor Dudley M. Outcalt said his office and police are investigating eight deaths. Mrs. Hahn, 31, has admitted having known four of the victims and while she denied knowing Gsellman, police have learned that she was with him the night before he died, July 6.

Prosecutor Outcalt tonight made an appeal for the assistance of federal G-men in the case.

Faces Three Charges.

Three charges were faced by Mrs. Hahn when arraigned this morning, the murder charge, a grand larceny charge and a fugitive warant from Colorado Springs, Col., where one of her German acquaintances died two weeks ago today.

Lieut. George Schattle told acting Detective Chief Pat Hayes today that he had uncovered "startling" facts about the death of a German descendant not previously mentioned. This information brought from Outcalt the revelation that three deaths in addition to the original five were being investigated.

Examination of the viscera of Gsellman by City Chemist O. P. Behrer showed traces of metallic poison and a bottle containing the same poison was found in the home where Mrs. Hahn lived with her telegraph operator husband and son, 12, by a previous marriage in Vienna.

Home Bequeathed to Her.

The home had been bequeathed to Mrs. Hahn by Ernest Kohler, elderly teamster, who died under suspicious circumstances five years ago. Others whose deaths are being investigated include George Obendoerfer, 67, well-to-do cobbler, who died in Colorado Springs; Jacob Wagner, 78, who died June 3, and Albert Palmer, 72, who died March 27.

Admitting to Chief Hayes that she knew four of the men, Mrs. Hahn said she had administered to them in their last illnesses. She denied having given anything to them that was harmful, although all the deaths were under similar circumstances.

Police Get Bottle of Poison.

Mrs. Hahn's husband turned over to police a bottle of poison oil that was said to be fatal in doses of more than six drops. He had taken the oil from his wife and concealed it in his locker at his place of employment. Carroll Deming, a druggist, said he sold the oil to Mrs. Hahn three years ago.

Attorneys for Mrs. Hahn were prevented from obtaining her release on a writ of habeas corpus when the murder warant was served. Today she insisted she had nothing to fear and declared she was ready to face anything.

Police forwarded finger prints and phogtographs of Mrs. Hahn to Munich, Germany, and Vienna, where her first husband, a physician, died. She did not return for his funeral and police in both cities have been asked to check her record.

FLEEING BANDIT AUTO INJURES 3; ROBBERS CAUGHT

A midnight bandit chase through the south side in which the bandit car injured a boy and crashed into an automobile ended early yesterday with one robber in the Bridewell hospital and the other in jail.

John Foster, 27 years old, colored, 4235 Michigan avenue, was driving the stolen bandit car. Charles Stewart, 27, colored, 4100 Calumet avenue, was riding with him.

Detectives Thomas Burns and George Carey of the Stanton avenue station started the chase when they sighted the bandit car, driven by Foster, at 31st and Dearborn streets. The bandits increased their speed and at 36th and Dearborn streets struck and injured Fred McDuffie, 13, colored, 3540 Dearborn street.

At Root and State streets Stewart jumped out and was captured. Foster, doubling back on South Park avenue, sideswiped another car at Oakwood boulevard. The stolen car turned over and pinned him in the wreckage. Frank Hubert, 19, colored, 3650 Dearborn street, and Chester Fitzhugh, 18, colored, 126 East 36th street, occupants of the other car, were injured.

FAMILY FRIEND ADMITS LURING AWAY GIRL, 14

Robert Kuhns, 35 years old, who was a friend of the Schuessler family at 2250 Milwaukee avenue, admitted to the Shakespeare avenue police yesterday that he lured Edith Schuessler, 14 years old, away from home Wednesday and kept her with him until early yesterday.

Robert Kuhns.

They stayed in a Gary, Ind., tourist camp Wednesday night and spent the next night in a hotel at 6733 Stony Island avenue. Reading about the search for the girl, he took her to Racine, Wis., Friday by hitch-hiking. Then, he said, she felt so lonely that he brought her back to Evanston, gave her a dime to call her mother, and left her in the Church street station of the North Shore line in the suburb.

Kuhns was arrested at the home of his sister, Mrs. Helen Blank, 1526 East 65th street. He said he lived at 2727 Prindiville street and was a former WPA watchman. Mrs. Ella Schuessler, the girl's mother, told police she would sign a complaint against Kuhns charging him with rape. He will be taken to the showup at the detective bureau today. The girl was taken to the juvenile home pending further investigation.

A CRAWLER INNER FOR APARTMENT THIEVES CAUGHT

Lee Andre, who is 14 years old and slim, told state's attorney's police yesterday that he hired himself out for $2 a job to William Guzan, 23, of 1657 Huron street, and William Jaramski, 19, of 1717 Warren boulevard, to help their gang loot apartments and houses.

Lee said he was the gang's crawler-inner. Guzan or Jaramski would boost him up and he would wriggle through the transoms.

Two other teen-age boys arrested with Guzan and Jaramski as members of the gang also were questioned. They are Steve Gineris, 15, of 1846 Warren boulevard, and Dennis Brennan, 14, of 1724 Warren boulevard.

SCANDAL? O, NO! ALL IS HARMONY AGAIN IN BERWYN

Jail Guest's Story Jibes with His Keeper's.

Lieut. George Stava was a gracious and tactful host. But Edward Koncil was a rather inconsiderate guest.

That's really the inside story of Mr. Koncil's three escapes from the Berwyn jail, both of them said yesterday—after uncrossing their fingers.

Mr. Koncil is the jail's in-again-out-again guest prisoner and Lieut. Stava is the fellow whose unpleasant duty it was to keep him locked up. Although they've scarcely been speaking since the state's attorney's office began looking into the way Mr. Koncil wouldn't stay locked up, they beamed at each other yesterday and offered the latest story as the honest truth to Wilbert F. Crowley, first assistant state's attorney, and John S. Boyle, assistant.

The prosecutors, who have heard so many stories about the case now that they really don't know what to believe, didn't say they believed this one. But Mr. Crowley said he had no evidence on which to bring charges against Lieut. Stava.

Mr. Koncil, a paroled robber and confessed burglar, nevertheless will have to face action by the state's attorney's office on burglary complaints.

The Latest Story.

The latest story is that Lieut. Stava winked when Mr. Koncil escaped the first time and the second. But the third time, both of them solemnly aver, Mr. Koncil actually sawed the bars in two and departed.

As Mr. Crowley tells the story that Mr. Koncil and Lieut. Stava tell him, the lieutenant wanted to clean up Berwyn. Mr. Koncil said that if the lieutenant would just let him wander around on the outside Mr. Koncil would get evidence on murders and robberies and things.

Those Stories? Just Stories!

All Mr. Koncil's stories about the police being bribed, both he and Lieut. Stava said yesterday, were just stories.

About escape No. 1 on March 27: Well, Lieut. Stava took Mr. Koncil downtown to federal authorities to be questioned, and Mr. Koncil did a vanishing act. But he telephoned back that he'd like to stay out all night and Stava said O. K. The next night, the same thing happened, and the day after that, Mr. Koncil came back.

About escape No. 2 on April 29: Mr. Koncil told the lieutenant he could solve a murder case if the lieutenant would unlock his cell so he could go out and find the gun. Lieut. Stava did. Mr. Koncil called up frequently and reported, but he got rather unpleasant when Lieut. Stava kept asking him to come back and said he didn't want to. Eventually Mr. Koncil stopped calling back and the lieutenant didn't hear of him until June 30. When the lieutenant found out where his guest was, he hurried out and arranged for Mr. Koncil to say he'd escaped, and then locked Mr. Koncil up again.

About escape No. 3 last Wednesday: Honestly, Eddie [that's Mr. Koncil] sawed those bars in two. They may not look it, but Eddie and Lieut. Stava will give you their word. By that time, Eddie was becoming a better guest. He even left George [that's the lieutenant] a note saying: "Sorry."

BANDIT PAROLED IN MITCHELL ROBBERY IS SEIZED BY POLICE

Nick Maentanis, whose parole from prison Oct. 16, 1935, was termed a miscarriage of justice by State's Attorney Charles E. Mason of Lake county, was held yesterday at the detective bureau with Charles English, who has a police record. Sergt. Joseph Buchanan, head of a detective bureau squad, said the two are being questioned in connection with holdups of several race betting rooms.

Nick Maentanis.

Maentanis, who is 26 years old, lives at 1439 Fillmore street, and says he is a peddler, was one of five youths convicted of invading the home of the William H. Mitchells in Lake Forest during a party and robbing the Mitchells and their guests of $150,000 in money and jewelery and then shooting several times at two policemen.

Maentanis was sentenced to prison Feb. 23, 1932, and was paroled after he had served three years seven months and 21 days of a sentence of one year to life.

DEWEY INDUCED TO SEEK OFFICE BY LA GUARDIA

Expect Vice Prosecutor to Bolster Ticket.

BY WILLIAM FULTON.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 14.—[Special.]—Thomas E. Dewey, youthful prosecutor of this city's multitudinous racketeers, yielded to the pleadings of Mayor Fiorello H. La Guardia today and agreed to run for the Republican nomination for district attorney of New York county.

Thomas E. Dewey.

Dewey's entry into the campaign bolstered hopes of La Guardia supporters that the mayor would be reëlected this fall. The prosecutor had held off on his decision for some time because he wanted to be assured that La Guardia, who has referred to Republicans contemptuously on several occasions, would make a real bid for the mayoralty nomination in the party primary. The mayor gave him that assurance.

La Guardia Seeks Votes.

The successful record of convictions Dewey has chalked up against the vice ring leaders under Charles "Lucky" Luciano and other racketeering elements is expected to count for thousands of votes in the primaries, some of which will be drawn to the mayor, according to the hope of the La Guardia camp. The mayor's board of strategy strove with might and main to gain Dewey's favorable decision.

La Guardia, a Fusion-Labor candidate, is pitted against Senator Royal S. Copeland, an anti-Roosevelt Democrat, for the Republican nomination. Dewey is an unadulterated Republican.

On the other side, Tammany ranks are split with Copeland also running for the Democratic nomination against Supreme Court Justice Jeremiah T. Mahoney, a Roosevelt supporter. The President is violently opposed to Copeland, who fought him on the Supreme court packing bill and other administration measures.

Labor Backs Dewey.

The American Labor party in New York, composed of members of the C. I. O. unions under John L. Lewis, indorsed Dewey's candidacy. It previously had placed its stamp of approval on La Guardia. Many of the labor group's ranks are drawn from the Socialist party, the remnants of which have designated Norman Thomas as their candidate for mayor. Thomas is not expected to poll more than 20,000 or 25,000 votes.

In announcing his candidacy, Dewey declared that his racket investigations had disclosed "an alliance of long standing between crime and certain elements of Tammany Hall," which controls the district attorney's office.

"For twenty years Tammany Hall has controled criminal prosecutions in this county and for twenty years the power of the criminal underworld has grown," said Dewey. "This alliance must be broken."

PROOF OF CORRUPTION IN DEMOCRATIC BOOK SALE SENT CUMMINGS

Washington, D. C., Aug. 14.—[Special.]—A huge bundle was thumped on the desk of Attorney General Homer Cummings today. It contained a mass of affidavits and exhibits in support of House Minority Leader Bertrand H. Snell's charge that the Democratic national committee has violated the corrupt practices act in sandbag sales of presidentially autographed 1936 Democratic campaign books.

The stack of evidence was Snell's answer to Cummings' assertion at a press conference last Wednesday that he had not received any evidence from the veteran New York representative which would support the request for an inquiry to determine whether the corrupt practices act had been violated.

With the bundle Snell sent a letter which dared Cummings to laugh off the charge.

"In my view," Representative Snell wrote Cummings, "this is not a joke and no respectable official of the administration can laugh it off."

APPROPRIATION FOR AMERICANISM

By CALEB

JUST before the 74th Congress closed, it appropriated $200,000. Little has been heard of it because a trifle of $200,000 is a meager mite to a nation which has become accustomed to appropriations in the billions.

Nevertheless, this $200,000—if luck be with the nation—may prove to have been a very worthwhile trifle. It is being spent in connection with the Constitution Sesquicentennial Commission. The main celebration will commence on September 17, 1937, at Independence Hall in Philadelphia. It will continue until April 30, 1939.

It is hardly to be believed that any kind of celebration can grip men strongly enough to cause them to pause and fully appreciate their political heritage in this country. But it might happen. The effort is worth while.

How great are the benefits we have realized under our constitutional form of government? How many of us intimately enough know or remember the past to be able to project the effect of further benefits into the future?

We so readily forget how far we have come that it is difficult to be confident we will yet go far. An aged, local university professor tells me he can well remember general public protests against labor which wanted an eight-hour day instead of a nine-hour day—and no decrease in pay! A popular view at the time was: "It's preposterous! For labor to want nine hours' pay for eight hours' work is precisely the same as stealing."

We have come a long ways from that day and view. If the Constitution Sesquicentennial Commission can induce people to measure progress against the past as well as against their most vaulted hopes and aspirations, it will prove worth while.

Two hundred thousand dollars isn't much to spend for the encouragement and stimulation of good Americanism when so many millions are being spent in the direction of un-American practices, threats to constitutional government, and subversive propaganda.

It is time staunch Americanism did something to promote liberalism and to stay radicalism. Every American should come to realize two things: (1) how devotedly our ancestors struggled to give us the unique form of government we enjoy and (2) how great—and unique in the world—are the benefits which have already been fashioned under our Constitution.

Bird Life On The Farm

Bob Becker's interesting article about the Tribune experimental farm at Wheaton tells about many wild birds which are seen there—the sandpipers, killdeers, muscovys, egrets, Canada geese, kingfishers, and others. Read about them in the farm article in today's Tribune want ad section.

ANGER AT BLACK NOMINATION TO COURT SWELLS

about 30 per cent of the total vote cast.

In 1926, when Gov. Al Smith of New York loomed as the probable nominee of the Democrats for President in 1928, Black's scheme was to raise the religious issue.

Lynching Stand Retold.

How Black's vote on the constitutionality of the anti-lynching bill would be cast as a member of the Supreme court may be determined from the following remarks made by him and culled from the congressional record of April 29, 1935. Southern senators were conducting a filibuster against the bill at that time.

"I claim," Black told the senate, "that this bill could well be designated a bill to increase lynching, as a bill to suppress labor unions, as a bill to punish and prosecute sherifs and peace officers who fail to perform satisfactorily the duty which owners and operators might claim they should perform in the case of a strike. I assert that there never has been a self respecting court in this nation that could hold to the contrary of the views which I have expressed with reference to this particular measure.

Finds Flaw in Amendment.

"I assert that if the bill should become a law, it would have an accentuating effect like unto that of the fourteenth amendment.

"There were many who believed it was necessary to adopt the fourteenth amendment in order to protect colored citizens of the country from an infringement of their rights.

"Some were honest and sincere in that belief. They believed that the amendment would serve to effectuate such a purpose. I submit to the senate that if at that time it could have been known that over a period of ten years, out of 529 cases coming under the amendment, 509 would have been decided in a way to protect vested interests in their predatory special privileges in this nation, the amendment would not have had easy sailing.

Paradox in Enforcement.

"It certainly would be a paradoxical situation if the federal government, not founded upon the idea of enacting laws with reference to crime which affect individuals within a state, could have given to it the responsibility of sending to jail the officials of the communities that have been fixed with the responsibility because their failed to enforce the law for which they alone were responsible.

"If the law should be carried to its logical conclusion Tammany could not supply enough officers in New York City; they would exhaust their entire roster in three years, because the remainder would go to the penitentiary."

Black's opinion of the court to which he has been nominated by the President was expressed by him in this speech in the bitterly ironic tones for which he is famous.

Condemns United States Jurisdiction.

Condemning the provision of the bill which provides that jurisdiction in lynching cases should be taken from state courts and given to federal courts, he declared:

"Jurisdiction is to be given to the federal court; this great haven of refuge, the federal court; this great repository of knowledge and wisdom and justice, the federal court; this great safeguard presided over by men appointed for life by an individual, who are so much better qualified to preserve the rights of the people than is a court presided over by a man elected by the people themselves."

In Favor of Election—Then.

Just how far from Black's mind at the time was the possibility that he might some day be nominated to the highest federal court may be determined by his next words:

"If I had my way, the constitution of the United States would be amended so as to provide that federal judges should be elected, because I believe in a democracy and I believe in the election of judges by the people themselves. So far as I am concerned, I am perfectly willing to trust to the justice of the people rather than to the justice merely of judges appointed for life."

COMMENT FROM LEADING PAPERS ON BLACK NOMINATION TO HIGH COURT

[Editorial comment from newspapers in key cities of the country was largely critical of the appointment of Senator Hugo L. Black to the Supreme court. Some of the comment follows.]

BALTIMORE [MD.] SUN [IND. DEM.]—Mr. Roosevelt wished a new member of the Supreme court whose record indicated that he would have no serious constitutional difficulties with any kind of administration legislation, and, of course, he also wished such an appointment to go through the senate with little or no plain speech. . . . However, in view of everything, it is also gratifying, indeed, that Mr. Roosevelt does not have, at one time, the appointment of six new members of the Supreme court.

NEW YORK SUN [IND.]—It will be better for the country and for all disappointed aspirants if the names of those passed over in favor of the Alabama senator are never disclosed. Indicative of Senator Black's lack of judicial qualities is the record of the lobby investigating committee under his chairmanship, when an inquiry speedily became an inquisition. . . . It is deeply to be regretted that the President has selected for a vacancy in the highest court in the land one who has never displayed in ten years in the senate the faintest trace of the judicial temperament.

THE NEW YORK TIMES [IND. DEM.]—The national reputation of Senator Black, selected by the President as a justice of the Supreme court, has been wholly made as a bitter and uncompromising advocate of extreme administration measures. His attitude in pressing these bills has been almost evangelical. He has revealed in debate, on the one hand, a fine social consciousness based on the will to right the condition of the poor and oppressed, but on the other—punitive attitude toward the talented and the fortunate.

BOSTON [MASS.] GLOBE [IND.]—The feelings of the south must be somewhat mixed as the name of Mr. Black is considered. . . . Several times it has happened that a new man on the court has modified his attitude after taking his place. If Mr. Black becomes an associate justice he will find himself in the company of three very vigorous liberal minds. It is therefore unsafe to predict that he will be toned down by being a member of the tribunal.

CINCINNATI [O.] ENQUIRER [IND. DEM.]—When he could have elevated to the Supreme court bench a great jurist and also a "liberal," the President chose to select a political supporter with the most ordinary judicial background.

CLEVELAND [O.] PLAIN DEALER [IND. DEM.]—It is strictly an administration appointment. One's reaction to it is bound to be dictated by one's opinion of the administration. With Black on the court the administration will be assured—so far as assurance is possible in such a case—of at least one vote in support of any Roosevelt measure whose constitutionality is assailed.

HARTFORD [CONN.] COURANT [REP.]—The President appears to have made a decision based not so much on judicial as on political considerations. A New Dealer who has supported every measure handed down from the White House, Mr. Black may be counted to vote "yes" as faithfully on the bench as he has on the floor of the senate.

INDIANAPOLIS [IND.] STAR [IND. REP.]—The appointment of Senator Black confirms the judgment of those senators who fought so valiantly and succeeded in blocking the President's request for permission to name as many as six justices. Senatorial approval will not alter the fact that the selection is of the kind the defenders of the court envisioned when they declined to grant the President authority to make over the court to his own liking.

KANSAS CITY [MO.] STAR [IND.]—The Supreme court appointment of Senator Black suggests to the country the extremely fortunate circumstance that it is only one and not six names that the White House has to submit for the high tribunal. If the President wanted a spokesman on the Supreme bench, he would have it in Black.

LOUISVILLE [KY.] COURIER-JOURNAL [DEM.]—The President has been consistent in his appointment of Senator Hugo L. Black. Senator Black has been ardent and aggressive in his support of all the administration policies, including those nullified by the court to which he is named.

MONTGOMERY [ALA.] ADVERTISER [DEM.]—Black will be a judge of the Holmes-Brandeis point of view, and that is why Roosevelt appointed him. But he will justify the association of his name with Holmes and Brandeis, not by yessing his way through life but by a strictly intellectual performance. The Advertiser, which in his two races for the senate never supported him, feels especially free to say as much.

NEW ORLEANS [LA.] TIMES-PICAYUNE [IND. DEM.]—Senator Black has been an ardent supporter of the Roosevelt administration and his policies. Conceivably, however, his ardent support of such legislation as senator may prove an embarrassment to him as Supreme court justice.

MOBILE [ALA.] REGISTER [DEM.]—The appointment of Senator Hugo L. Black to the Supreme court naturally came as a surprise. But it was no surprise that a man of his type was named by Mr. Roosevelt to the influential post. The Alabama senator has shown himself to be nothing short of a "yes man" for the White House, eager to do the administration bidding. He is a man who apparently respects every wish of Mr. Roosevelt. Mr. Black has been in wholehearted support of the administration and the White House. Therefore the chief executive might as well have appointed himself to the bench.

NEW YORK HERALD TRIBUNE [IND. REP.]—Not even those closest to the President on Capitol hill dreamed that he would make the defiant gesture of nominating Senator Black to the Supreme court. Senator Black's record at the bar offers not the slightest qualification for the high office to which the President would elevate him. The nomination serves notice to congress and to the country that the President means to take no chances. He stands accused of wanting to pack the Supreme court.

NEW YORK WORLD-TELEGRAM [IND.]—Hugo Black has been an effective prosecutor of those he believed to be overprivileged and a fearless champion of those he believed to be oppressed. He has been a militantly liberal United States senator. What he will be as a justice of the Supreme court remains to be seen.

BIRMINGHAM [ALA.] AGE HERALD [DEM.]—No news that has come to Alabama in many a day has produced a greater conflict and confusion of emotion and judgment than President Roosevelt's nomination of Senator Black to become a justice of the United States Supreme court. Unbounded exultation contrasted with grim resentment. There was nothing less than alarm at the thought of Senator Black on the high court, but in such feeling there was intermingled relief at his prospective passing from the senate. We fear he may not prove the great judge.

OMAHA [NEB.] WORLD HERALD [IND.]—President Roosevelt strips for a fight to the finish. There is to be no yielding, no compromising of his purpose to carry his party and the country to the far left and to make the court an adjunct to his administration. . . . It is with bared teeth the President flings his nomination in the face of his foes.

SAN FRANCISCO [CAL.] CHRONICLE [IND. REP.]—Senator Black has already committed himself on the very measures he has been appointed to the court to sustain and that commitment is official. If he had made it as counsel in a case he would disqualify himself for participating in a decision on the same question in the court.

ST. LOUIS [MO.] GLOBE DEMOCRAT [IND.]—If Senator Black goes to the Supreme court, the administration will have a staunch ally where it needs him most. In naming Senator Black the President has given sure sign how he would "pack" the high court were he granted that authority.

SEE ROOSEVELT IN FINISH FIGHT FOR PARTY RULE

Serves Notice with Black Court Appointment.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 14.—[Special.]—Appointment of the radically minded Senator Hugo L. Black [D., Ala.] to the Supreme court is universally recognized as notice of a fight to the finish between President Roosevelt and the conservative Democrats for control of their party.

When the President capitulated in his undertaking to pack the Supreme court Postmaster General James A. Farley held out the olive branch to the victorious opposition and prophesied that the party would be united when election day comes around. Then the senate Democrats sat down together at a harmony dinner.

Some of the would-be harmonizers went away from the harmony dinner with an uncomfortable feeling that something was wrong with the picture. For not only had the President failed to come to the dinner but in his letter to the assembled group he made no overtures of peace to his intra-party foes.

No Mood for Harmonizing.

Within 48 hours came the answer to the puzzle, in the selection of Senator Black for the Supreme court vacancy. Mr. Roosevelt, it was perceived, was in no mood for harmonizing. Beaten in his attempt to pack the court with six new justices guaranteed to uphold the legislation he initiates, the President had appointed to the court a rabid supporter of his social and economic innovations who already by his votes in the senate has pronounced the Roosevelt policies constitutional.

The Democratic foes of the court packing bill, in fact all the conservative Democrats, felt that they had been slapped in the face by an irate President and leader of their party.

See Third Term Plans.

Some of the conservatives were convinced by this development that the President is already making his plans to seek a third term with the backing of the radical wing of the Democratic party if he succeeds in defeating the conservatives in their effort to wrest control from his grasp.

The conservatives, aided and abetted by Vice President Garner, are already in revolt against the President and his radical policies. That is the reason for the troubles the President is experiencing in getting through congress his wage and hour, housing, reorganization, sugar and other legislation. The soundness of Roosevelt measures is being questioned by an increasing number of Democrats. So serious is the Democratic backsliding that the President's control of the Seventy-Fifth congress before the end of its first session is open to question.

The first showdown between the President and his conservative opponents will take place in the New York City mayoralty contest. In the primaries next month the Democrats will divide between the pro-Roosevelt candidate, Jeremiah T. Mahoney and the anti-Roosevelt candidate, Senator Royal S. Copeland. The Republicans are asked to choose between the pro-Roosevelt Mayor Florella H. La Guardia and the anti-Roosevelt Copeland.

This election is of crucial importance to the President in his warfare with the conservative wing of his party. The situation is surcharged with political dynamite. If the Roosevelt faction should emerge from the contest with control of the Democratic party in New York City, it would be able to dictate the nomination for governor next year and to control the delegation to the Democratic national convention in 1940. If the anti-Roosevelt faction gains control the conservatives, with the prospect of New York and the southern states in the bag, will have got a running start toward beating the President in the 1940 convention.

Flynn Calls on Roosevelt.

Last Sunday Boss Ed Flynn of the Bronx visited Mr. Roosevelt at Hyde Park, presumably to discuss administration help for Mahoney. The next day, however, Senator Copeland made so much political capital of the incident that the President denied he is taking any part in the New York election.

The next trial of strength will occur next year in the congressional election. Up for renomination will be seven Democrats who opposed the court packing bill: Clark of Missouri, George of Georgia, Gillette of Iowa, Lonergan of Connecticut, McCarran of Nevada, Tydings of Maryland, and Van Nuys of Indiana.

Beauty Keeps Fit

Los Angeles, Cal., Aug. 14.—[Special.]—Despite charges of professionalism, Phyllis Randall today hoped to turn her title of "Miss California" to "Miss America" in the national bathing beauty contest at Atlantic City in September. Challenges of irate mothers whose daughters lost in the state contest were met by Miss Randall with the admission that she was Frances Paxton, a professional dancer, but that she is not under contract and that her marriage to Dave Gould, dance director, was annulled when they never lived together.

30,000 HURLED INTO REBEL PUSH ON SANTANDER

Villages Seized; Italians Aid "Supreme Drive."

HENDAYE, Franco-Spanish Frontier, Aug. 14.—(AP)—The insurgent radio station at Salamanca said tonight the Spanish rebels' "big push" to capture Santander and the remainder of government territory in northwest Spain has resulted in capture of several villages in north Palencia province.

The broadcast, from Generalissimo Francisco Franco's headquarters city, said heavy losses had been inflicted on government troops.

Insurgent officers at Irun said three columns, one of which was Italian, were participating in the "supreme drive" to eliminate all government opposition in northwest Spain. They said 30,000 men were engaged, supported by a large number of tanks and armored cars.

The Italian column started from the vicinity of Soncillo along the main Burgos-Santander roads. One Spanish column was operating from Aguila de Campo and the other from San Julian Musquest east of Bilbao.

Loyalists Gain Near Brunete.

In the Madrid sector, government troops regained a mile of lost ground toward the war torn town of Brunete, 15 miles west of Madrid, in a surprise attack.

Government sources said the insurgents were still holding strong positions guarding Brunete and at Villanueva de la Canada, five miles north.

On the Teruel front east of Madrid, Gen. Franco's men forced government troops to evacuate more positions. The insurgents were driving southward trying to cut off inland Madrid from coastal Valencia.

Insurgents said they had successfully defended their eastern Spanish communications between Saragossa and Teruel against a prolonged attack by Catalan troops.

Rebels Bomb Airdrome.

An announcement in Valencia by the loyalist defense ministry said government aviation had bombed railroad stations at Siguenza, Aranda, and Logrono woods, west of Jadraque. The ministry said insurgents, with considerable artillery and aircraft, attacked several sectors on the northern front. Government positions at Echeandia were bombarded intensively but government troops held fast.

BURGLARS RAID EVANSTON HOMES OF VACATIONERS

Burglars had a busy and profitable time in Evanston last night. They ransacked three homes, and tried to break into another. The amount of their loot is not known.

The thieves first entered the home of Louis I. Hirsch, 618 Sheridan square, president of the Hirsch Clothing company, Chicago. The Hirschs are on vacation in Wisconsin. The burglars went thoroughly through the house, and Ella Ross, the maid, who discovered the looting, could not compute the loss.

Next the yeggs broke into the home of Albert E. Norman, 1007 Maple avenue, president of the Lake Shore Motors company, and stole an undetermined amount of valuables. The Normans are also away. The third victim was George W. Anderson, 2444 Asbury avenue. Jewelry, silverware, and clothing were taken. The attempted burglary was at the home of G. W. Boot, 813 Sherman avenue, a civil engineer.

NATIONS HAVING GERMANIC BLOCS WARNED BY NAZIS

Minorities Are Dynamite, Says Interior Chief.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Aug. 14.—Wilhelm Frick, Nazi minister of interior, today issued a warning to foreign countries in which German groups are settled and form a minority. The statesmen of these countries "always will be faced with a conflict raging in the minorities now, between their German racial feelings and an honest desire to be dutiful to the state ruling them," Frick said.

He was speaking at the annual meeting of the National Institute for Germans Living Abroad, being held in Stuttgart. Delegates represented German nationals living in foreign countries and foreigners proud of their German ancestry. They came from all parts of the world.

Glorifies Move to Unify People.

Frick glorified the Nazis and the Stuttgart institute for trying to unify Germans at home and those settled abroad. He accused especially the eastern states of Europe of trying to assimilate their German minorities. He warned that "failure to solve the problem of the national minorities provides dangerous dynamite for an international conflagration.

Frick said he believed the solution lies in the "unconditional preservation and furthering of Germans abroad by the German people."

Must Remain True to Germany.

"They are able to fulfill their duty to the state in which they live and honor the initial motherland only if they remain true to their traditions, their efficiency, their love of order," he said. "They must coöperate at the same time for the progress and culture of the nations with whom they live."

How strongly Nazi Germany objects to the assimilation of Germans in foreign countries was seen in the semi-official newspaper Der Angriff, which denounced Jews as a sinister influence "undermining the desire of Germans to resist assimilation when they have settled in foreign countries."

FALL FROM LADDER FATAL.

Geneseo, Ill., Aug. 14.—[Special.]—William Cruse, 76, was killed this morning when he fell from a ladder to a cement sidewalk while painting a house. He was the father-in-law of "Baby Doll" Jacobson, former leading hitter with the St. Louis Browns in the American league.

THE WAR BOWL IN ASIA.

In the upper right hand corner of this page is a three column map of China and surrounding territory showing the scene of recent military activities and the conditions as they seem to stand at present.

Japan's precipitous movement south to take Peiping and Tientsin and the province of Hopei and possibly Shantung within its area of control or possession has naturally caused a great deal of speculation. The Japanese advance upon China in recent years since the signing of the nine power protective treaty has all the characteristics of inevitability and relentlessness.

The map and some explanations regarding it may show with a degree of reasonableness why Japan has become so aggressive at the present moment. Shortly before the movement against Peiping and the territory south, Japan and Russia had a frontier incident on their common boundary of the Amur river.

The soviets were accused of taking an island claimed by Japan. One of the soviet gunboats was sunk and two others chased away by the Japanese fire. There was a tense moment when the Siberian soviet army was reported as out of control of Moscow diplomacy and about to attack in force. Nevertheless there was a settlement which seemed to adjust the difficulties, but the soviets then sent their airmen on the first spectacular flight from Moscow to the United States, that flight being regarded as a little message to Tokio intimating what could be done from Siberia on a nonstop return visit of bombers to Japanese cities.

The incident on the Amur was significant as relating to what many people believe to be the inevitable conflict gathering head in the far east. It, however, had been preceded a number of months by a much more significant development, which began with the strange kidnaping of Chiang Kai-shek by the son of the old war lord of Manchuria. He was released and his captor, Chang, returned with him to Nanking to take any punishment the national government wanted to visit on him for this rash and astonishing act.

It appeared later that out of this mystic adventure the Chinese communists had come to an understanding with the national government and had ended their ten year war against it, with a common agreement against Fascist Japan. That is, the Chinese Reds had done exactly what the Spanish Reds did when they accepted the leadership of the moderate socialistic government and became one of the most substantial of the many conflicting elements in the government trenches against Franco.

The Spanish communists submerged their own political principles to the necessities of a popular front campaign against the Fascist forces of Franco, Italy, and Germany. Russia, although surrounded by difficulties, gave such aid as was physically possible to this popular front line of defense. We don't hear much about Russian intervention in Spain just now, but formerly there were many reports of the excellent soviet aircraft in operation and of some Russian troops on the battlefields.

The map shows Mongolia and Sinkiang in sovietized territory. The arrow running through the province of Kansu points to the concentration of the Chinese soviets in Shensi. These Chinese soviet troops have been referred to generally as guerrillas and bandits, but better information reveals them as being a well disciplined and fairly well equipped army of probably 250,000 men.

The first home of the Chinese soviets was in the provinces of Fukien, Chekiang, and Kiangsi. Five major offensives conducted by Chiang Kai-shek were needed to dislodge them, and it is reported that in connection with these military operations the Red army captured or destroyed 300,000 of Chiang's best troops. When the Reds feared that they were about to be surrounded they broke their way out and made one of the greatest shifts ever known to military history, marching 8,000 miles before they found their new home in the northwest provinces, where they are in direct contact with the Russian soviets with a Red corridor through Kansu.

The peace these Chinese Reds made with the National government of Nanking, having as its announced purpose joint resistance of Japan, might in itself have been sufficient to tell the Tokio military government that from then on time ran against it and not for it. The Red army, whatever its military effectiveness or its weaknesses might be, was on the flank of any Japanese movement toward Nanking. The National government also has recently completed the hurried construction of a railroad from the port of Canton to Hankow in the interior. It has been assumed that Canton would be the only port that the Chinese might hope to keep open in case of a blockade, and that hope would be based upon the proximity of Hongkong to Canton and the presence at Hongkong of the British fleet. British Hongkong is a reshipping point for most of Canton's trade.

The difficulties of transport from the soviet territory of Mongolia and Sinkiang into the center of China are no doubt very great. There are old caravan routes and there are some railroads, recently constructed, approaching Sinkiang. The English have thought this railroad construction was aimed at India, but Moscow does not regard Great Britain as a natural enemy and its interest in India is far less than its interest in China.

A well informed military writer, Lieut. Col. V. Kolossovsky, who has made a study in particular of Red army dispositions in Asia, says: "Whereas on the western frontiers and in the far east soviet [the territory marked on the map as U. S. R. R. Siberia] Russia follows a defensive policy, in central Asia she is preparing deliberately and systematically an extensive plan of attack." It cannot be denied that the offensive has been crowned by singular success, for today two vast territories, Mongolia and Sinkiang, are under her influence; two territories through which Russians penetrate into the heart of Asia up to the boundaries of Tibet and India.

Sinkiang, or Chinese Turkestan, says Col. Kolossovsky, has long been a field of activity for soviet generals, one of whom, Gorev, is now said to be the right hand adviser of Gen. Miaja of Madrid. The Russians are engaged in extensive railroad developments and the Japanese may be convinced that unless they soon gain control of the National government of China they may delay until the opportunity will be lost and China fall completely under Moscow influence.

Another reason for making an aggressive campaign against China at this time may be found in Russia itself. The opposition to Stalin is of unknown proportions, but something of its importance may be indicated by the numerous executions which reveal the dictator's dread of enemies he thinks surround him on all sides and work against the U. S. S. R. as agents of Japan and Germany. The execution of the eight Russian generals, including Marshal Tukhackevsky, may have persuaded the Japanese army staf that the soviet army is completely disorganized by resentment and suspicion. All American and English writers who had known Tukhackevsky were impressed by his sincerity, his patriotism, his devotion to the communist cause, and his military brilliance. It is not conceivable to them that he would have turned traitor in conspiracy with the German general staf.

Japan, being in military alliance with Germany against Russia, may believe that Russia cannot recover its domestic equilibrium for a number of years. Several of the old bolsheviks are still awaiting trial after an unaccountable delay following their arrest early in the year, a delay explainable only on the suspicion that they have refused to confess. A nation in such a reign of terror might not be regarded as a formidable enemy to be encountered in China.

A BILL FOR LOWER WAGES.

Dr. Charles F. Roos, at one time director of research for NRA, says the wages and hours bill now before congress will, if it is enacted, defeat the purposes for which it is intended. The law will not create jobs, he says; it will destroy them. Instead of bringing about an increase in wages "it is my judgment that this bill will tend to level down the present wage scales."

How inexorably these consequences follow was suggested a day or so ago when the Burlington railroad announced that it had been forced to lay off 300 men and to cancel orders for materials. Minimum wages of a number of classes of railroad employés were recently raised. To meet the increase the railroad finds itself obliged to economize at the expense of its own working force and those employed in producing the supplies it would otherwise have bought. Manufacturing industries faced by the same problem must solve it in much the same way. An arbitrary increase in the wages of unskilled workers is likely to lead to immediate loss of employment by many of them and to the replacement of others by automatic machinery.

Dr. Roos ought to know what he is talking about. He mopped up after NRA. He knows, perhaps better than any other man in the country, what NRA was intended to do and how far it failed of its goal. He recognizes, as all analysts must, that the present bill repeats the essential fallacies of NRA. He opposes the Black-Connery bill in the expectation that like causes will produce like consequences.

The administration has nourished a myth that a cruel court killed NRA in the flower of its youth. The fact is that NRA was dead long before the court gave it decent burial. The scheme had broken down. The failure resulted from the economic fallacies which Dr. Roos reviewed in his recent remarks in Washington, and from the political immaturity of those who devised the administrative scheme. By the time the court invalidated the act NRA was already a dead letter. Business quite generally ignored it. Labor had learned to expect nothing from it. All that remained was a costly burocracy.

The present bill incorporates the fundamental economic errors of NRA. The government once more is going to fix minimum wages and once more is going to set up differentials for various industries and various localities. The instrumentality is not quite the same but the problem is no less complex than it was and the solutions reached can be no more workable. The administrative machine is actually less practical. Under NRA each industry set its own wage and hour provisions. Under the new bill one board of only five members is to do the job for every factory in every industry in the whole country.

The task is beyond human capacity. Those who think that the economic organization of a great industrial and agricultural nation is a simple thing, capable of being altered overnight to fit any one's pattern of what it ought to be, will favor legislative experiment of this sort. Those who know from study and experience how intricate the economic interconnections are, how easily they can be disarranged, and how disastrous such disarrangements can be to individuals and to society, will oppose legislation of this kind. NRA failed because it attempted the impossible. It can be predicted confidently that if this bill is enacted, it, too, will fail to achieve its objectives. The probability is overwhelming, as Dr. Roos has said, that the lowest paid groups in the country will be the principal sufferers, for when the disarrangements come it will be the unskilled who will be first to lose their jobs.

WE KNOW.

A country school teacher came into the bank to cash her monthly salary check. The cashier apologized for giving her dirty bills, saying that he had forgotten school teachers were afraid of germs.

"O, that's all right," she said, a little sadly, "no germ could live on my salary."—The Laughter Library.

ONE CITY'S RELIEF RECORD.

[Minneapolis Tribune.]

If any one doubts that relief has attained the status of big business in Minneapolis, the figures just compiled by the Minneapolis Civic and Commerce association should quickly reassure him.

These figures indicate that $11,677,000 will be spent on direct and WPA relief in the city in 1938, a sum greater than that required to operate our school system. On last June 30 there were 21,037 relief cases in Minneapolis, or 8,037 more than the summer of 1932, which most economists agree marked the low point of the depression.

But the costs of administering the city relief department have climbed even more spectacularly than the number of persons relieved. In 1930 these costs amounted to $15,272, according to the association's report. For administrative purposes next year $592,495 has been requested, a sum approximately forty times as great.

Today there are 316 employés in the city relief department, as compared with seven in 1930. For every person administering relief in the first full year of the depression, forty-five are now required to do that job. The growth of administrative personnel is one of the most interesting of relief phenomena; in fact, it might fairly be described as breath-taking.

The experience of Minneapolis with relief is by no means unique. It is not the only city which is confronted by the wholly inexplicable fact that the problem of relief, after several years of recovery, is bulkier and more complex than ever. Here we simply see a localization of the nation's No. 1 paradox of recovery: That relief costs pursue their upward and uninterrupted way in the face of almost every economic factor that should logically force them down.

The commonest explanation of this paradox is that the politicians, having seized the relief bear by the tail, do not dare let go. We are told that they are afraid to weed out the spongers and chiselers, afraid to inaugurate the most obvious and sensible economies, afraid to place relief and its administration on a business-like basis which recognizes only the decent requirements of the deserving needy.

While it must be confessed that such charges as these are more easily made than proved, it is still true that inefficiency, waste, and political timidity could account for this baffling nation-wide paradox, and it is also true that no better explanation of it has been offered. But whatever the cause of the paradox, the nation is paying dearly for it, and Minneapolis is helping foot the bill. Whether our record with regard to relief is better or worse than that of most cities we do not pretend to know; but it is unsatisfactory enough, at any rate, to justify a little sober thinking.

WHAT HAPPENS IN HEART BLOCK.

MANY of us no doubt have wondered how and why the heart beats. What is it that starts this powerful muscle contracting in the human embryo at about the fourth week of life and continues its pulsations until the curtain is rung down upon the last act? We cannot answer this question completely. Could we do so we would solve the question, "What is life?" But we can examine into some of the known facts and catch glimpses of parts of the machinery.

The heart possesses a telegraph system of its own, and along these wires—nerves and muscle fibers—impulses travel which initiate each contraction. When we are in health the parts coördinate perfectly, and a pace is maintained for each individual which is characteristically his own. Toxins, high fevers, or shock may upset the process; in fact, most of us are aware that when we are ill—running a fever, even two or three degrees above normal—the heart will throb more rapidly.

In some respects this organ may be likened to the muscles of the legs or arms. None of them will work until a nerve provides the stimulus, but the heart is subject to automatic control. Once started, the mechanism governing its rhythmic beats will continue in action as long as life endures, unless injured by disease.

There is a type of disturbance known as heart "block," which, however, does not mean that the circulation is shut off because of some obstruction. All the valves and vessels may be quite normal. It does indicate, however, that something has "mussed up" the conducting system.

What happens—will the heart stop? Does this mean sudden death?

No, because nature has provided wisely that, should one of these figurative wires break or lose its power to carry the message, "Contract now," the muscle fibers themselves can start the impulses. It may take a few seconds before the new center begins to function, although as a rule the time required to "switch over" is short. Meanwhile the heart ceases to beat. No blood is sent to the brain, and unconsciousness may result. Occasionally a convulsion will occur. Just as soon, however, as the new center starts to operate pulsation is resumed, blood is again dispatched to the brain, and the victim recovers.

This is known as Stokes-Adams disease, because it was described by William Stokes and Robert Adams, two Dublin physicians. Probably more people suffer from this state of affairs than we realize, since the break may be of but momentary duration and hence be overlooked. The symptoms may be as minor as a slight attack of dizziness, a feeling of weakness, a shortness of breath, or at times fainting.

Let us assume that something has gone awry with the conducting system. When beats are resumed the pulse felt at the wrist may be but half that of the normal rhythm, or 35 to 50 per minute. The rate is steady and does not increase upon exercise. This means that the output of the heart is definitly limited. In other words, extra body demands cannot be met. If one of these patients would avoid fainting or other symptoms due to lack of circulation, his activity must be reduced to exactly that which can be supported by the amount of blood the heart is pumping.

What causes the phenomenon?

It is well known that infections, toxins from bacteria, or clots in blood vessels may be responsible. After scarlet fever it is no uncommon situation to find that the organ is pumping blood very slowly, even though the patient while in bed complains of no trouble whatsoever. Sometimes it is a complicating factor in coronary occlusion. Again, syphilis plays an important rôle. But we need not fuss about it unless it is permanent, and in most cases the heart will recover its normal rate after a few days.

Fortunately most of these affairs are temporary. Their occasional occurrence, however, emphasizes the importance of rest in bed for a sufficient period following infection, to insure the elimination of all toxins and to permit the heart muscle to resume its load gradually. Digitalis is often of great assistance, and certain other stimulants are helpful.

No one should place undue strain upon an injured pumping organ. Therefore work and play—all activity—must be predicated entirely upon the strength of the cardiac muscle.

SPRING WATER.

G. T. writes: 1. Is there a domestic spring water equal to the imported natural carbonated waters?

2. Can one drink as much as of any ordinary water without bad effect?

3. Would you recommend this water instead of regular city water for every day use?

REPLY.

1 and 2. There is but little difference between artificially carbonated water and the natural product. You can drink all you choose.

3. We see no reason for substituting it for ordinary drinking water entirely. If you do not like the taste of city water, why not use bottled spring water?

From Across the Sea

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

COPENHAGEN, Denmark. — Electric power has become one of Sweden's valuable export commodities besides cutting down coal imports by an estimated $50,000,000 a year.

Electric power comes to Denmark over cables from northern Sweden, 550 miles away. A 220,000 volt high tension line carries it as far as Malmoe, where transformers reduce the current to 80,000 volts for the submarine cables to Denmark.

Most of the plants have been built 160 feet below ground, where they are safe from any bomb or shell in case of war. New plants are cut into solid rock at that depth. Plants not protected in that way have been fitted with anti-aircraft batteries.

Even if all outside fuel sources were cut off by war, it is said Sweden's rivers could supply all the power necessary for both Sweden and Denmark.

The arrow points to the Chinese Red territory, in which there are suppposed to be at least 250,000 sovietized troops. Off the map, to the west, are new Russian railroad developments. In Siberia, to the north, Russia has, according to reliable report, at least 300,000 soldiers, 1,000 tanks, and 1,000 airplanes. Canton, the southeastern port, does most of its trade by transshipment at British Hongkong. Chiang Kai-shek's national government is seated at Nanking. The Japanese have landed and are fighting in Shanghai. The question is whether Russia is in position to attack.

STEPS TO CITIZENSHIP.

Chicago, Aug. 4.—[Friend of the People.]—My husband came from Ireland in February, 1922. We were married in 1929. I was born in the United States. He has neglected to take out his citizenship papers. How shall he proceed? He has never been out of the country since he came here. Must he take out a first paper? J. P.

Under the provisons of the act of Sept. 22, 1922, as amended by the act of May 24, 1934, an alien who marries a citizen of the United States or whose husband or wife is naturalized after 12:00 noon, eastern standard time, May 24, 1934, may apply for final papers without a declaration of intention [first paper], provided such alien has lived in the United States continuously for at least three years, in pursuance of a legal admission for permanent residence. A male alien who married a citizen or whose wife was naturalized between Sept. 22, 1922, and 12 noon, eastern standard time, May 24, 1934, may apply for final papers without first obtaining a declaration of intention, provided he has lived in the United States continuously for at least three years, in pursuance of a legal admission for permanent residence, and submit his case to the court for judicial determination as to whether he is eligible to be admitted to citizenship under the provisions of the above mentioned act.

There is enclosed herewith an application Form A-2214 for the use of the inquirer's husband. The instructions on page 4 thereof should be complied with before submitting the form to this office. There is also inclosed a circular giving general information regarding naturalization.

CATCH BASIN CLEANED.

Chicago, Aug. 5.—[Friend of the People.]—I wonder if you could help me get this matter before the proper authorities? The sewer in front of 6728 South Michigan avenue has been choked for two years, leaving a dirty, stagnant pool in the street. Twice they have opened the sewer and the water has drained away. But at the next rain it filled up again, leaving a pool. I do not believe it has been dry as much as two weeks in two years. The children play in this. I wonder if this can't be really fixed? M. W.

The catch basin at this location was found to be full of concrete which was dug out on June 18. The basin is now in good condition and will give satisfactory service. Thanking you for your interest.

AGAINST FUSION IN WISCONSIN.

La Crosse, Wis., Aug. 7.—If there is anything sure about the Wisconsin political situation, it is that all fusion talk is almost entirely in the interests of either the radicals or Democrats. If there is any way to head off the Republican comeback and insure a radical victory, fusion is the answer.

Any honest effort put forth by the Republicans [so-called] in the eastern part of the state would have probably beaten La Follette and demonstrated the political impotence of the Wisconsin Democrats. The lake shore district has entirely forsaken central and western Wisconsin Republicanism. By joining with the Democrats last year and insuring a reactionary Democratic candidate, they cinched the election of La Follette.

Had the Democrats nominated a man like Dan Grady or Broughton, who would have campaigned vigorously under the Roosevelt banner, and had the Republicans in the eastern section of Wisconsin loyally supported the Republican candidate, we would now have a Republican governor. Instead they ran a poor third, taking most of their vote from the element opposed to Roosevelt and uniting the radicals.

Any one who has glanced over our election returns knows that the old Democratic precincts have gone over entirely to the radicals. Out of old Democratic majorities the Democrats are now scarcely able to get enough votes to keep their organization alive. The Republican precincts are still voting normally.

The only way the Democrats can get back their votes in Wisconsin without the aid of the unholy alliance of the eastern Wisconsin personal profit politicians is to get them where they lost them; to wit: from the radicals. Any honest Roosevelt campaign would have to aim at the recovery of those votes, and, if those Milwaukee fusionists would see that such a setup was made and then personally back a strong Republican ticket, instead of trying to set up weak Republican tickets and then knifing them, the Republicans would be on their way in.

I write you this as one who had some small share in electing a mayor for La Crosse who was opposed by a prominent labor candidate and ex-Socialist.

WESTERN WISCONSIN REPUBLICAN.

FOR MORE DIGNITY.

Chicago, Aug. 4.—The Grant park concerts are a fine conception. As conducted heretofore they were in the main very fine concerts. This year the addition of blues singers and so-called "popular music" and ballyhoo announcing is spoiling them. Why not return to the dignified status of former seasons? V. A. M.

THE GRANT PARK CONCERTS.

Chicago, Aug. 11.—In answer to that "gallant" thrust made by J. M. Hathaway with regard to "Petrillo & Dunham," which he referred to as "Petrillo Did 'Em," let me remind Mr. Hathaway of a few facts.

We ordinary folks have always welcomed leaders like Petrillo and feel that we would be well off with many like him. In fact, Mr. Petrillo and Mr. Dunham can well be called humanitarians for giving the public these nightly concerts that most of us could not enjoy otherwise.

Have you ever really watched the faces of people as they sit listening to these concerts in Grant park, Mr. Hathaway? Do you and your contemporaries keep in mind that it isn't costing us a dime to listen to this marvelous music? Have you had the pleasure of listening to the unassuming, matter of fact talks that Petrillo, Dunham and others favor us with? If you have done these things you cannot help but realize that Petrillo or any other vital personality connected with this project is as innocent of ulterior motives as you are! A program as beneficial to humans as this one is cannot be based successfully on superficialities.

No amount of personal glory could ever give to Mr. Petrillo one-tenth the happiness he has given us; Chicago can well be proud of him and of others like him. I merely carry on the popular echo of "Three cheers for Petrillo and Dunham." EVE ANN HODGE.

WHAT MAKES YOU THINK WE DO?

Robinson, Ill., Aug. 11.—Why do you hate to see farmers get fair prices for their produce? Till within the last four years most of them were barely making a living, and some not even that. They earn all they get and more, too. The articles on farming by Frank Ridgway are good, but why doesn't he say something about the expense attached to farming? It is a business the same as publishing a newspaper, but not as profitable. You own a farm and should know whether it is a profitable business or not. Too many people get the idea a farm is a gold mine, which it isn't. Please present both sides of the case.

HUMBLE AMISH FIGHT TO AVOID PUBLIC SCHOOLS

Ask Court to Safeguard Them from "World."

Lancaster, Pa., Aug. 14.—(AP)—The "plain people" of the "hex" country are making a last stand today against the devil. They have gone to law to save their children from the sin of pride and worldliness of the public school.

It is the first time in 300 years they have been in court, and this is their plaint:

"The new consolidated school must not go up in East Lancaster township."

The "plain people" usually settle their disputes through the grace of God and the bishops of the Amish brotherhood. It is against their faith to do otherwise. But this time they say they had to appeal to law to save their religion from extinction. They fear their boys and girls would "want to go to the cities."

Cities are anathema to the Amishman [the world's name for the "plain person"]. Cities are the home of the "gay people." The Amish live on the farm, close to the soil and to God.

Pride a Deadly Sin.

The average Amishman is possessed of a sharp degree of "horse sense." His farm is one of the best in the country. He knows current events, and, more important, knows pretty well what they mean. The history of his people dates back at least to 1000 A. D. He contributed the prairie schooner to America's economic development. He was out in front on every frontier, even ahead of such people as Daniel Boone.

Pride is a deadly sin. Anything that reflects it is shunned. Buttons are taboo, for they are objects of show. Only hooks and eyes may be used. Amish girls have no silk stockings or silk underwear. Bright colors are accursed; styles do not exist.

From birth to death the Amish wear the same drab garb. The men wear denim and broadcloth of grey, blue, and black; the women purple, black, blue, and green. A baby boy wears long pants, shirt, and broad, flat topped hat—with a big straw hat for summer—just like his father. A baby girl wears a flowing broadcloth dress, an apron over the dress, and a bib over the apron—topped off with a big dark sunbonnet—just like her mother.

Three Amish Groups.

The Amishman's distinction begins with his name. He may be one of a half dozen "Samuel J. Lapps" or "Samuel Q. Lapps." The important thing is that middle initial.

A child may be born into one of three Amish groups. The "house" Amish have no churches. They worship in their homes. Their customs are much more stern than any of the others.

The "church" Amish have churches and don't object to modern conveniences such as electric lights and automobiles.

The "peachey" Amish fall somewhere in between. Where the "peachies" got their name no "gay people" seem to know and the "plain people," true to tradition, do not tell.

All through his life the Amish youth is reminded he is only an humble man.

Typical Family Life.

If his is a "house" Amish family, his life is like this:

There is no wallpaper on the walls and no pictures. Only plaster or paint, colored grey, light blue, or sometimes red.

There are no electric lights, no bathroom fixtures, no telephones, no electric fans, no curtains at the windows.

The family has no automobile and none of the farm equipment is motorized. All implements are horse-drawn. The family travels in a buggy from which even the dashboards once were shorn as symbols of conceit.

The church service is conducted in the Amish language, a soft German dialect the cult picked up in the Palatinate on its flight from persecution in Europe in the middle age. A preacher or a bishop delivers a sermon. The services are long.

At night there are "singin's" for the youngsters. They are the Amishman's way of bringing boys and girls together for "dates."

Amish Marriage Customs.

Marriages themselves are restricted to the wedding season, the week before and the week after Thanksgiving, when the harvest is in.

The marriage ceremony lasts all day. It begins in the morning with a two hour sermon which closes with words of practical advice to the betrothed. Then comes the ceremony proper. Once married, there is no divorce. In the wedding ritual the bridegroom is tossed over a barnyard fence. Unmarried men line up on one side of the barrier, grab the newlywed and toss him over to the married men on the other side.

The Amishmen have no "poor relief" troubles, for charity with him begins at home. He opposes government doles as encouraging to sloth. He considers crop restriction sinful.

Amishmen Fight a New School

(Story in adjoining column.)

Members of the Amish brotherhood in Pennsylvania, followers of a strange cult who oppose modernity and worldliness and whose creed is stern simplicity, are opposing erection of a new consolidated school. Here are some of the Amishmen, who let their beards and hair grow, in court where thus far their fight has been unsuccessful.

NAPS ON GIRDER OF BRIDGE; FIRE BOYS RESCUE HIM

Richard Merritt, 18 years old, in the city just two days from Atlanta, Ga., picked himself a rare and hazardous place to sleep last night. He chose a girder of the Clark street bridge.

Undetected, he climbed to the top of the steel superstructure on the southwest corner of the bridge and settled himself for a nap 20 feet above the bridge level and 35 feet above the river. A fall one way and he would have landed on the level and a fall the other way and he would have plunged into the water.

Michael Corriero, 541 Noble street, the bridge tender, first spotted the sleeper, and Corriero soon had police and fire squads on the scene. They called to Merritt to come down, but he couldn't hear, he was sleeping so comfortably, so Fire Lieutenant Matthew Baldwin of Truck 6 raised a ladder and carried him down. At the station Merritt explained an acquaintance had overdosed him with liquor. Anyway he was grateful for the nap.

WPA PAINTER, 57, CONFESSES RAPE MURDER OF CHILD

Breaks Under 24 Hour Grilling by Police.

New York, Aug. 14.—[Special.]—After more than 24 hours of questioning Simon Elmore, 57, a painter on a WPA project, confessed this evening that he was the murderer of Joan Kubela, 4 years old, whose body was found yesterday in a lonely marshland shack in the meadows near South Beach, on Staten Island. The child had been ravished by a degenerate. She had been strangled and her body mutilated.

For hours, under severe grilling, Elmore maintained that he knew nothing about the crime, aside from having "discovered" the body. It was Elmore who first took police to the scene of the murder. He said he saw the body in the basement when he passed close by the shack on his way to the crab fishing grounds.

Elmore's confession was obtained after police had pointed out important discrepancies in the story he had told of his movements on Thursday, the day the child was murdered. For hours he admitted these discrepancies but stuck to the story of his innocence.

The confession, which apparently solves the fourth of New York City's sex crimes perpetrated upon children in the last month, was announced as an aroused public was preparing to urge drastic action to curb the mounting rate of spectacular crimes committed against little girls by perverts.

Parents Demand Safeguards.

More than 1,000 parents assembled in a massmeeting in Ridgewood, Brooklyn, to protest against the present methods of handling the problem of sex delinquents.

Little Joan was strangled with the shoulder straps of her red bathing suit and left face-down on the cellar door of the abandoned shack. She was the only child of a Manhattan electrician of small means and was an extraordinarily vivacious and attractive child.

Composer on Visit

Bloomington, Ind., Aug. 14.—[Special.]—Hoagy Carmichael, composer of current song hits, and his wife, the former Ruth Meinardi, recently visited Bloomington, where Carmichael composed some of his early tunes, including "Stardust," while attending Indiana university.

Carmichael recently signed a 52 weeks' contract to write musical scores for Paramount at a salary of almost $1,000 a week. Hoagy's newest song, "April in My Heart," which he wrote for Paramount, is a sequel in melody form to "Stardust" and will be his greatest hit since the latter song, the composer predicts. The lyrics were written by Helen Meinardi, sister of the composer's wife. While in Bloomington, Carmichael visited Mrs. Alex Robison, one of his grandmothers, about whom he wrote "Little Old Lady."

IERC SEES THIN HOPE TO EMPLOY UNEMPLOYABLES

Gives Results of Survey of City's Relief Load.

Results of a comprehensive survey of the relief rolls, made by the Illinois Emergency Relief commission to answer critics who have long urged an analysis of the problem, were made public yesterday.

The survey pertains to that half of Chicago's relief load called the unemployable class, comprising 40,000 cases or 87,000 persons.

An unemployable case is defined as one in which there is no employable persons in the family on relief. Such cases now form a greater proportion of the total relief load than they did a few years ago, and, the survey indicates, will form an even larger percentage in the future. This change is taking place, according to the survey, because the more mature workers are going into the discard, continuous unemployment has caused loss of skill, and technological changes in industry have resulted in lessened demand for certain skills.

40 Per Cent Are Colored.

Of the unemployable families it was found that 40 per cent are colored, 28.2 per cent are foreign born white, and only 31 per cent are native white. One per cent covered families whose heads are of races other than white or Negro, including American Indians, Chinese, and Mexicans.

One-third of the persons 18 years or over were men and two-thirds women, who were generally younger than the men. About 12 per cent of the men were between the ages of 18 and 34, while 30 per cent of the women were in that age range.

Division by Ages.

The following table shows the division by ages among the "permanent" relief rollers:

Ages.	Per cent total.
25-29	7.6
30-34	10.1
45-54	18.1
65 and over	16.9

Although the age group 55 years and over includes 52.4 per cent of all the men, it contains only 28.6 per cent of the women surveyed.

Nearly half the persons over age 18 were unemployable primarily because of some mental or physical disability. In addition to this 47 per cent, 28.3 per cent were unemployable primarily because their presence at home was required to care for children, 16.9 per cent because they were over 65, and 7.7 per cent because of pregnancy, caring for invalids, attending school, or other reasons.

Chances of Rehabilitation.

The survey attempted to answer the question: "What are the chances of rehabilitating the 22,729 disabled persons between 18 and 64 years of age?" It concluded that rehabilitation is impossible for 36.8 per cent of these persons, doubtful for 46.2 per cent, and possible for only 17 per cent.

"With continued medical and social service or adequate vocational training and specialized placement," the report qualifies, "these 17 per cent of disabled persons may be considered as likely to become independent of public assistance."

Despite the fact that most of the disabled persons are regarded as being permanently or indefinitly in this class, 57 per cent of them have been employed at some time during the last five years. A fourth did not have jobs in this period and 18.3 per cent never had any work experience.

Disabilities of 22,729.

Disability—	Per cent.
Injury or defect	18.4
Heart diseases	14.6
Rheumatism, arthritis, lumbago	9.9
Circulatory or blood diseases	7.7
Genito-urinary diseases	6.8
Syphilis	6.3
Nervous impairment	6.0
Diseases of stomach and abdomen	5.8
Tuberculosis	5.0
Respiratory diseases	4.2
Mental disorders	3.8
Diabetes	2.0
Mentally sub-normal	1.4
Cancer	1.0
Chronic poisoning and intoxication	1.0
Endocrine disturbances	0.8
Tumors	0.5
Gonorrhea	0.4
Other disabilities	4.4

Cited as possibilities to remove unemployable cases from the rolls were the following:

Members of the group still under 18 years old eventually may become wage earners and support the family.

Relatives may assume the responsibility for supporting these persons or the family may become independent of public aid through resources not now available.

Zarazee was held for the inquest.

The other child was Louise Scaglione, 12 years old, 2029 Kendall street. U. S. MEMORIAL TO BE DEDICATED IN BRITAIN TODAY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Aug. 14.—In the presence of several hundred American residents of England, the American battle monuments commission tomorrow will dedicate a war memorial chapel in Brookwood cemetery to 588 American soldiers and sailors who died or were killed during the great war.

The Brookwood cemetery chapel, which was erected at a cost of about $200,000, is one of several war monuments commemorating the services of the American forces in Europe during the world war which the battle monuments commission has been dedicating in Europe since Aug. 1.

Gen. John J. Pershing, chairman of the monuments commission, was to have attended tomorrow's dedication ceremonies, but he sent word from Paris that he would be unable to do so. A special delegation from the United States, headed by Josephus Daniels, United States ambassador to Mexico and war time secretary of the navy, will participate.

The memorial chapel is an ornate building of white portal stone. In the interior a cross carved on the wall forms the background of the altar and on the walls appear the names of some soldiers and sailors who were lost at sea or given ocean burial.

Coal Heating goes Modern with TEMPLUX

TEMPLUX TORIDIZER Saves You Money

Scientific "Spoonful at a Time" Firing Gets the Most Out of Low Priced Coal

The business end of the TEMPLUX—that part which goes inside your furnace or boiler—is the scientifically designed Toridizer. It completely reverses the wasteful, smoke-producing method of hand firing, literally turns the fire right side up. Coal is automatically supplied from underneath the fire—just like the fuel for a candlelight is fed from beneath. Gradual preheating of the coal releases the gases and smoke; they become ignited as they pass through the live coals on top, and are turned into useful heat. Fresh coal is fed to the Toridizer, mechanically, a spoonful at a time.

Only TEMPLUX has the Toridizer—which means that only TEMPLUX has the exclusive engineering refinements which make for maximum heating efficiency and economy. TEMPLUX is indeed the ideal automatic coal burner for modern home heating. You'll find a lasting satisfaction in its streamlined ruggedness; you'll marvel at its fool-proof, smooth operation. See TEMPLUX; find out how adaptable it is to your heating requirements, whether your home be small or large. The cost is probably less than you think; find out by sending the coupon today.

and put an end to your Heating worries

Your Coal Bills Will Be Less with TEMPLUX

Of course you want to keep your heating bills down! By comparison with the economy of TEMPLUX automatic coal burning, the hand firing of coal is wastefully extravagant. TEMPLUX puts a stop to all waste—to say nothing of the labor, worry, and dirt it eliminates. Yes, TEMPLUX will save you money—because TEMPLUX burns its coal scientifically. Perfect combustion extracts all of the heat units from your coal; you get a 100% return for your money. You can quit paying the premium price for hand-firing coal, and turn to the lower cost, dustless, stoker-grade coal—the kind that TEMPLUX is specially designed to burn. So switch to TEMPLUX scientific coal firing now—and save yourself some money!

TEMPLUX Is Automatic

Electricity operates the TEMPLUX automatic coal burner. It keeps the fire from going out; it stops the fire from over-heating; it signals for heat when wanted. It is on the job every minute of the 24 hours, putting a complete end to your heating worries. It measures out the heat in precise amount—no more, no less than you want. It lets you get up in a warm house in the morning; it checks the fire for you at night while you are sleeping. It does everything except the daily five minute routine of keeping the hopper filled with coal and removing the few clinkers.

TEMPLUX Installed In Your Present Heating Plant

By all means stick to coal heat—it is the cheapest, safest kind of heat. It is the kind of heat your furnace or boiler was built to give; no other fuel can function as satisfactorily. Keep your present heating system—but bring it up to date with TEMPLUX.

War in China.

In September, 1931, Japanese troops seized Mukden, Manchuria. Chinese troops evacuated with little fighting. There followed a growing wave of Chinese nationalism and an anti-Japanese boycott which led to the concentration of Japanese warships in the Whangpoo river at Shanghai with the intention of suppressing Chinese hostility. Instead the Chinese 19th route army refused to retreat and a war broke out in January, 1932. This was short-lived, however, and in February, 1932, Japan made Manchuria the puppet state of Manchukuo.

In July, 1937, Japanese troops seized Peiping and Tientsin in North China and in the last two weeks have put Hopei province, where the cities are situated, under Japanese domination. The Chinese offered more resistance than at Mukden in 1931. Last week a familiar pattern was unfolded as the scene of the undeclared war between China and Japan expanded and shifted to Shanghai.

The trouble began on Monday when Chinese police killed a sublieutenant and seaman of the Japanese navy at the Chinese airport at Hungjao, 10 miles west of Shanghai. Chinese and Japanese reports on what happened were contradictory, but neutral observers believed that Chinese guards opened fire on the Japanese pair when they attempted to drive into the airport and refused to halt.

Japan demanded that China withdraw all defense forces from the Shanghai district. This would mean leaving Japan in military control of the great international settlement except for small detachments of American, French, and British soldiers, there to protect foreigners. The central government at Nanking answered by pouring regular army troops into Shanghai. Japan amassed twenty-six warships in the Whangpoo river, trained their guns on the city, and landed marines. It then brought up a second fleet.

Thus on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday Japan and Chinese forces gradually squared off in battle positions while continuous diplomatic conferences were held. Nanking would not yield. Negotiations failed.

Japan blamed China's challenging attitude and insincerity about keeping the peace and China blamed the arrival of Japan's two fleets for the subsequent conflict.

The fighting started at 9 o'clock Friday morning. Each side said the other fired first. Fighting apparently began when a Japanese patrol was sent from the Hongkew [Japanese] settlement into the Chapei [Chinese] settlement to route a machine gun nest. Irregular rifle and machine gun firing continued until 5 p. m., when, the Japanese said, Chinese began an artillery bombardment of the Japanese marine headquarters. The Japanese then set out to drive the Chinese from the Hongkew district. The warships opened bombardment of nearby Chinese areas and Chapei and northern suburbs were swept by flames.

After a brief recess, the battling swelled to greater heights yesterday. Artillery and machine guns launched renewed attacks in several districts. Chinese planes bombed a Japanese cruiser, missed it, and did great damage in the international settlement. Among the hundreds killed were three Americans. [See main news section.]

In constant danger, foreign residents, including 4,000 Americans, hurried to evacuate the city. American warships were ordered to Shanghai.

Spanish War.

Rebel dispatches told about strife in the Spanish government's Popular Front and loyalist dispatches told about rebellion in the Fascist ranks last week. It was reported that resentment against Italian troops brought mutinies and pitched battles among the rebels at Toledo and Malaga. It was also reported former wartime Premier Largo Caballero was leading an anarchist antigovernment movement which had brought riots at loyalist Albacete and other points. The opponents of Premier Juan Negrin were said to be dissatisfied because of the failure of Gen. José Miaji's recent July offensive west of Madrid.

A series of incidents involving Great Britain, France, and Italy in protests against rebel or loyalist naval bombing raids on their ships took a fresh turn on Thursday. An Italian destroyer was blamed for torpedoing and sinking a Spanish government freighter off Tunis and an Italian submarine was blamed for damaging the loyalist destroyer Churruca off Cartagena. On Friday rebel planes bombed and sank a Danish ship off Barcelona. [See main news section.]

Foreign Notes.

Nazi Germany made the worst of the British government's expulsion of three German newspaper men from England a week ago for unstated reasons. Germany requested Norman Ebbutt, correspondent for the London Times, to leave Berlin. Meanwhile the German press accused foreign newspaper men of "counter revolutionary activities."

The soviet press revealed 72 alleged Trotzkyist railroad wreckers had been executed by firing squads in eastern Siberia. This brought the total of such reported executions to 320. Earlier in the week the capture and execution of four accused spies trying to enter Russia from Poland was carried in news dispatches.

Gen. Bekr Sidki Pasha, minister of defense and strong man of the kingdom of Iraq, and Col. Mohamed Ali Jawad, chief of the air force, were assassinated on Wednesday at Mosul, about 200 miles from Bagdad, by a feudist soldier. Gen. Sidki led a military coup d'état last October.

Sports

All-Star Coach.

Football fans of the nation, in a two weeks' poll conducted by THE TRIBUNE and 150 associated newspapers, elected Charles E. [Gus] Dorais, football coach at the University of Detroit, as head coach of the college All-Star squad that will meet the Green Bay Packers on Sept. 1 at Soldiers' field. Dorais received 1,241,658 first place votes [each counting three points] and enough additional second and third place votes to bring his point total to 5,269,179. Lynn Waldorf, coach at Northwestern, was second with 4,011,108; Elmer Layden of Notre Dame, third, 3,464,384. Jimmy Phelan, University of Washington, fourth, 3,033,977, and Bernie Moore, Louisiana State, fifth, 2,521,941. This group will comprise the coaching staf. A total of 6,844,872 votes were cast.

Cubs and Sox.

The Chicago Cubs maintained their National league lead during the week. The Cubs beat Boston, 3 to 0 and 8 to 2, on Sunday, but on Tuesday lost to Pittsburgh, 6 to 5. First baseman Jim Collins suffered a fractured ankle in that contest. The Cubs beat Pittsburgh Wednesday, 5 to 1, but were routed, 16 to 6, on Thursday. They opened against Cincinnati Friday with a 22 to 6 victory, but lost yesterday, 10 to 5.

The White Sox lost the first game of a double-header to the Red Sox Sunday, 7 to 6, but won the second game, 13 to 0. The Sox scored their first victory of the year in Detroit Tuesday, 6 to 4, and the next day split a double-header, losing 11 to 8 and winning the second game in the tenth inning, 6 to 4. Friday the Chicagoans were beaten by Cleveland, 4 to 3, and dropped to fourth place. They lost to Cleveland, 4-3, yesterday. [See sports section.]

Derby Winner.

Marion Miley, Lexington, Ky., shaved 11 strokes off women's par to tour the Onwentsia course four times in a total of 309 shots and win the women's western golf Derby Thursday for the third successive time. Patty Berg of Minneapolis finished second, eight strokes behind Miss Miley.

Hambletonian.

Shirley Hanover, owned by Lawrence B. Shepherd of Hanover, Pa., won the 12th running of the Hambletonian stake, feature event of light harness racing, at Goshen, N. Y., Thursday. Shirley Hanover won in straight heats, running the first mile in 2:01½ and the second in 2:01¾, record time for two heats. She won $19,916.92 of a total purse of $37,912.58.

Flying

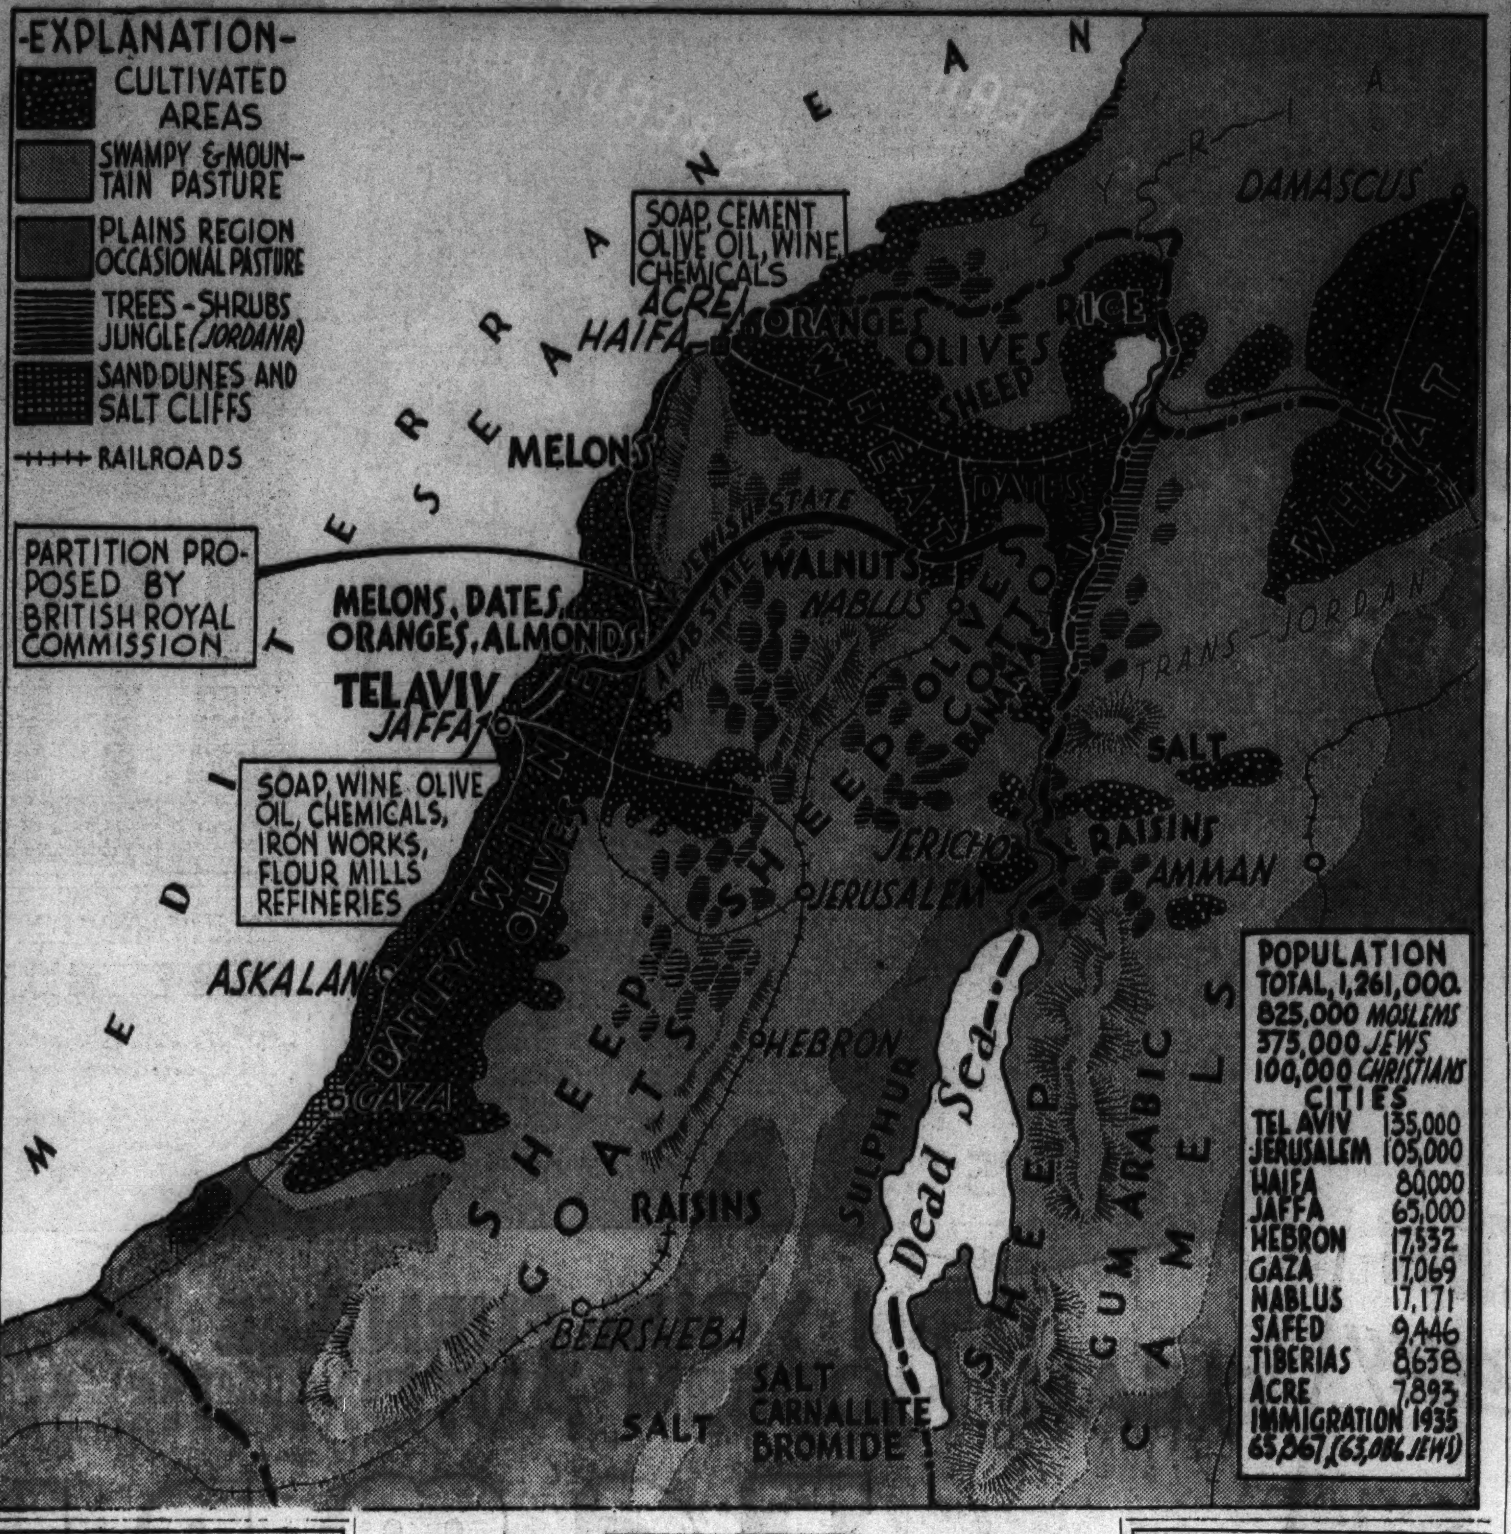
Four persons were killed and five others injured Tuesday in the first fatal accident of the Eastern Air lines when a Chicago-Miami transport plane crashed while taking off at the Daytona Beach [Fla.] airport. The plane ran into an electric light power line which had been strung up during the night without the knowledge of Airport Manager Peter Dygert. Both pilots died apparently in ignorance of the hazard

The navy department announced that the Sikorsky Aircraft factory at Bridgeport, Conn., is finishing an experimental, four-engine, 50,000 pound navy patrol bombing plane. The plane is about the size of a Martin Clipper.

Six soviet flyers began another flight from Moscow to the United States on Thursday but were reported lost in a polar storm yesterday after their radio messages failed. [See main news section.]

The German flying boat Nordmeer completed the second leg of a trans Atlantic survey flight for a passenger mail route on Friday when it arrived in the Azores. The first leg was from Luebeck, Germany, to Lisbon, Portugal, on Wednesday.

An Economic View of Palestine—the Promised Land



The map shows the economic attractions of Palestine as a homeland for the Jews, but the feeling behind the historic controversy last week in the world Zionist congress at Zurich, Switzerland, can scarcely be mapped.

Since Moses led the Israelites there about 1000 B. C., Palestine has been the "Promised Land" of the Jews, but a land which they could never reclaim from invaders until Great Britain won Palestine from Turkey in the world war and repaid Jewish support of the allies by permitting Jews to make it their national home.

Since 1919 about 300,000 Jews have fled European persecution and settled in Palestine. World Jewry has invested more than $250,000,000 in Palestine and Jews have created hundreds of agricultural and industrial enterprises, including the building of the all Jewish city of Tel-Aviv.

But Palestine is only 140 miles long with an area of 9,000 square miles—about one-third the length and one-fifth the area of Illinois. And two-thirds of Palestine's population are Arabs. Great Britain not only promised a Palestine homeland to Jews but independence to Arabs if the latter rebelled against Turkey during the world war, which they did. Arabian resentment against the Jews boiled over in riots in 1929 and in a 25 week revolt in 1936.

Great Britain sent a royal commission to investigate. Last month it recommended that Arab-Jew friction be settled by dividing Palestine more or less proportionately between Jews and Arabs with Britain retaining mandate over a corridor from Jaffa on the sea to Jerusalem, Holy City for Arabs, Jews, and Christians alike.

The Zionist organization, which was created to support the establishment of Palestine as a Jewish nation, met two weeks ago with one faction demanding denunciation of the British partition plan. Rabbi Stephen Wise, American Zionist leader, led those of this opinion. But last Wednesday Zionist President Chaim Weizmann, Swiss chemist, ended bitter controversy by overriding the opposition with a 304-158 vote to study the plan and to negotiate with Great Britain. Palestine's 124 delegates split on the issue.

Zionists divide their cause into two phases. One began with the founding of the Zionist organization by Theodor Herzl, Viennese journalist, and the first congress in 1897. Zion is the Jewish synonym for Jerusalem, derived from the Hill of Zion, which the city partially occupies. The second phase began in 1917 with Lord Balfour's pledge of Palestine as a Jewish homeland. They may come to consider the partition crisis as a third phase.

Actually Jewish nationalism centering around the "Promised Land" became widespread in Europe as early as the 16th century. It recurred in cycles, such as the Moses Mendelssohn movement in the 18th century, as one ruler after another persecuted the Jews.

Crime

Out Again, In Again.

Edward Koncil, paroled convict and confessed robber, on Wednesday escaped for the third time in five months from the custody of Lieut. George Stava of the Berwyn police force. On this occasion Koncil sawed through bars of the Berwyn jail.

When Koncil surrendered to police early Friday, Acting State's Attorney Wilbert F. Crowley had begun investigating the escape

Crowley on Friday confronted Lieut. Stava and Chief of Police Joseph Pilat with Koncil, who said that Berwyn police had accepted bribes of from $5,000 to $10,000. Stava and Pilat denied the charges. Crowley said that Stava had continually put off bringing Koncil before the grand jury, saying he wanted to keep Koncil as an informer. Yesterday Crowley said he had no charges to bring against the policemen. [See main news section.]

Life for Rapist.

A Criminal court jury on Wednesday convicted John Ardelean, 17, of raping a girl, 9, on July 8, and stabbing her 38 times with ice pick and grass shears in a basement at 2720 Glenlake avenue. Ardelean's punishment was fixed at life imprisonment.

The same day Le Roy Wolf, 24, 4025 Cullerton street, was arraigned on charges of raping two girls, 8 and 9. One is the daughter of a policeman. Wolf pleaded not guilty.

Meanwhile New York City was stirred by its second rape murder of a child in two weeks

Poison Deaths.

In Cincinnati, O., Mrs. Anna Hahn, 31, a former German school teacher, was charged with using a poison oil to kill a man for his money. Two suspected poison deaths in Colorado Springs and three in Cincinnati of persons with whom Mrs. Hahn was linked led to her arrest. She pleaded not guilty. [See main news section.]

In Prairie du Chien, Wis., the fatal shooting on June 4 of Mildred Best, about 13, and the poison death of her uncle, Orla Shaw, 34, two weeks later, baffled police. Harold Best, 15, brother of Mildred, last week denied two previous confessions that he had killed her. [See main news section.]

Dance Murder.

On Sunday night Glen Barker, Shocton, Wis., farmer, 24, fatally stabbed his sweetheart, Helen Weinhouse, 18, immediately after dancing with her. They had had a spat at the dance hall. On Tuesday in Appleton Barker pleaded guilty to her murder and the judge sentenced him to 14 to 25 years in prison.

Robber Slain.

When William Fletcher, 31, entered a shooting gallery at 434 South State street in Chicago, on Friday, seized a .22 caliber pistol and ran to a taxicab, Thomas Auterinos, the attendant grabbed a .22 target rifle and shot him twice in the head, killing him. Fletcher, a clerk, had been drinking.

News of Labor

Textile Strike.

The Textile Workers' Organizing Committee, a C. I. O. union, on Monday called out 30,000 of the 58,000 silk and rayon workers in New Jersey, Pennsylvania, the New England states, and New York. The T. W. O. C. is assuming the task of organizing the textile industry begun by the United Textile Workers, a former A. F. of L. union. Spokesmen predicted that most of the industry would be signed up before the week was out. To a great extent this belief had a sound basis, since many employers wanted unionization to stabilize operating conditions. New England silk workers were 95 per cent organized before the strike, it was said. One riot at Hazelton, Pa., marred negotiations.

Tavern Union.

A survey showed that the United Automobile Workers of America, C. I. O. union, is attempting to organize Milwaukee tavernkeepers, lether workers, waiters, and farm implement factory workers as part of the auto union. The C. I. O. promises the tavernkeepers 10 cent beer. The usual 8 or 10 ounce glass, a "dime" in Chicago, now sells for a nickel in Milwaukee.

Railroad Raise.

Leaders of the five railroad transportation brotherhoods and representatives of the country's railroads began negotiations in Chicago on the unions' demand for a 20 per cent wage increase. The five unions have voted to call out their 250,000 members on strike if an agreement is not reached. The 20 per cent increase would cost the railroads $116,000,000 a year.

Plymouth Reopens.

United Automobile Workers' union employés of Chrysler Motor corporation in Detroit ratified a strike truce and returned to work last Monday at the Plymouth plant. It was closed down for five days by a clash between the U. A. W. A. and independent union workers.

South Bend Truce.

A truce agreement on Wednesday ended the 36 day old strike at the Bike Web factory in South Bend, Ind. The C. I. O. and company officials agreed to resumption of work pending a plant election to determine the sole bargaining agent of the employés.

EDITH WHARTON DIES.

Author Edith Wharton, 75 years old, died on Wednesday of an apoplectic stroke at her château near Saint Brice Sous Foret, France. She was the second woman ever elected to the American Academy of Arts and Letters. Miss Wharton's chief work was "Ethan Frome" [1921].

The City

Horst Case.

Donald Horst, 2½ years old, returned on Monday to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Otto Horst from which his unmarried real parents, John Regan and Mrs. Lydia Lavin, had abducted him on Aug. 3. They had given him away at birth. County Judge Edmund K. Jarecki decided that the foster parents should have custody of Donald until he rules on the Horsts' adoption petition on Aug. 23. Dr. John A. Rose surrendered on Tuesday to face a charge of falsifying Donald's birth certificate which showed the Horsts as the parents.

Quacks.

The last two of 24 persons charged with practicing medicine without a license in the current campaign against quacks were arraigned in Chicago on Tuesday. Hearings were set for next month. John J. Hallihan, director of the state department of registration and education, which investigates medical practices, on Wednesday questioned five more persons who had been cited to show cause why they should not be prosecuted. They included a salve specialist who sold an investigator ointment for a skin disease she did not have, and a woman who continued to operate a dead physician's office under his name.

Taxi Fares.

Ald. James R. Quinn, chairman of the city council transportation committee, promised an investigation into the financial structure and operations of the Yellow and Checker cab companies before the city council considers the proposed 5 cents a ride increase in Chicago taxi fares. The company and the drivers' union asked the boost jointly, but Quinn wants to be sure the drivers will benefit.

Syphilis Drive.

Corporation Counsel Barnet Hodes learned from an investigation by Walter V. Schaefer of his staf that sufficient state and city regulations exist to compel medical treatment of prostitutes who carry syphilis. Some judges had declared the laws were not broad enough to force treatment upon even those who were known carriers. Schaefer found a 1919 state law that empowered justices to require examination and treatment of persons infected with venereal diseases who are arraigned on criminal charges. An airplane was used to advertise the anti-syphilis campaign yesterday. [See main news section.]

Raklios Out.

John Raklios, 58, a Greek who came to Chicago in 1910 and built up a $4,000,000 restaurant chain, stood by on Monday and saw his 13 restaurants auctioned off for $86,500 by a federal referee in bankruptcy. Liabilities exceeded $200,000. Restaurant owner friends who attempted to save Raklios' property dropped out of the bidding at $85,000.

Washington

Supreme Court.

President Roosevelt surprised nearly every one in official Washington as well as citizens in the rest of the country by appointing Senator Hugo L. Black, Alabama Democrat, to the United States Supreme court. Black was named as the successor to Associate Justice Willis Van Devanter, who retired in June. Senator Black, 51 years old, has been a lawyer, a police court judge, and prosecuting attorney.

Loyal to the Roosevelt administration, Black in 1935 headed the senate committee investigation of lobbying which was called the Black inquisition. A year ago the United States Court of Appeals held that the Black committee's seizure of the telegram files of private enterprises from telegraph companies was illegal.

When one of its members receives a presidential appointment it is the senate's custom to confirm it without reference to committee. But after the announcement Thursday, the senate referred confirmation to the judiciary committee. A Democratic controled subcommittee recommended confirmation on Friday, but the senate will not act until this week.

Opposition senators who assailed Black's appointment brought up two main issues. They contended, first, that Ku Klux Klan support won him his first senate term in 1926. The Klan is against Catholics, Jews, and Negroes. The other chief objection to Black was that he is a member of the senate which passed an act last March granting full pay to retiring Supreme court justices. Constitutionally, any member of congress is ineligible to any office or increased reward for that office set up during his term. [See main news section.]

Congress.

On Wednesday the house concurred with the senate and passed the remnant of President Roosevelt's late court packing bill, providing lower court alterations only. This was the first of five administration measures the President wants passed before adjournment.

The second "must" measure bogged down in the house rules committee, after the labor committee recommended it. Southern Democrats forced the rules committee into a 6-6 deadlock on the vote to submit the wage-hour bill to house debate. The Green amendments two weeks ago sharply curtailed the bill's grant of authority to fix maximum hours and minimum wages, but the southerners seemed to be retaliating for the President's threat to withhold loans which he is authorized to make to uphold cotton prices.

The President yielded on Friday, agreeing to cotton loans and subsidies of 12 cents a pound, but the southerners still balked on the wage and hour bill.

The President gained a pledge from congress leaders that crop control [new AAA] legislation would be the first order of business at the January session of congress. The department of agriculture reported that no alarming cotton and wheat surpluses were expected. But the congress agricultural leaders scurried to the White House and back all week in fear of a price slump.

A filibuster of southerners against the anti-lynching bill was averted in the senate when Senator Robert F. Wagner agreed to withdraw his bill as pending business. The bill was held over as unfinished business to follow crop control legislation at the next session.

The President.

It was learned that President Roosevelt plans to seek a "mandate from the people in the congressional elections next year on two questions: [1] Shall federal control and regimentation of industry and agriculture, declared unconstitutional by the Supreme court, be reëstablished? [2] Shall the power of the Supreme court to invalidate acts of congress be annulled, be subject to review by congress, or be otherwise restricted?

The President denied the related report that he contemplates a constitutional amendment, not to broaden federal powers over industry and agriculture, but to curb the power of the Supreme court to declare such extensions of power unconstitutional.

Senator Royal S. Copeland [D., N. Y.], Tammany candidate for the nomination for mayor of New York, after hearing the President would throw his support to Jeremiah T. Mahoney as Democratic nominee, charged Mr. Roosevelt with attempting to wreck the Democratic party. Before returning from his home at Hyde Park, N. Y., to Washington, the President denied partisanship in the New York primary.

Democrats.

The Democrat controled house rules committee voted in secret session to table the resolution of Republican Minority Leader Bertrand H. Snell for a special investigation of the Democratic national committee. Snell charged that the Democratic committee had violated the corrupt practices act in collecting more than a million dollars by the political racket of selling party books, including one autographed by the President, to corporations and citizens that might later expect political favors. Snell laid a great mass of evidence before the committee. Its refusal to act brought Republican talk of raising a special fund to finance an investigation. The evidence was presented to Attorney General Cummings yesterday. [See main news section.]

A senate testimonial banquet to the new majority leader, Alben W. Barkley, drew sixty loyal senators in Washington on Tuesday. The intended harmony effect was missing, however. Mr. Roosevelt's absence was interpreted as a snub to those who had opposed the court packing bill.

Friends of James A. Farley, chairman of the Democratic national committee, said he would resign soon as postmaster general and accept a position as executive head of the Pierce-Arrow Motor corporation. He would retain his party leadership.

Business

Auto Output Up.

Automobile production rose sharply last week despite the fact that the industry was preparing to wind up its 1937 production year. Output totaled 103,250 cars and trucks, against 78,736 a week earlier, as demand continued the heaviest on record for this season of the year.

Because of the vast unfilled consumer demand, it is expected suspension of production for the change over to 1938 models will be unusually brief, and that most manufacturers will make few mechanical alterations in their new models. Some mechanical changes are in prospect, but most noticeable shifts will be in body design.

Usually at this season buyer interest is at low ebb because of the advent of new models. But this year the demand has kept up.

Most experts agree that 1938 sales will match or excel those of this year. Since the current model year started early last fall nearly three and a half million cars have been rolled from assembly lines and it is confidently expected the total will rise to at least five million cars for the calendar year 1937, barring labor strife.

Business Spotty.

Business last week continued irregular with some major indices showing improvement and others decline. Railroad freight traffic slumped 12,954 cars from the preceding week to 789,706 cars. Bank clearings climbed nearly 6 per cent to $5,067,245,000. Awards of contracts for new buildings were 10 per cent above last year, at $45,348,000. Steel ingot production fell ½ point to 84½ per cent of theoretical plant capacity. Retail and wholesale trade showed improvement, although hot weather in some sections of the country deterred buying.

The stock market moved forward slightly. The volume of dealings was extremely small. Bonds were irregular, with price changes holding to a narrow groove. Commodities closed lower.

Strange

Exhibiting his snakes at Newton, N. J., Harry Osburn, 58 years old, wound a rattler around his neck and stuck his tongue out. The snake bit it. Prompt treatment saved Mr. Osburn.

Because of a scarcity of icebergs, Battle Hurbor, in far northern Labrador, imported ten tons of ice from Halifax, N. S.

A gypsy fortune teller told Mrs. Alice Fegan, 31, of Chicago, a recent widow, that her grief could be cured if she wore her $500 savings in a stocking around her wrist for ten days as a charm. Mrs. Fegan did as told, but when she untied the stocking she found wrapping paper.

The British ministry of transport denied S. E. Stanford of Crawley, Sussex, a truck driver's license. Stanford, as fire department chief, had driven fire engines for 28 years.

Aboard the steamship Hybert when it arrived at Houston, Tex., were Mrs. Ester Worman, 28, and Abram Kiper, a middle aged man, chance stowaway companions. For 20 days out of Rotterdam they hid in a dark hold where the temperature was 130 degrees They wore no clothes.

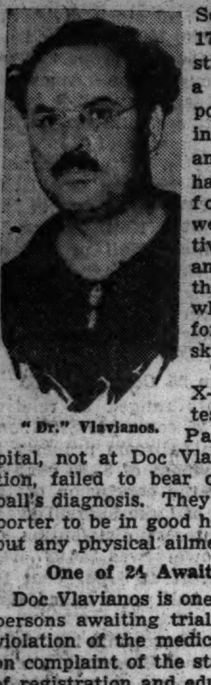
Mrs. Maggie King, 70, filed suit in Superior court in Chicago to have a 42 year old divorce from her late husband set aside. He obtained it without notifying her 16 years before they separated. She seeks a share in his $50,000 estate.

WHAT DOES DOC SEE IN CRYSTAL? AH, A DIAGNOSIS

He Mixes Some Material with the Spiritual.

BY VIRGINIA GARDNER.

"Dr." Niketas O. Vlavianos, director of the International Health Institute and Godly Science, Inc., at 1714 Madison street, diagnosed a TRIBUNE reporter by gazing into a crystal ball and holding her hands. What he found was: A weak chest, digestive trouble, and an overactive thyroid gland which accounted for her being skinny.



"Dr." Vlavianos.

Thorough X-rays and other tests made at Passavant hospital, not at Doc Vlavianos' suggestion, failed to bear out the crystal ball's diagnosis. They showed the reporter to be in good health and without any physical ailment.

One of 24 Awaiting Trial.

Although he leans hard on his psychic powers, Vlavianos does not depend on them altogether. He treated the patient to a going-over with his soft, pudgy hands, rotating her arms in a windmill movement, manipulating her spine, massaging her shoulders, and giving her what he called healing strokes.

Doc Vlavianos was not modest or secretive about his talents. A large sign, 6 by 5 feet, on the side of the brick building which houses his International Health institute announced to riders of the elevated nearby:

International Health Institute.
Sanitarium Treatments consisting of
Vapor Steam and Electric Baths
Swedish Massage and Naprapathy
Prices Reasonable

Signs Surround Him.

A smaller sign suspended from the second floor, in front, read: "International Health Institute. Sanitarium Treatments. Dr. N. D. Vlavianos, D. N., Naprapath. Godly Science, Inc."

A door on the street level which bore similar signs opened on to a wooden stairway. The reporter rang a bell and walked up. The air was heavy with the odor of garlic. A door at the top opened and a swarthy, stocky man, with a silky dark mustache, receding hair, and plump hands, stood in the doorway. He appeared to be in his 30s. He wore a greasy pair of trousers and house sweater.

He waved his visitor into his front room, told her to be seated, and seated himself gingerly on a chair which appeared ready to collapse. The room was incredibly dirty. The furniture was old and massive, covered with dust. Several diplomas from schools of naprapathy, osteopathy, and physiotherapy were on the wall.

Admits He's Spiritual Healer.

"Do you do spiritual healing, doctor?" the visitor asked him.

"I do," he said, with majestic calm. "What is wrong?"

"I don't know, I'm just tired and nervous, with that dragged-out feeling," the visitor replied. "Can you do anything for a case like mine?"

"I've had lots of cases like yours lately," he said, turning his sympathetic brown eyes on the visitor. "I have been very successful with them. I think I can help you. Follow me."

He led the way down a hall and into a large room. The air was musty. He bade his visitor be seated in a chair on one side of a long wooden table. Silently, with an air of mystery, he crossed the room and lowered the window shades until the room was almost dark. Faintly visible was a sign on the wall which the reported faced. It read, "Service to God and Humanity."

Unwraps Crystal Ball.

Doc Vlavianos then sat down opposite his by now bewildered customer. Carefully he unwrapped a black velvet cloth from a crystal ball, placed the cloth on the table and the ball upon it.

"Put your hands upon it, one on either side," he said softly.

He then covered the reporter's hands with his own, and so they remained during the whole of the crystal reading.

"You're very psychic," he said. "Very."

He closed his eyes, then opened them and fixed a penetrating glance on his visitor.

Holds Out Heart Interest.

"You have had a disappointment," the doc said gently. "But you can get over it. You will meet a man who will mean a great deal to you. He will treat you better. You cannot tell, he might marry you."

He gazed into the ball, then sat back.

"I am sorry to tell you, but you have a weak chest," the doc said. "And some digestive troubles. It is too bad. Your condition will be serious if you don't take care of yourself.

"I see an elderly woman in the spirit world who is saying to you, 'Do not worry.' She is looking out for you. She sees better things ahead. I seem to feel you do not come from Chicago."

"No, from Fort Smith, Ark.," his visitor said.

Dismisses the Spiritual.

"Ah, I knew it," he said. "I see a woman about 50 years old down there thinking of you, wanting you to come home. Is it mother? No? O, well, maybe this message I had was from the spirit world."

Doc Vlavianos ended the reading on a snappy note, saying that that would be enough for the spiritual side of it. Would his visitor follow him again?

They traversed the hall and the front room and entered a narrow, dirty corridor which opened onto several small treatment rooms, equipped with electric lamps, tables, and other apparatus. In the last room he put a clean sheet over a table with a dirty cover on it, and his visitor, removing her coat and hat, lay down as instructed.

"I always do a little of the material along with the spiritual," he explained.

Takes a Pummeling.

The doc first had his patient lie on her stomach while he went up and down her spinal column and shoulders, pressing and pummeling. When he swung the arms around in a wide circular motion the reporter, still sore from Doc Sidney B. Butler's treatment of the night before, resisted. He became gentler.

"Turn on your back," he said, and as she did so he gently massaged the neck. "This is to stabilize your glands. Your thyroid is too active, other glands not active enough. This is to build you up and help you put on weight. I can take weight off or put it on. I have one woman patient who weighed 225 pounds when I began treating her. I have her down to 150 now."

Doc Vlavianos then went into the silence. He placed one hand over the patient's heart and had her place one hand on top of his. Then he did the same with the other side.

"Close your eyes," he said.

Minutes passed in silence, while the reporter listened for his breathing.

Then, with a little shiver, he removed his hands and placed them on either side of the abdomen. The silence continued. He sighed once more. Then he placed them lower down on the abdomen.

His patient opened one eye to sneak a look at the doc. She saw only his bowed head, which suddenly bobbed up as he lifted his arms over her and chanted:

"In the name of the omnipresent power I DEMAND that every part of this body shall respond to the vibrations of the ever present life, energy, and wisdom. I feel this ever present life, energy, and wisdom flowing through me into you, filling you with healthy nutrition, and health, and happiness. You are healed by love divine; you are well and feeling fine."

After the Calm, the Storm.

Then he snapped his fingers and went rapidly to work.

Starting at the patient's neck, Doc Vlavianos began stroking the full length of her body, from shoulder to toe, first on one side, then on the other, his movements getting faster and faster. At the end of each long stroke he snapped his fingers and made a flourish. This went on until he appeared a little fagged.

The doc then settled down to a comparatively calm stroking of the shoulders and neck, after which he said: "You may rest here a moment."

He left, probably to rest himself. Later the reporter found him sitting in the precarious seat he had chosen before.

Doc Vlavianos appeared loath to let his visitor go. She paid him $2, and he had her write her name and address in a book.

Puts Her on Vibration List.

"That is so I can send out healing vibrations to you," he said. "I have you on my list now. I send them out at 3 o'clock in the morning daily. You will be aware of them."

The reporter departed with a mimeographed copy of "The Godly Science Monthly," which Doc Vlavianos pressed upon her. Under announcements inside appeared the paragraph:

"Dr. Vlavianos gives treatments and advice every day. Hours 1 p. m. to 8 p. m. Treatments consist of massage, baths, naprapathy, physiotherapy and divine healing."

He also announced a correspondence department for health and prosperity, saying he would be very glad to write to any one and give him what he described as the metaphysical technique of overcoming your difficulty.

SUES HUSBAND

MRS. MARY JANE BRITTON.

Mrs. Mary Jane Britton, of Gages Lake, in Lake county, filed suit in the Superior court yesterday for separate maintenance from Dr. James Howe Britton. The doctor, son of Dr. James Britton, general physician for the International Harvester company, is attached to the Moline public hospital. Mrs. Britton, 28 years old, is the mother of two small children. She charges cruelty. She alleges her husband tried to undermine her health by revealing to her that she was the adopted child of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Benson, a fact she had not known until he told her.

AIRPLANE CALLS CITY'S ATTENTION TO SYPHILIS FIGHT

Banner Urges Citizens to Vote in Campaign.

Voting in Chicago's referendum on voluntary blood tests for syphilis was given added impetus yesterday when an airplane flew over the city, drawing behind it a banner that read:

"Chicago, Fight Syphilis — Vote Today."

The plane flew for hours over the loop, the beaches, the parks, and the ball fields, calling the attention of millions to the campaign to stamp out the scourge that could not have been publicly mentioned a few years ago.

Calls Attention to Fight.

The plane was piloted by Harold Alford of the Alford Flying service. It brought to all who saw its banner the message that 1,500 boys and girls, volunteers from the National Youth administration, gave the city on Friday when they paraded through the loop in a demonstration calling attention to the fight against sphilis.

Meanwhile it was disclosed that the vote in the referendum is overwhelmingly in favor of the tests.

Dr. Louis E. Schmidt, chairman of Mayor Kelly's committee on control of venereal diseases, announced that heads of 47,994 households have voted in favor of the tests, with only 3,063 opposed. This ratio of 16 to 1 exceeds the hopes of many leaders.

4,083 Votes Received.

Of the total, 4,083 votes were received yesterday, the largest number in any single day. The increasing interest in the referendum was credited to the publicity given it by the boys and girls on Friday.

With approximately 650,000 ballots mailed, leaving only 350,000 more to go out, a portion of the campaign staf turned its attention to analyzing the returns. Thirty thousand "yes" replies were put through card punching machines similar to those used in census surveys.

The first statistical data disclosed by the tabulation was that the 30,000 household replies represented 89,235 persons, an average of approximately three per family. In this group were 44,447 men, 42,372 women, and 2,416 who did not designate sex.

Broken down into age groups, it was shown that heavy support for the blood tests comes from the 25 to 34 years of age classification. There were 11,645 favorable replies from men in this age range and 11,542 from women.

Also shown by analysis of the first 30,000 replies was the fact that many parents want to have their children given the tests.

Chicago Corporation Subsidiary Plans Two Million Dollar Home Building Program

FORT DEARBORN MORTGAGE CO. BUILDS 6 UNITS

May Erect 200 Dwellings in Elmwood Park.

BY AL CHASE.
[Real Estate Editor.]

With the practical completion of six new homes on its square mile of property in Elmwood Park, the Fort Dearborn Mortgage company, subsidiary of the Chicago corporation, yesterday announced plans for a $2,000,000 residential program which may involve the erection of nearly two hundred houses. According to Aaron Colnon, president of the mortgage concern, the new development, to be known as River Forest Manor, will become a model village of garden homes, with all that is newest in American house planning.

The company's realty holdings are scattered about in the Elmwood Park area just north of River Forest and east of the Oak Park Country club. The district is bounded on the north by Dickens and Armitage avenues, on the east by Harlem avenue, on the south by North avenue, and on the west by North 78th avenue.

Study Public's Reactions.

Colnon said that when the finishing touches to the six new homes, all designed by White & Weber, Chicago architects, are added this week, the public will be invited to inspect them. A careful record will be made of the reactions of the house visitors to color, design, layout, and other points involving comfort and efficiency in home living, he said.

When the public's ideas as to what the modern home should contain and how it should be built are analyzed, the mortgage company will proceed with the rest of the two million dollar program, Colnon said.

No Construction Mortgages Used.

"Instead of the customary construction mortgage used to finance the building of the houses, the company is paying cash," said Colnon. "As a result, when they are completed the type of financing which best suits the prospective customer can be arranged at the time of sale. This will eliminate many of the financial worries of the house buyer.

"Interest rates as low as 4 per cent can be had under one of the financing plans to be offered. Single long term mortgages will be used, completely paid off in about twenty years."

The houses now being erected have five, six, and seven rooms and range in price from $8,000 to $12,000, Colnon said. All improvements are in and all special assessments have been paid.

Many Sources Sought.

According to Burton Smith, secretary, every available source of information was used to enable the developers to build a modern, livable, and attractive home.

"Architectural surveys, engineers, housing surveys, and prospective home owners themselves were consulted, and developments in other cities were studied in order that the best ideas in modern homes could be made available in River Forest Manor," he said.

"Attractive street appearances will result from the carefully prepared plot plan that staggers the houses by varying the distance they are set back from the street.

Garages to Be Attached.

"The central area of each block is to be left open for garden development. In order to carry out this modern idea in suburban planning, all garages will be made an integral part of the houses. That means that no single car garages will dot the rear lot lines."

The six houses are on both sides of North 77th court, between North and Wabansia avenues. They occupy lots with 50 feet frontage. Bids are being taken on another group of six. At the north end of the development there is a wooded area where it is planned to have larger lots and perhaps more elaborate houses, although this is contingent on the reaction of the public to the initial half dozen. With an original layout of 30 foot lots the entire area has been replatted into larger holdings, with a minimum of 50 feet.

Originally Owned by Mills.

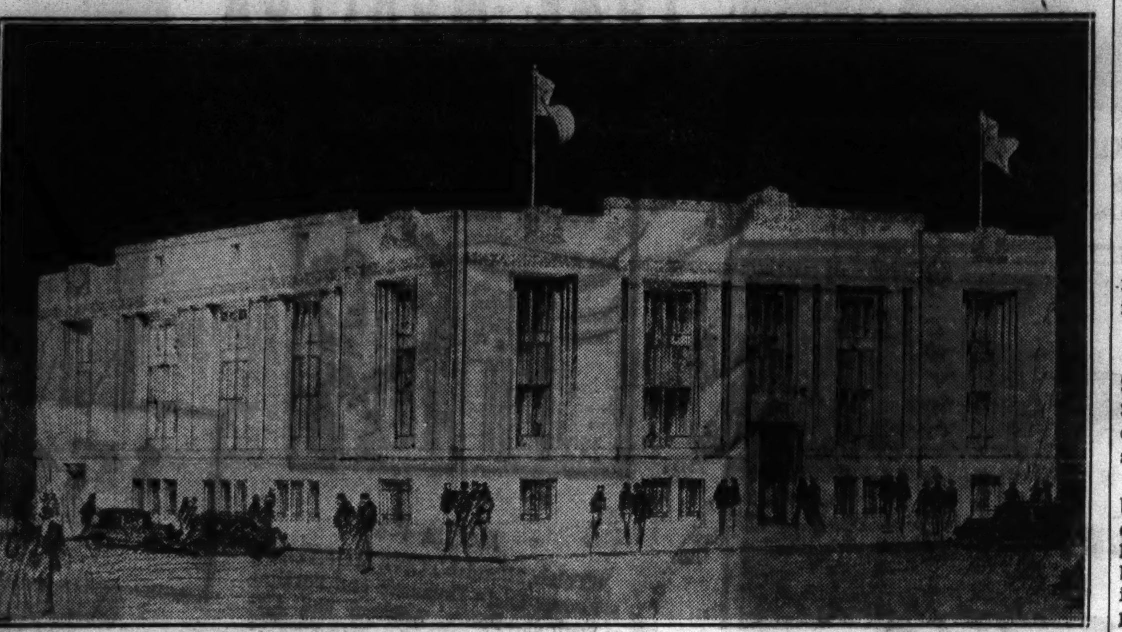
The square mile of property originally was owned by Mills & Sons. In May, 1935, it was acquired by the Van Buren corporation, a subsidiary of the Chicago corporation which has since been dissolved. It then was conveyed to the Fort Dearborn Mortgage company.

At the time the Van Buren corporation was active it sold 300 bungalows in Elmwood Park which had been built by Mills & Sons. The sales were made under the supervision of William L. Wallen Jr., who is now in charge of the Fort Dearborn Mortgage company's office at 7616 West North avenue, adjoining the half dozen new houses on the east.

Part of Square Mile Residential Development

This sketch of River Forest manor, Elmwood Park development of the Fort Dearborn Mortgage company, subsidiary of the Chicago corporation, shows how homes are being staggered to break up the monotony of a uniform building line and also to give residents better vistas. All garages will be attached, so that back yards will form a continuous stretch of gardens and lawns, unmarred by the old fashioned separate garage building on the rear lot lins. White & Weber, Chicago architects, are designing the homes in this $2,000,000 building development.

Polish Alliance Headquarters



Joseph A. Slupkowski is architect of the above two story national headquarters building of the Polish National alliance, to be erected at the northeast corner of Division street and Bosworth avenue, at a reported cost of $215,000. Completely air conditioned it will be built of Indiana limestone, with foundations capable of carrying two additional stories. Completion is set for March 1, 1938. The alliance, largest organization of Poles in the United States, has approximately 300,000 members. It was founded fifty-seven years ago.

FORMER LAKE BLUFF PRESIDENT REPORTS BUILDING ACTIVITY

Lake Bluff has experienced an active resumption of construction activities, according to Elmer B. Vliet, former president of the village. Since May 1 of last year permits have been issued for building operations costing $411,310, he said.

Some of the homes erected include the Joseph Field residence on Moffett road, the Conway H. Olmsted estate on Sheridan road, the homes of H. R. Beyers on Scranton avenue, and those of Stuart E. Uhlman and Ralph A. Munkers on Witchwood lane.

Other homes are those of George C. Dufour, Clayton A. White, Joseph A. Bubb, and A. E. Vollum, on North avenue; Frank J. Link on Ravine avenue, Ralph J. Hines on Crescent drive, Russell Baker on Ravine Forest drive, and Walter C. Hall, Prospect avenue.

The village's current debt has been wiped out, Vliet said, the town placed on a cash basis, the cost of government reduced, and no bonded indebtedness incurred since 1924.

West Side Realtors to Hold All Day Golf Outing Aug. 24

The West Side Real Estate board, of which Fred M. Thuerk is president and Joseph R. Dorfman is vice president, will hold its third annual golf outing and dinner at the Medinah Country club on Tuesday, Aug. 24. Joseph B. Ford is sports chairman and Frank W. Henzler golf outing chairman. Three hundred members and friends are expected to attend the all-day outing.

Brokers' Notes

Following the consummation of one of Chicago's most unusual real estate transactions, the swapping of the nineteen story Times building at 211 West Wacker drive by the estate of Marshall Field for the Central Life Insurance company's sixteen story building at the southwest corner of Michigan and Superior, Ward Farnsworth of the Field estate yesterday announced managerial details.

Fred Wolff, manager of the 700 North Michigan Avenue building for the Field estate, will manage the former Central Life building, rechristened the 720 North Michigan Avenue building. The property is 100 per cent rented. The Real Estate corporation will manage the Times building for its new owner, the Central Life Insurance company.

Frank E. Brown has been elected chairman of the executive committee of the Apartment Building Owners and Managers association of Chicago, succeeding Herbert N. Lustig of Ross, Browne & Fleming. He is manager of the properties of the Edith Rockefeller McCormick trust.

Nashville Shoe Concern Plans 12 Chicago Stores

The General Shoe corporation, Nashville, Tenn., yesterday leased space at 11103 South Michigan avenue for the first unit in a contemplated chain of twelve Chicago stores to operate under the name of Flagg Brothers. The premises were leased from Mollie Aronson and Lillian Silverman for a term of years beginning Sept. 1. After a modernizing program, which will include a new front and air conditioning to cost a reported $12,000, the store is scheduled to open on Oct. 1. Coen-Berkson & Co. represented the lessee and Landau & Perlman the lessors.

LEASES SOUTH MICHIGAN SPACE.

The Stone Chemical Laboratories, Inc., has leased for a term of years the store and basement at 1509 South Michigan avenue from Max Goldenberg through Arthur Rubloff & Co.

SUBURBS REPORT BUILDING TOTAL LOWER IN JULY

Value Is Far Below June and Also Year Ago.

Suburban construction of all types, including home building, showed a sharp decline during July as compared with June and the same month last year. Permits were issued for buildings valued at $2,486,729 last month. During the same month last year suburban building totaled $3,380,962. For June, 1937, permits amounted to $3,356,452. This is a decline of $894,233 as compared with July, last year, and $869,723 less than for June, this year.

Although home building throughout the suburbs showed a slight decline in dollar value as compared with July, last year, an encouraging feature was the increase in number of homes.

Cheaper Houses Built.

This means, of course, that cheaper houses were built than during the same month of 1936, but it also means that residences for people of smaller incomes are being built. Most of the homes erected in the suburbs in recent months have been for the more prosperous families.

Permits for 231 residences were issued in the suburbs during July, costing $1,425,054. These figures compare with 175 permits in July, 1936, for homes costing $1,572,743.

Comparisons with previous months of this year are not so encouraging. There were seventy fewer homes planned during July than in June, with the cost declining from $1,905,397 in June to $1,425,054 in July.

The seven months' totals, however, continue to make cheerful reading. So far this year permits have been issued for 1,531 homes, costing $11,905,667, compared with 647 residences for the same period last year, costing $6,123,538.

Total Cost Rises.

The total cost of all types of buildings, including homes, for the seven months of 1937 was $20,942,415, as compared with $15,222,431 for the same period during 1936.

According to the survey of suburban building compiled by the Straus Securities company, the prospective home builder seems suddenly to have become conscious of the ever mounting taxes of all kinds and on all phases of his building activities.

"Standing out most conspicuously is the 3 per cent state sales tax added to the cost of all materials," explained a builder operating in several western suburbs. "This increases the cost of a $10,000 house about $200.

Pass Taxes Along.

"Then there are the costs of old age and unemployment insurance, a total of 3 per cent, which the contractor must pass along this year to the person building a home. The building permit also will run as high as $150 on a house costing $10,000.

"State taxes are high, wages have reached new peaks, and although the lumber industries have stabilized their prices, the cost of materials still remains a serious obstacle."

Contracts Awarded

Contracts awarded in Chicago during the week of Aug. 6 to 12, according to figures supplied by the F. W. Dodge corporation, totaled twenty-five, with a combined cost of $1,654,000. For the corresponding week last year there were twenty-nine contracts totaling $339,200. So far this year the total cost of contracts is $39,553,408, compared with $25,265,845 for the same period last year.

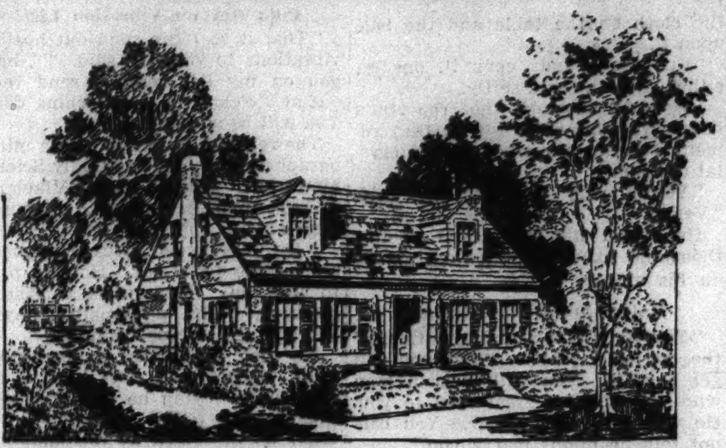
At the Realty Boards

The Oak Park Real Estate board will hold its last summer round-table meeting tomorrow, Aug. 16, at the Oak Manor hotel. The first meeting of the fall program will be held on Sept. 20.

Bought by Physician

The above six room residence, designed by Albert Frederic Heino, is the first home of the new thirty-five unit Colonial village project of Harmon Homes, Inc., in New Roseland, to be sold. It was purchased by Dr. Frederick R. Zeiss of 8807 Bishop avenue. It is at 12834 Wallace street, occupying a 60 by 123 foot lot. The buyer, assistant surgeon for the Carnegie Illinois Steel corporation, is reported to have paid $10,500. It is financed with a Federal Housing administration insured mortgage through the Material Homes Finance corporation of New York. Although colonial in design, it has modern type corner windows.

Going Up in Beverly Hills



The above six room Cape Cod type house is being erected at 2217 West 108th place, Beverly Hills, by J. D. Howat, from plans by Kocher & Larson. The Vagtborg Construction company has the contract. It is partly financed by a Federal Housing administration insured loan through the Republic Realty Mortgage corporation.

HILTON PLANS AIR CONTROL FOR LOOP UNIT

Joseph Hilton & Sons, who operate a chain of men's clothing stores, yesterday closed a long term renewal of their Republic building space with the Northern Trust company, trustee for the estate of Henry Strong. James Belanger, vice president of Gordon Strong & Co., negotiated the deal.

The lessees will spend a reported $40,000 in remodeling and air conditioning the first floor, basement, and third floor space. A new store front to cost $15,000 will be installed.

The company, which formerly handled only men's goods, contemplates adding a new department to handle women's clothes.

DISBURSE MORE IN REALTY BOND REFINANCINGS

American Bond Committee Trebles Cash.

Bond interest and stock dividends amounting to $201,300 were paid to bondholders of Chicago properties reorganized through the American Bond and Mortgage company's bondholders' protective committee during the first seven months of this year, according to Dayton Keith, chairman. This total was more than treble the payments of $58,989 made during the same period of 1936, Keith asserted.

Total payments on all properties, both in and outside Chicago, reorganized through the committee for the seven months were $374,628, compared with $146,665 during the corresponding period of 1936.

Range From 25 Cents to $7.50.

The payments ranged in relative amounts from 25 cents per $100 bond on the Trianon ballroom property to an interest payment of $7.50 per $100 bond made at the conclusion of the reorganization of Lake Shore Towers.

The total interest distribution on Lake Shore Towers was $46,087, representing interest at 3 per cent for the two and a half years ended June 30, 1937.

Other interest payments included 5 per cent on the Broadway Strand theater, 4 per cent on the Marbro theater and 3 per cent on the Marks Brothers theater, now operated as the Granada.

Receives Initial Payment.

Chicago properties included in the list for the first time since reorganization are the Cottage Grove and Seventy-ninth Street commercial property, paying $2 per $100 bond, and the 1111 Lawrence avenue commercial property, which paid an initial dividend of $1 per $100 bond. The semi-annual dividend on the Engineering building was increased from 60 cents in 1936 to 75 cents last spring.

Dividends on the Coronado apartments [1061 Rosemont Building corporation] were increased to $1.50 as compared with $1 last year, and on the Lorraine Business block [79th and Racine Building corporation] to $1 as compared with 50 cents in 1936. Knickerbocker theater certificate holders received another semi-annual dividend of $3 per $100 bond.

J. N. Lehman, auditor of the committee for six years, yesterday was appointed secretary, succeeding A. F. Mohl, who recently resigned.

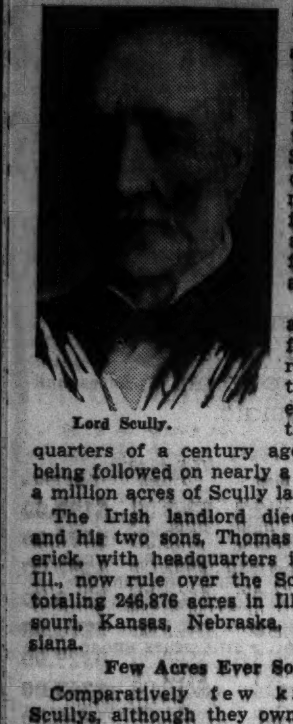
Quarter Million Acres of Rich Soil in Scullyland.

BY FRANK RIDGWAY.

When Lord William Scully came to America from Ireland, 86 years ago, he established an agricultural empire in the midland of the United States and created a new world for thousands of farm tenants.



Lord Scully.

His unique and liberal farm land renting system, started more than three-quarters of a century ago, still is being followed on nearly a quarter of a million acres of Scully land.

The Irish landlord died in 1906, and his two sons, Thomas and Frederick, with headquarters in Lincoln, Ill., now rule over the Scully lands totaling 246,876 acres in Illinois, Missouri, Kansas, Nebraska, and Louisiana.

Few Acres Ever Sold.

Comparatively few know the Scullys, although they own the largest number of acres of cultivated land held by one family in the country. Only a few acres have ever been sold. None of the land ever has been mortgaged and no delinquent tax notice ever has been issued against it.

His tenants and the few neighbors who knew him ranked Lord Scully among the greatest farm leaders of his day, but he was too shy to accept public recognition, and his sons are chips off the old block. It is no surprise that the name Scully is not in Ivin's and Winship's book, "Fifty Famous Farmers." Their names are not in "Who's Who in America." Nor do their pictures hang with those of other national agricultural leaders in the portrait gallery of Chicago's famous Saddle and Sirloin club.

The Move from Ireland.

The Scullys come from a long line of country gentlemen. The family owned an estate in Ireland for four or five hundred years. William Scully left Ireland when it was the creed of millions of Irish men and women to hate Irish landlords and hate the British government. Soil from his Emerald Isle farm still clung to his boot heels when he arrived in America in 1851.

He rode a railroad train as far west as the railroad would take him. That was Altoona, Pa. In Altoona he bought a horse, a saddle, a pair of saddlebags, and a little spade without a handle. Then he rode across eastern and midwestern states searching for land.

When the immigrant saw a piece of land that looked good he would fashion a handle from a sapling for his spade, dig up some of the rich earth, and send it to a New England laboratory for analysis.

Hears of Rich River Soil.

He had money to invest in his line, as he said fifty years later in one of his rare interviews, and his line was farming. He had heard of wonderful stretches of rich soil in the Mississippi valley. He learned what he wanted to know about the depth and quality of the soil, and after two years of investigation he settled in central Illinois.

Confident that some day there would be a railroad between Chicago and St. Louis, he bought rich prairie land on a straight line between those cities for $1.25 an acre. He bought thousands of acres more from soldiers after the civil war.

So deep was Lord Scully's respect for the land that his feeling became ingrained in his sons as well. They selected farming as their occupation and were graduated from agriculture colleges.

How Land Is Divided.

Nearly 92,000 acres are owned by Thomas—46,883 acres in Logan, Sangamon, and Grundy counties in Illinois, and 45,034 acres in Bates county, Missouri. Frederick owns 154,959 acres—54,642 in Marion county, Kansas; 8,296 in Marshall county, Kansas; 40,684 in Nuckolls county, Nebraska; 24,337 in Gage county, Nebraska, and 27,000 in Lafouche parish near Cut Off, Louisiana.

The rich prairie land that their father turned up with his handleless spade has remained rich through the years, largely due to a rigid soil maintenance program that was started by Lord Scully more than thirty-five years ago and has been continued ever since. The plan of reducing soil depleting crops was carried on for so many years on Scully farms that in many cases tenants found it impractical to reduce their crops further to qualify for benefits under the federal government's curtailment program.

Agents Regulate Tenants.

Nearly 1,200 tenants operate the Scully land, which is supervised by the two Scullys and fourteen agents and subagents. William Trapp and Frank Ryan are in immediate charge of the lands and have offices in the headquarters at Lincoln.

The land is operated under one of the most liberal renting plans in America. The general practice is to rent the land for cash, in contrast to the crop sharing system followed or most farms in this country.

The tenants furnish all improvements—houses, barns, sheds, and cribs. The Scullys own everything from the surface down, and the tenants own everything from the surface up. Tenants sign leases annually, agreeing to pay a fixed amount in cash, but in practice the final settlement is based on the crops produced.

Private Experimental Station.

The cash rent basis is in effect on all the property except for that farmed by forty-seven tenants in Grundy county, Illinois, and 27,000 acres of swamp land in Louisiana, on which Frederick Scully is operating the largest private agricultural experiment station in the United States. Only 2,500 acres of the Louisiana land is farmed.

For the most part, each tenant is required to follow an approved crop rotation system to maintain the fertility; to keep tile and drainage ditches open; to see that an eight foot strip of sod is kept growing along each side of ditches, and to destroy weeds and willows.

A bonus is paid or an abatement in rent is made to get farmers to raise soil building crops. Each tenant agrees to sow legumes on one-fourth of the cultivated land.

Planting Governed by Lease.

In Logan county, for example, the tenant agrees to sow one-fourth of the farm, exclusive of lot, orchard and pasture, in small grain such as oats, wheat and rye each year, and sow in the small grain clover and sweet clover. The legume cannot be plowed under for at least eighteen months after it is sown. The rent is remitted on all land sown to legumes. Corn cannot be planted where corn was grown during the two years preceeding. The legumes may be pastured or cut for hay but the hay must be fed on the farm. The tenant agrees to pay an additional rent of $15 for each acre on which he fails to raise and handle the legumes as required in the lease.

Tenants like the soil building plan; it means bigger yields and bigger profits, and makes it possible for them to buy land of their own. Mr. Trapp says that more Scully tenants have been able to buy their own farms than perhaps any other group of tenants in the country. There is always a list of farmers waiting to buy Scully leases. The popularity of the leases is indicated by the fact that some tenants spend their entire lives on Scully land; some have been on Scully land for more than fifty years. Tenants average holding their leases twenty-five years.

57 Years on Same Land.

Jacob Mayer has the longest record as a Scully lease holder. He has been on the same Scully farm, 1¼ miles north of Emden, near Lincoln, for fifty-seven years, having sold his lease a few days ago. Mrs. Johanna Cross lives on a Scully farm which she has been leasing for forty-eight years. She has nine sons and all of them live on Scully land.

Scully tenants invest from $5,000 to $8,000 in improvements on a 160 acre farm. When they leave the place they have the privilege of selling their lease and the improvements with the approval of the owner. The prospective buyer is required to have enough money to pay down at least half the agreed purchase price. Tenants in some cases have sold their improvements for more than they cost.

None of the rented farms covers more than a section of land. Farms in Illinois, Missouri, and Nebraska range in size from 80 to 320 acres. In Kansas they are larger—200 to 640 acres in each farm.

The revolutionary practice of abating rent was started by the Scully brothers several years ago at the beginning of a long stretch of bad crop years. The practice has been continued for more than a decade. Payments are adjusted in line with the crops raised.

Under the abatement plan some tenants have paid only the taxes, and in a few cases they did not even pay the taxes in recent years.

Farm Empire of Scullyland

Map shows where Thomas and Frederick Scully own nearly one-quarter of a million acres of farm land, including 27,000 acres in Louisiana (not shown). This is the largest number of acres of cultivated land owned by one family in the United States.

The Big Business of Farm Land Management

A few cents an acre in many cases is the difference between profit and loss on the farms in Scullyland. The best producing land must bear the losses of other farms in poor years, as shown by the following table, which gives the profit or loss (minus signs show losses) per acre on Scullyland in five states for the last five years:

County and state.	Acres.	Crop years

Scullyland at a Glance

1. The farms cover nearly a quarter million acres in five states—the largest cultivated holdings of any family in the United States.
2. The family has held the land for three-quarters of a century; none ever has been mortgaged, and taxes never have been delinquent on it.
3. The renting system is one of the nation's most liberal—the tenants own all improvements, which they may sell on leaving their farms, but few leave. Although leases, signed annually, call for cash rent, final settlement is based on actual crops produced.
4. None of the farms is larger than 640 acres, preserving the family unit system of farming.
5. Bonuses and penalties promote the cultivation of soil building crops and prevent deterioration of the land.

WORLD'S BEST SCHOLARS LOOK TO LAKE FOREST

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

Scholarship over the world has been attracted to Lake Forest college recently by the announcement of the trustees that they will award a cash prize of $15,000 on Jan. 1, 1940, for the best unpublished book or manuscript "on the connection, relation, and mutual bearing of the humanities, the social sciences, the physical sciences, or any branch of knowledge with and upon the Christian religion."

Herbert M. Moore.

The story of this competition, which may result in a valuable contribution toward the great synthesis of science and religion that is hoped for and needed so much today, is intimately related to the early days of this small liberal arts college in the quiet forest and by the sky blue waters of Lake Michigan.

Seek New Knowledge of God.

What is the relation between the universal longing and emotion known as the religious feeling, the sense of a reality outside the small human patch of knowledge, and the order revealed in the movements of suns and planets, the statistical behavior of elementary physical nature, the unpredictable behavior of men and electrons, and the narrowing bridge between what is called life and inorganic nature?

Suppose that out of an idea that took form in the prayer meeting room of the old Second Presbyterian church, when Chicago was only 20 years old, which resulted in Lake Forest college and in the later interest of William Bross and the founding of this competition, a new idea of the unknown oversoul called God should come to mankind in beauty and wisdom? Perhaps Albert Einstein's "traditional synthesis" will emerge from this beginning.

President Herbert McComb Moore of Lake Forest compares thoughts expressed and apparently forgotten, later to join in the formation of public opinion and group action of some sort, with a lighted candle when the flame is blown out. The light is not lost, but escapes as energy, shooting a million miles away in five seconds, and returning, perhaps, to earth in some other form in some far future day.

It was in 1855 that the Rev. Robert W. Patterson, the Rev. Harvey Curtis and others in the church meeting room decided upon the establishment of a university in a secluded place near Chicago.

"I believe we have made a great step forward for the glory of the kingdom of God," said Mr. Curtis. They decided upon the name and speculated as to whether they could get the train to stop there.

First Class Is in 1861.

The first college class was held in 1861. The Rev. William C. Dickinson, speaking to the four students, said:

"Let it be a small college, but let there be those who love her. Above all things, may this new college be dedicated to the glory and honor of the kingdom of Almighty God."

The four students marched away to war and college classes were not resumed until 1876. Dr. Patterson was made the first president, and through the influence of Mrs. C. B. Farwell the institution was made coeducational.

Memorial to His Son.

In addition to aiding the college directly, Mr. Bross, who had recently lost a little son, got the college to administer for him a memorial in the form of a series of prizes every ten years and a grand award every fifty years for the best writing on the relation of Christianity to organized knowledge. This agreement was consummated at his death in 1890. The offer is open to scholars of all nations.

"My object," he stated, "is to call out the best efforts of the highest talent and the ripest scholarship of the world, to illustrate from science or from any department of knowledge and to demonstrate the divine origin and authority of the Christian scriptures; and further, to show how both science and revelation coincide and prove the existence, the providence, or any or all of the only living and true God, infinite, eternal, and unchangeable in his being, wisdom, power, holiness, justice, goodness, and truth."

Former winners of these prizes are Prof. James Orr, United Free Church college, Glasgow, Scotland; the Rev. Thomas James Thorburn, Hastings, Sussex, England, and Douglas Clyde MacIntosh, Dwight professor of theology, Yale university.

Lake Forest gathered fine men to its faculty and grew steadily through the years. The Rev. James G. K. McClure, who was president for many years, said at the inauguration of President Moore in 1921:

"An endowment has been gradually acquired of so worthy an amount as to place Lake Forest on a foundation that is sure and potential. This endowment has some distinguishing provisions, as, for instance, the Bross fund, a fund which is broad, large, and stimulating, and which is bound as time goes on to make contributions to scholarship that will command the attention of leading minds and the leading institutions of the world. . . .

"The influence exerted by this institution on the immediate community has been markedly beneficial. With the increase of the population of the community and with the increase of all sorts of physical relaxations, social amenities and material luxuries, these educational interests have not relatively held so prominent a position; but through all the years and today the presence of these schools has been a steadying, balancing, sobering power. Plain living and high thinking have helped to stabilize this place, and have counteracted the tendencies to dizziness and disaster which always imperil the upper altitudes of social and financial success."

Although incorporated as a university and at one time having medical and law schools and preparatory departments, Lake Forest in 1925 completed segregation of these entities and is today a plain liberal arts college with 383 students.

54 ALL-AMERICANS TAKE FIRST DRILL FOR PACKERS

SHOW DASH IN 2½ HOURS' WORK UNDER HOT SUN

Notre Dame Shift Is Chosen by Coaches.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

The All-Americans of 1936, the finest football players of last year's campaign, began work yesterday afternoon at Dyche stadium in preparation for their battle with the Green Bay Packers, champions of the National Professional Football league, at Soldiers' field on the night of Sept. 1. With no more delay than was occasioned by the routine of issuing equipment and the assignment of lockers in the Dyche stadium fieldhouse, the boys opened with a workout of two and a half hours.

This immediate attention to the task of whipping the Packers indicates that the coaching staf intends to utilize every possible hour to bring the university stars together in an offense which will be equal to the task of scoring touchdowns. And the players, who raced up and down the practice gridiron under the summer sun with the enthusiasm of sophomores striving for positions on the varsity, matched the spirit of the coaches.

57 Collegians Report.

Fifty-seven members of the squad had reported last night by the dinner hour. Yesterday was the date appointed for the rendezvous of the stars, but in their instructions it was not indicated that practice would be held on the opening afternoon. The squad is expected to be intact this morning with the exception of George Bell, Purdue center, and Nello Falaschi, Santa Clara blocking back. Bell was injured recently and cannot report until Wednesday. Word was brought yesterday by the boys from the Pacific coast that Falaschi is recuperating at his home at Los Gatos, Cal., from an attack of influenza. He hopes to report within a few days, but it remains to be seen whether he can take his place on the squad.

Three of the boys reported late yesterday afternoon, and as a result missed the opening drill. These were Ray [Buzz] Buivid of Marquette, one of the greatest forward passers of last year; Will Phillips, the fleet half back from De Paul university, and Woody Stromberg, Army end, who lives in Chicago, but who has been vacationing this summer in McGregor, Minn.

Pitt Players Due This Morning.

Last of the groups to arrive will be three members of the University of Pittsburgh eleven which won the national championship last January by whipping the University of Washington in the Rose Bowl game. These men, Bob La Rue, Bill Glassford, and Averell Daniell, will arrive this morning. Washington's coach, Jimmy Phelan, arrived yesterday morning by airplane from Los Angeles to complete the All-Star coaching staf of five. Elmer Layden of Notre Dame, however, missed the opening workout because he was completing arrangements in South Bend to be absent for the training period. Layden met with Head Coach Charles Dorais of Detroit, Lynn Waldorf of Northwestern, and Bernie Moore of Louisiana State Friday, when plans for the training workouts were formulated.

Considerable preparatory work was completed yesterday by the coaching staf. It was decided, according to announcement by Coach Dorais, that the Notre Dame back field shift style of attack would be used. For several hours the coaches had debated the advisability of dividing the squad into two groups, one consisting of those players who had learned the wing back and unbalanced line formations and the other composed of players who were accustomed to the back field shift. This was feasible, since

IT'S NEVER TOO EARLY! AND HEAT DOESN'T STOP 'EM

The curtain went up yesterday afternoon on the opening phase of the college All-Star football squad's training period for the battle with the Green Bay Packers, professional champions, at Soldiers' field the night of Sept. 1. Fifty-four of the fifty-seven players who had reported last night worked out for 2½ hours under Head Coach Gus Dorais of Detroit and his assistants at Dyche stadium, Northwestern university. The players are seen getting first instructions from Coach Dorais, at right.

Four members of the All-Stars' coaching staf of five sent their charges through the first workout yesterday. The coaches, who have decided to employ the Notre Dame shift, included (left to right): Jimmy Phelan, University of Washington; Head Coach Dorais, University of Detroit; Lynn Waldorf, Northwestern, and Bernie Moore, Louisiana State. Marica Wins Peabody Mile; Deliberator 2d

When the game Black mare, Marica from French Lick Springs, Ind., owned by Thomas D. Taggart, takes a bow as she did yesterday at Lincoln Fields after winning the mile Francis S. Peabody handicap, there are more reasons than one for the storm of applause which always seems to come her way.

She's one of a two horse stable—a Cinderella gal for luck—when she walks into the charmed winner's circle. Reservations in that much coveted space usually go to the stars in more extensive racing establishments.

Still Mr. Taggart is racing only two horses, both of his own breeding, and Marica has certainly made it possible for him to put one over on the turf statisticians this year.

Second Straight at Crete.

When Marica moved forward in her long, graceful strides at the head of the stretch to take the lead in yesterday's handicap, she stepped right into her second straight stake race triumph within a week at Lincoln Fields. A week earlier, almost to the minute, she had won the Crete handicap.

The Crete was at six furlongs. She nearly lost her rivals in that struggle. She perhaps could have done the same thing yesterday, but Jocky Bobby Dotter was satisfied to let her win by a length and a quarter.

Deliberator, which had made the pace for her in the early stages, finished second. Hard working Dellor ran third and Dnieper was fourth.

Never More Than Half Length Back.

Trailing the speedy Deliberator in the early stages while he romped a half mile in :46 seconds and rounded out the three-quarters in 1:09 4-5, Marica never was more than a half length behind.

Marica, showing for the first time that she is something more than a sprinter, was marking time while fleet Deliberator made the dizzy pace. It seemed that she could have taken the lead at any time. The others, with the exception of Dellor, had no excuses to offer.

Dellor tried to squeeze through quarters that were entirely too close on the turn into the stretch. It was Jocky Haas's mistake for he had to

Green Bay Begins Drill for All-Stars

BY GEORGE STRICKLER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Green Bay, Wis., Aug. 14.—This busy little town with the big city football team reveled in the thrill of a new adventure today as the community owned Packers, world professional champions, began 18 days of intensive drill for the All-Star game at Chicago Sept. 1.

The burghers shut off the radios and left the Cubs to the Reds. Ticket sellers lolled idly under theater canopies where air-condition signs glared invitingly but futilely in the 95 degree sun and only the very young and the very old peopled the spacious municipal beaches. The Packers were opening practice for the All-Star game and Green Bay turned out to have a look.

A Three Year Wait.

Green Bay had waited three years for this moment. The All-Star goal had been set immediately after the Bears, the Packers' most bitter rivals, had escaped with a tie in the first All-Star contest in 1934. It is more than a sporting proposition with Green Bay folks.

It is a matter of extreme pride and they have become almost rabid in their loyalty to the team they confidently expect will pass its way to a three touchdown victory over the All-Americans.

While a corps of patrolmen established police lines on the four sides of the practice field, Coach Curley Lambeau sent a squad of 28 men, including 22 veterans and six rookies, through a three hour drill, devoted mostly to conditioning exercises and signals. The start was most auspicious. The first pass thrown, a long one from Arnie Herber to Don Hutson, was completed and the hundreds of sweltering well-wishers greeted it with a resounding cheer.

Smith Completes Roster.

Cleveland, O., Aug. 14.—The White Sox this afternoon rooted deeper into fourth place when they failed to take advantage of Bill Dietrich's seven hit pitching. The Indians soaked them again, this time by a 4 to 3 count.

The Sox outhit the Indians, but there was much swooning at the plate with runners in scoring position. Most striking instances where the ammonia bottle would have helped were in the fifth and eighth innings. With the score tied, 3 to 3, in the fifth Dietrich led off with a stirring triple, doubtless one of the outstanding batting efforts of his life. The efforts of subsequent batsmen to send Bill home were either ludicrous or pathetic, according to the mood and partisanship of the beholder.

Sox Miss Another Chance.

In the eighth, with the Indians leading, 4 to 3, the Sox got runners on third and second with one out. Then old Earl Whitehill, second Indian pitcher, tossed three successive roundhouse curves over the plate. Haas didn't get the bat off his shoulder for any of the three pitches. The inning ended with Piet's fly to Solters.

There was no fainting in the ninth, but there was an episode just as trying to those, including Manager Dykes, who would like to see the Sox return to baseball playing. Berger led off the ninth with a blistering shot over third, but loafed in his assurance that he had an easy double, at least it may be assumed that overconfidence was the reason he loitered. He really oughtn't to be fatigued. Berger's leisurely progress gave Lary time to take Solters' throw and tag the White Sox runner. This fadeout cooked the Sox goose.

Twelfth Defeat of Trip.

The outcome today gave the Sox their 12th blistering of their epochal stagger through six cities and evened the season series with the Indians at 5-all in place of the 5 to 1 ratio that once prevailed.

One run which the Sox made in the first inning on Kreevich's walk and steal and Radcliff's single, stood up until the Indians' second inning. But here is how the lead vanished in the second: With one down Campbell beat out a bouncer to Piet and stole second. Hale doubled over Walker's head, scoring Campbell, Sullivan tripled to left center, Hale scoring, and Sullivan got home on Allen's squeeze bunt, after which Lary fanned.

The Sox tied the score in the fourth on nice smacking by Radcliff and Appling. Rip opened with his second single and scored when Luke drove a 415 foot triple to left center. Appling scored the tying run on Haas' fly to Campbell. Piet and Shea supplied easy outs.

Triple Goes to Waste.

The top of the Sox batting order let Dietrich waste his really grand triple in the fifth. Bill smashed one to the left field wall and revealed why he once was a sprint champion by the manner in which he dashed to third. Hayes then tapped to Allen, Kreevich whiffed, Walker walked and Radcliff popped to Lary.

The next hit after Dietrich's wasted triple in the fifth was Dietrich's wasted single in the seventh. Dietrich singled to center with one out and promptly was forced on Hayes' tap to Trosky. Kreevich flied to Campbell. Hale opened the home seventh with the Indians' sixth hit and fourth double. Sullivan sacrificed and Pytlak, batting for Allen, tripled past Walker, scoring Hale.

THREE HOMERS PACE WINNERS' 17 HIT ASSAULT

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

The lowly Reds, who twenty-four hours previous had furnished rare amusement in the shape of eight errors, put on a new act yesterday and caused the first place Cubs no end of discomfort. The Rhinelanders said it with base hits—no fewer than seventeen of assorted lengths—and by a 10 to 5 score knocked a full game off the margin by which the Chicagoans are pacing the National league. The lead now is five and one-half laps over the second place Giants.

Along with the shower of enemy hits the Cubs found an additional complication in Al Hollingsworth, who performs with his left arm. The gentleman was slightly wild in the early innings and because of this the first placers were able to score two runs on two hits. A pass also assisted in the sixth, when a pinch double by Tuck Stainback drove home a pair and restored a fighting chance to the Cubs. After that the first placers added a few more hits, three of them in the ninth, to make their total appear a bit more respectable.

Cubs Use Three Pitchers.

Three Cub pitchers swung into action at one time or another, but the Reds were not affected by the changes. The first man they pulverized was Curt Davis, who was lucky enough to get by for six innings on a yield of only five runs despite eleven hits. After Stainback's pinch two-bagger had revived hopes, Larry French was summoned to start the seventh. He managed to retire two men but not until after three had scored. Leroy Parmelee was asked to halt this disturbance and did, but in the eighth was treated to his share of the day's torment, two scoring.

Even with hits falling in every inning, Davis had a chance until the fifth when the Reds suddenly got the range on the shortened fences. Ival Goodman hit one into the old bleacher with one on. A moment later Alex Kampouris hit one into the new seats, also with one mate on base. The same fellow helped to slay French by plunking the center field wall for a double in the seventh. And in the eighth Ernie Lombardi unwrapped the prize by sending one of Parmelee's offerings to the back of the new bleacher in left center.

Davis Gets a Double.

The Reds nicked Curt Davis for three hits and a pass in the first two innings but fortunately the enemy indulged in dumb base running, which made it easy for the Cubs to cut down two men at the plate. Curt's good fortune, however, didn't hold out in the third and the Rhinelanders picked up the tying run. Goodman singled to right and Scarsella singled to center. Lombardi tapped to Curt and a double play should have resulted, but Jurges was so long in covering second that only Scarsella was retired. This put Goodman on

BURNING STAR WINS IN 68TH TRAVERS RUNNING

Triumphs in Stretch Drive at Saratoga.

Saratoga Springs, N. Y., Aug. 14.—[Special.] — Hammering his way through along the rail and overcoming interference at two turns Burning Star today won the sixty-eighth Travers running before 25,000, the largest crowd of the season at Saratoga.

In the secondary feature Wheatley stable's Merry Lassie captured the forty-eighth Spinaway, leading practically all the way to finish three lengths ahead of E. D. Shaffer's Evening Shadow.

The Travers, oldest race renewed in the United States, had a value of $20,000, $14,550 of which went to the owner of Burning Star.

An upset appeared likely in the Travers as Melodist, the Wood Memorial winner, dashed away to a long early lead, but it was a short lived effort. Going to the far turn Melodist began to shorten stride as Burning Star closed along the rail, and Matey made a move with Gosum on the outside. The field bunched up, and out of the pack came Up and Doing to draw away to a two length lead.

Burning Star got the worst of it as the five horses were bunched, but Jocky Wayne Wright gathered him together and set out for the lead once more. Up and Doing's speed was enough to send him into the stretch still in front. But at this point Burning Star again came to contention, and Up and Doing was taken over to the rail to shut it off.

But so powerful was the charge of Burning Star that he again recovered, and again drove for the opening along the rail. This time Up and Doing could not shut him off without committing an outright foul. As a result Burning Star got through and swept ahead to an easy victory.

Marica Wins Peabody Mile; Deliberator 2d

take the old hard worker back and then start a drive on the outside.

Marica and Deliberator were running too fast for him to rally again to catch them.

Runs Year's Fastest Mile.

When Marica rounded out the mile in 1:35 2-5 she had run the fastest mile of the year in America. To make it still more impressive it was no doubt the fastest race run in the world in 1937. Horses in other countries do not run miles as fast as they do in the United States.

The Francis S. Peabody Memorial had a gross value of $3,175. Marica's share was $2,245. It increased her earnings for the year to $13,715. It was her seventh victory in nine starts this season. She was second on the two occasions in which she suffered defeat.

More than ever today she stands out as America's best racing mare. Soon after she won yesterday's handicap, a western horseman offered owner Taggart $40,000 for her. He said she was not for sale.

Epinard's Best Progeny.

Marica is a daughter of Epinard-Canberra, the latter a daughter of the imported Craigengower. She is head and shoulders better than any of the other horses Epinard ever produced in this country. She was a red hot favorite with the 15,000 spectators at Lincoln Fields yesterday despite the top weight impost of 122 pounds that she carried.

In the betting she paid $4.80 for a $2 ticket. Dellor had been the second choice.

Marica's great performance took much of the glamor away from the $2,500 added Chicago Heights handicap fashioned for 2 year olds.

To win it from one of the smartest bands of juveniles that has tried for a prize at Lincoln Fields this season Mad Money showed the same dazzling speed display and the same gameness that made it possible for him to capture the Hyde Park stakes at Arlington Park.

It's Great Stretch Battle.

Mad Money conquered Lassator a half furlong from the line of finish, then gradually drew away from him until he was leading at the finish by a length. Lassator had made all of the early pace, Mad Money ran second all the way, and Mar Le was close up in third place for the entire journey.

Darky's Dream, of which much was expected, ran far back all the way and finished last. Co-Sport was the only one of the others that offered serious contention, but he started his drive too late. It caused him to be beaten for all the money by three lengths.

Mad Money is a son of North Star III.-Knockout. He carried 112 pounds to Lassator's 115.

M'CORMICK WINS NATIONAL PUBLIC LINKS GOLF TITLE

San Francisco, Cal., Aug. 14.—(AP)—Bruce McCormick, Los Angeles fireman, became national public links champion today with a 1 up 36 hole victory over Don Erickson of Alhambra, Cal.

McCormick stroked the ball into the cup for a first hole par 4 and it gave him a lead he held until the match ended on the thirty-sixth green. He was 4 up at the ninth, 3 up at the eighteenth, and 4 up again at the twenty-seventh. His medal score was not up to his efforts through the rest of the tournament, but it was sufficient to hold Erickson.

CAMERA EYE SAVES JUDGES A TOUGH JOB

Here's how the same finish looked to the camera's eye. Palamede is well across the line in first place, Boston Pal is just about to put his nose under the wire for second place, and Sun Captor is flashing his white blinkers in third position. Sir Midas is fourth.

LADY BOO, improved and away fast, followed the pace under steady restraint for a half mile, came around BEDIGHT gradually and, after getting to the front, drew out as she was kept under pressure to the end. BEDIGHT had good speed, saved ground and held on in creditable style, but was not good enough. HAMMEL worked his way up gradually to the final eighth where he went evenly.

ODDESA HELEN, fractious at the post but away fast, was hustled into command before reaching the turn, where she was given a short breathing spell; swerved out slightly in the stretch and, holding on gamely, held TIGER TEDDY safe. Latter, well up from the start, neared the lead when racing on the outside of the winner entering the stretch, was taken back and to the inside approaching the final eighth and closed resolutely when straight. MIGHTILY, taken back repeatedly in the early stages, was laboring badly in the late stages after having made up some ground in the stretch.

Winner trained by G. B. Scallon. Went to post at 3:28½. At post 3½ minutes. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Daily double paid $105.

WILD PIGEON, away fast and on the outside throughout, was kept under light restraint for a half mile, slowly drew into command when placed to strong hand riding in the stretch and was going strongly at the end. TOBY TYLER, on the inside throughout, had fine speed from the start and held on with good courage. BLACK BUDDY, also well up from the start, saved ground early, dropped back slightly in coming to the outside in the stretch and closed boldly when straight.

PALAMEDE, steadied when outrun and brought to the extreme outside in the stretch, closed with good belated speed under strong handling and got up in the final stride. BOSTON PAL placed outside the stalls for the start and away well, was rated under light reserve for three-quarters, got to the front while going gamely in the drive and barely failed to last. SUN CAPTOR made a fast pace under good rating, held on stubbornly and was in close quarters near the finish.

MAD MONEY, lightly urged when keeping close up early, but steadied on the turn, came around LASSATOR gradually when under vigorous riding in the stretch, and was going away at the end. LASSATOR, on the inside throughout and displaying fine speed from the start, held on courageously but was not good enough. MARICA, allowed to move up very slowly while racing under a steady hold the first half mile, followed DELIBERATOR closely under stouter reserve on the turn, took command quickly when urged and taken under light restraint in the final sixteenth, won with something left. The latter, on the inside throughout, cut out a terrific pace under good rating, could not withstand the winner, but held on gamely. DELLOR, in close quarters while racing close up the first five-eighths, swerved out badly while being swung to the outside on the stretch turn, and closing resolutely, might have been second in another stride.

Time, :24 4-5, :48, 1:13, 1:39 1-5, 1:46. Two dollar mutuels paid: Carl B, $20.00 straight, $10.40 place, $6.80 show; Natalie Alice, $12.00 place, $5.20 show; Chief Evergreen, $4.60 show. Winner trained by C. E. Davison. Went to post at 5:48. At post 1⅓ minutes. Start good. Won driving; place same.

CARL B, improved and a strong factor from the start, was eased back a trifle approaching the far turn, raced to CHIEF EVERGREEN gradually after reaching the last three-eighths and, after getting to the front, held on grimly to withstand the bid of NATALIE ALICE. Latter, reserved off the pace, closed strongly on the outside and was wearing down the winner. CHIEF EVERGREEN, on inside throughout, showed the most early speed under occasional mild pressure, was strongly urged after three-quarters and held on gamely to the last sixteenth, where he weakened.

SWAP, going in his best form and saving ground throughout, was rated under restraint for about five-eighths, responded when urged and, shaking off COLIGNY, drew out slowly in the last eighth. The latter, allowed to remain out of it, lost much ground when improving his position and weakened in the last eighth. MORRIS GRINER, also taken back early, lost much ground the final half mile and closed well in a splendid effort.

Society Drives Its Own Trotters; Record Broken

Goshen, N. Y., Aug. 14.—(AP)—Society took over the closing program of the grand circuit meeting at Good Time park today, with three events for amateur drivers making up the program. The three professional judges were absent and Elizabeth Harriman, Mrs. E. T. Gerry and Mrs. Cornelius Bliss Jr., all of New York, placed the horses, the first feminine stand in the history of the major harness racing circuit.

A feature was the mile by the trotters Hollyrood Boris, Calumet Dubuque and Macaubrey, hitched to a wagon. Three abreast, their time was 2:10½. The team is owned by Mrs. Florence Dibble of Newbury, Mass., and was driven by Thomas Walsh. This is a new record for this hitch, previous record of 2:14 having been established by Belle Hamlin, Justina and Globe, driven by the late E. F. Geers in 1891.

The champion club trot was won by Calumet Eblis, owned and driven by W. E. Gilmour of Schenectady, N. Y. The fastest mile of the afternoon was by Honey Moon in the class A trot. The filly's time was 2:03¾, driven by Mrs. E. R. Harriman. Mrs. J. Hewlett drove Laurel Hill to the front in a four heat contest for the Class C trotters.

A half dozen express carloads of horses have been shipped to Springfield, Ill., for the meeting starting there Monday. The majority of the other horses here will race at the Middletown, N. Y. fair meeting which opens on Tuesday. Summaries:

ALICE MARBLE LOSES IN FINAL TO POLISH STAR

Rye, N. Y., Aug. 14.—(AP)—Jadwiga Jedrzejowska, Poland's tennis queen, won the women's eastern grass court tennis championship today by defeating Alice Marble of San Francisco, the American champion, for the fourth time this year. The scores were 7-5, 6-4.

Bobby Riggs, 19 year old Hollywood, Cal., star, earned the right to play Frankie Parker of Milwaukee, Davis cup team member, in the men's singles final. Riggs, national clay court champion, was seeded third and Parker first in the tournament.

Riggs had to go five sets to turn back Joe Hunt of Los Angeles, new national junior champion, 6-3, 4-6, 6-4, 3-6, 6-3. Parker had just as stiff a struggle with Francis X. Shields, former Davis cup player and now a movie actor. They battled nearly two hours before Parker won, 12-10, 1-6, 6-4, 6-3.

A gallery of more than 3,000, the largest in the history of the tournament, jammed the stands and overflowed onto the grass around the courts.

Miss Jedrzejowska, who beat the American champion three times in England this spring but lost to her two weeks ago at Seabright, N. J., outsteadied Miss Marble in the women's final. Her forehand lacked its usual terrific pace, as she has not yet become accustomed to the heat of August in America, but she was superbly accurate and had an excellent change of pace.

Riggs and Hunt put on a battle in which the former's court covering ability was the deciding factor. Shields, who has been absent from the eastern tournament circuit for two years, weakened after a fine start against Parker.

Thomas Hits One, Holds New York to 8 Hits.

Philadelphia, Pa., Aug. 14.—(AP)—Those astonishing Athletics, tenants of the American league cellar, toyed with the pace setting New York Yankees for the second straight day today. The A's beat the New York home run squad at its own game, 12 to 6.

Bud Thomas, who held the Yanks to eight hits, got one of three homers Connie Mack's youngsters collected in their 16-hit attack on Kemp Wicker, Johnny Murphy, and Pat Malone. Catcher Earl Brucker and Outfielder Bob Johnson hit the other two.

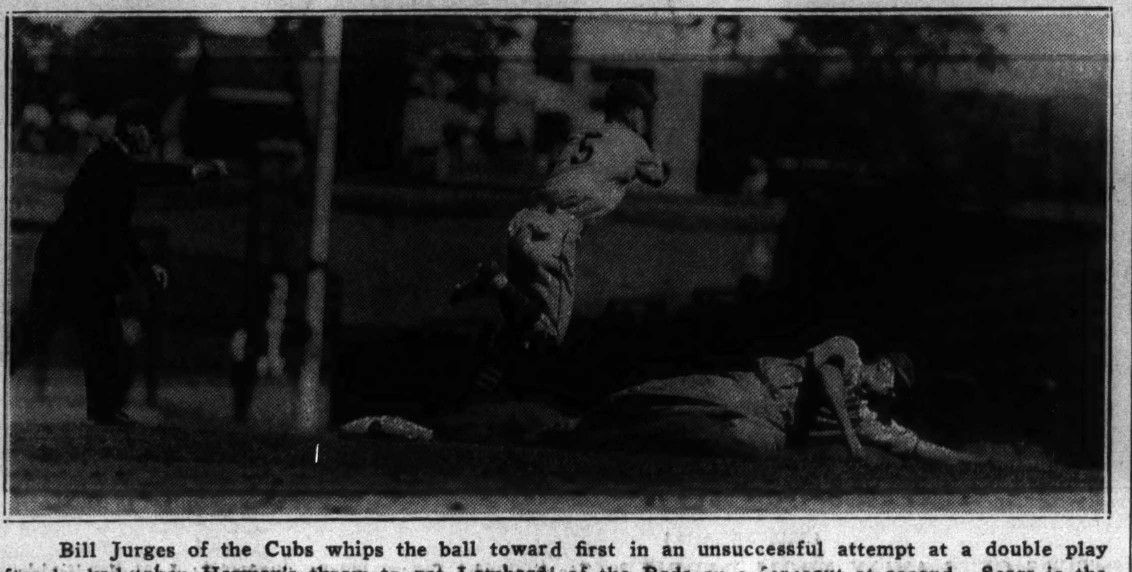
Detroit, Mich., Aug. 14.—[UP]—Walter O. Briggs, owner of the Detroit Tigers, tonight announced the purchase of Alton Benton, right handed pitcher from the Memphis team in the Southern league. Benton, 25, will report to the Tigers for the 1938 spring training period.

ANOTHER SHOCK FOR THE CUB FANS

Catcher Bottarini of the Cubs tags out Walker of the Reds on a close play at the plate in the first inning of yesterday's game at Wrigley field. Ballanfant is the umpire. The Reds ignored the Cubs' high position in the league and shocked the home town fans by winning, 10 to 5.



Bill Jurges of the Cubs whips the ball toward first in an unsuccessful attempt at a double play after he had taken Herman's throw to get Lombardi of the Reds on a forceout at second. Sears is the umpire.

third and he scored on Riggs' force of Lombardi.

One hit was enough to put the Cubs back in front by 2 to 1 in the fourth but the advantage was shortlived. Galan, the first man up, drew free transportation. He scooted around to third on Marty's single to center. C. Davis rolled to Myers for a double play and Galan scored without drawing the attention of the enemy. Hack tapped to Hollingsworth for the third out.

Walker Starts Trouble.

The thumping of C. Davis for four runs in the fifth began with a triple which Walker bounced off the right field bleacher screen. Walker was brought in immediately by Goodman, who wafted his homer into the midsection of the right field bleacher. Scarsella was out in an attempt to beat out a bunt. Lombardi rifled a single past Frey. Lombardi was forced by Riggs, who burglarized his way to second. Then Kampouris, who twice previously had fanned, boomed his homer into the left center field bleacher space for two more runs.

Thanks to Stainback's pinch effort, the Cubs restored themselves to the struggle by scoring a pair in the sixth. Jurges walked with one out and after two had been retired, Marty beat out a scratch hit which Hollingsworth could have handled easily if he hadn't gone to sleep on the mound. Stainback then batted for C. Davis and dropped a double in right, Jurges and Marty scoring. Kampouris prolonged the affair by fumbling Hack's grounder but Frey poked into a force play.

French Starts Well.

French's start as rescuer was highly satisfactory. He fanned Goodman to open the seventh. Scarsella singled to left and Lombardi flied to Demaree. The firing began immediately. A drive by Riggs bounced off first base for a single. Mr. Kampouris hit the shortened center field wall for a double, Scarsella and Riggs galloping home. Myers was purposely passed and Hollingsworth apparently took this as a slander on his hitting skill. He plunked a single into right, Kampouris scoring and Myers going to third. Parmelee stepped in to end the inning on the next batter.

Mr. Lombardi came in contact with Mr. Parmelee in the eighth and something happened. After two were out, the first named gentleman spanked his homer well into the unfinished bleacher in left center. Walker, who had drawn a pass, preceeded Lombardi across the plate.

Whitehill was Allen's successor at the start of the eighth. Walker singled off the right field wall but was forced by Radcliff. Appling singled to right, sending Radcliff to third and took second on Campbell's throw to Hale. Haas failed to offer at any of three straight strikes and Piet flied to Solters.

Berger Slows Down.

Berger batted for Shea at the start of the ninth and smashed a drive over third. Boze slowed down after rounding first, apparently thinking he had a cinch double. Great was the young man's embarrassment when he was thrown out by Solters. Sewell batted for Dietrich and fouled to Trosky. Hayes walked but Kreevich flied to Campbell.

GEHRINGER GETS 7 HITS; TAKES 2D IN A. L. BATTING

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Charley Gehringer, Detroit's second baseman, hit seven for eight in a double-header yesterday and skyrocketed into second place in the American league batting race. He boosted his batting average 11 points to .376.

The slumps of the Yankee sluggers, Lou Gehrig and Joe Di Maggio, continued, and they fell to third and fourth, respectively. The National league half of baseball's hitting Big Six went through the day unchanged. Standings of the leaders:

Cubs Play Reds Twice Today to End Home Stay

A double-header with the flip flopping Reds today will conclude the Cubs' home stay. Clay Bryant and Tex Carleton will operate for the first placers. The Reds' starters probably will be Gene Schott and Paul Derringer.

Gabby Hartnett went behind the plate before yesterday's game to determine whether his hand injury—a swollen joint on the right index finger—would permit him to throw. After a few tosses he decided to delay his reappearance until today.

Bill Lee, who developed a charley horse in his left side while pitching a week ago yesterday, has been placed in a hospital by Dr. John Davis, club physician. Thus far the injury hasn't responded to treatment.

The Cubs yesterday announced the purchase from their Los Angeles cousin team of Third Baseman Steve Mesner and Shortstop Bobby Mattick for spring delivery. The price, according to the announcement, was cash and a couple of players for spring delivery, provided the two youngsters are not turned back. Mesner was with the White Sox last spring, but failed both as a hitter and fielder.

YANKEES GET IVY ANDREWS FROM INDIANS

To make room for him the Yanks released Spurgeon Chandler, rookie pitcher, to their International league farm at Newark. It was Chandler's second trip back to Newark this year.

Andrews is making a return trip to the Yankees, with whom he broke into major league ball back in 1929. He was sent to the minors after that and returned to the Yanks in 1931, going to the Boston Red Sox in 1932, the St. Louis Browns in 1934, and to the Indians after last season in the trade by which Cleveland gave up Bill Knickerbocker, Joe Vosmik, and Oral Hildebrand for Lyn Lary, Jule Solters, and Andrews.

BERWYN DEFEATS ST. PAUL, 12 TO 10, IN LEGION FINALS

Cedar Rapids, Ia., Aug. 14.—[Special.]—Stopping a rally in the ninth, the hard hitting Berwyn, Ill., team won the American Legion junior baseball regional championship today by defeating St. Paul, 12 to 10.

Florals Face Paige Stars in 2 Games

Satchel Paige, generally regarded as the greatest of colored pitchers, will move his All-Stars into Shewbridge field this afternoon to play a double-header with the Duffy Florals as one of the feature bookings on the local semi-pro card. The first game will start at 1:30 p. m.

The Chicago Mills will play a double-header with the Memphis Red Sox, top flight members of the Negro American league. The Spencer Coals will play two games with the Cuban Stars.

Win Denver Tournament.

Paige's All-Stars recently won the national baseball tournament at Denver, Colo. They are the strongest opposition the Florals have booked this year. Paige will pitch one of the games against the Duffys and Roy Matlock, a brilliant southpaw, will work the second game. The Florals will pitch Mike Yaros against Paige and send their left handed star, Roy Drasites, against Matlock.

Manager Bill Harley of the Mills expects one of the season's largest turnouts at the Mills stadium to see the home club meet Memphis. Encouraged by their double victory over the strong Carta Blanca Mexicans last week, the Mills hope to take two from the colored club this afternoon. John Gotter, a youthful newcomer, will pitch the first game for the Mills. Harley's second game choice will lie among Pete Beam, Jim Vaughn, Lefty Sullivan, and Lefty Packe.

Coals Meet Strong Foe.

The Spencer Coals also have booked a strong opponent in the Cuban Stars, a team which has won three out of four games against Chicago semi-pro opposition and which last spring beat the New York Giants and the St. Louis Cardinals in exhibition games at Havana. Ramon Bragana, who beat the Giants, and Silvano Ruiz, who whipped the Cardinals, will hurl against the Coals.

MIDGET PILOTS GO AFTER MORE POINTS TONIGHT

Leading midget auto racing drivers in competition tonight at Riverview Speedway, Addison street near Western avenue, will concentrate on improving their positions in the point standing in preparation for the central states title event which will be decided at the north side oval a week from tonight.

The final tonight will be at forty laps with twelve qualifying in four elimination tests at twelve laps each. The eight lowest men in the time trials will be eligible for a fifteen lap handicap. There will also be a consolation event for nonqualifiers at fifteen laps.

Gumbert Yields Six Hits; Leiber Gets Homer.

New York, Aug. 14.—(AP)—Coupling timely hitting with effective pitching for the first time in days, the Giants won their second straight over the Phillies, 4 to 1, today, before 10,504.

Harry Gumbert stopped the Phils with six hits, fanning four, for his fifth victory of the year. At the same time, his mates made good use of the seven hits they collected off Syl Johnson and Claude Passeau.

Hank Leiber's first homer of the year, in the seventh inning, broke a 1-all tie and started the Giants on the way to victory.

35 PILOTS SEEK NEW RECORD AT FAIR GROUNDS

Faster Track Today Makes Mark Possible.

While the rainstorm of Wednesday destroyed property in many parts of the Chicago area, it served only to help Promoter Carl Stockholm in packing down the track at the Fair Grounds speedway, North avenue and River road, where he will send a field of 35 international driving stars into action today.

For two weeks the promoter has been rebuilding the racing strip at the Fair Grounds, working 18,000 gallons of oil into the clay surface. Rain completed the task that threatened to keep tractors and rollers working up to the time of the first race this afternoon.

Look for New Record.

Engineers and pilots alike are firm in the belief that the record of 25.61 seconds, now held by Frank Beeder of St. Louis, is certain to fall. Most of the racing experts, however, agreed that, while the track is faster than ever before, it is also more dangerous. The class of the field and the absence of dust make it certain that there will be a lot of trafic going into the 80 foot turns, and where there is crowding in the turns there is danger in automobile racing.

Jimmy Snyder, Chicago, who drove his qualifying trial at Indianapolis last spring at 126 miles per hour, is confident he will be able to lower the Fair Grounds record this afternoon. George Connor, California holder of the one mile dirt track record, also has his eyes on the half mile record and the extra $200 offered the pilot who can accomplish the feat. Beeder will attempt to defend the time that he marked up two weeks ago while Billy Winn of Detroit, Shorty Cantlon, Indianapolis veteran, is on the job with one of Bill White's fastest cars from the west coast.

Additional Seats Available.

Along with the reconstruction of the track, Promoter Stockholm has dressed up the plant with additional seating arrangements and an improved system of ticket booths that will eliminate congestion at the gates.

Arrangements have been made for bus service from the end of the North avenue car line for the convenience of fans who have no other means of transportation.

The seven race program will be started with the time trials at 2 o'clock. The entry list:

Here's Where You Will Find Fishing Spots

BY BOB BECKER.

When earth, water and timber were distributed many thousands of years ago along the Wisconsin-Michigan boundary country between the towns of Land o' Lakes on the east and Mercer on the west, and the Flambeau country on the south, more pike, muskie and bass lakes were dropped on the southern side of the boundary than to the north. As a result the fisherman today may invade that attractive triangle in vacationland and find just about every kind of fishing hole that could be asked for.

We have fished many lakes in this area during the last 15 years. There are little bass lakes tucked away in the woods which may only be reached by hikes over old Indian trails. Then there are big chains where one may fish several lakes every day. Portages take you from a bass lake to a muskie lake and then into another lake which is filled with pike. One summer we used to find it fun to note how the divide as, for example, between Presque Isle and Katinka, places one lake above the other in altitude.

Replace Stock Each Year.

This north woods triangle includes several outstanding chains for fishing pike, muskies, and bass—all of which have been well stocked over a period of years. One of the best known lake chains is the famous Manitowish series of lakes which eventually takes you down the river of that name. Island, Star Spider, Stone, Rest and other lakes up there continue to produce some fine muskies as well as the old reliable walleyes. Every year sportsmen in that area make sure that fingerlings and fry are placed in these waters so that there will be a constant supply of game fish. We still can remember an afternoon in the rain when we were in the Manitowish chain casting for walleyed pike. The fish were hitting so fast and so eagerly that [in some respects] it was like casting for bass.

Pike in Lac du Flambeau Chain.

Another impressive lake chain surrounded by dozens of other fishing spots is in the Lac du Flambeau country which is south of the Manitowish waters. There are some big pike in this lake chain consisting of Fence, Crawling Stone, Long, Lac du Flambeau and Pokegema. Last summer the boys caught some nice bass by trolling deep in Long lake. Be sure to visit Crooked lake if you get into this region. It's a beautiful body of water and it has fish, too.

AN OLD IRISH PASTIME

Pro-Ladies' Golf Is Listed at North Shore

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

The fourth annual pro-ladies event conducted by the Chicago Women's District Golf association and the Illinois section of the Professional Golfers' association, which in its brief career has come to be one of the best known events in the district, will be decided this afternoon at the North Shore Country club.

Professionals who have not yet entered may bring their own partners if desired, or one will be supplied by North Shore, where Alex Cunningham, president of the Illinois section and a candidate for the national P. G. A. presidency, is professional. Cunningham will be paired with Mrs. J. A. Sidney of the home club in the first foursome this afternoon, leaving the tee at 1 p. m. with Johnny Revolta and Mrs. Howard D. Raymond of Evanston.

The pairings, announced yesterday by Mrs. George C. Davis of Oak Park, president of the C. W. D. G. A., send out the defending champions, Dave Tosh and Virginia Ingram of Sunset Ridge, who won at Edgewood Valley last year, with Jock Hutchison Jr. and Mrs. T. J. Buckridge of North Shore at 1:35 o'clock.

Chicago will be the center of left handed activity tomorrow when 500 left handed golfers will gather from all parts of the country to compete in the second annual national tournament which will be played under the auspices of the National Association of Left Handed Golfers at Olympia Fields Country club. The tournament will close next Saturday.

Howard Creel, Pueblo, Colo., who won the national championship last year, will compete again. Ben Richter, left handed professional and organizer of the association, will give an exhibition on how to avoid the slice.

Lincoln, Neb., Aug. 14.—[U. P.]—Joe Stanton, 64 years old, demonstrated that it is possible to play tennis and checkers successfully at the same time in a novel exhibition during the state tennis tournament today.

Calling his moves on the checker board as he paused between points of his tennis match, the gray haired Stanton defeated Bill Malone, ranking junior player, by a score of 7-5 in a one set tennis contest, and drew with Lee Ziegler in checkers.

FORT SILL AND RISING SUN POLO TEAMS TO MEET

Winner of the Rocky Mountain circuit championship, the Fort Sill, Okla., polo team, will make a bid for further title honors this afternoon when the United States army officers oppose Rising Sun, Central league champions, in the Oak Brook cups tournament at the Oak Brook Polo club stadium, York road and 22d street.

Starting time is 4 o'clock. The game will be opened with a parade of players and ponies.

Two hours earlier the Oak Brook and Mandalays teams will inaugurate the tournament on field No. 5.

CHICAGO CRICKET TEAM DEFEATS NEW YORK, 127-72

Hoboken, N. J., Aug. 14.—[Special.]—Chicago cricketers were successful today in the fourth match of their eastern tour, when they defeated an eleven of the Brooklyn Cricket club of the New York and Metropolitan District Cricket association, by 127 to 72 on the grounds of Stevens institute.

Olympic Stars Enter Irish Day Events

Helen Stephens, world record title holder; Betty Robinson, Annette Rodgers and Johnny Brooks, all Olympic stars, will appear in competitions or exhibitions today as headliners of the athletic program at the Irish day celebration at Riverview park.

Other athletes listed are Ida Meyers, former indoor national high jump champion; Louis Prackett, Central A. A. U. and C. Y. O. champion; Pat Shea and Tom Shanahan, outstanding 56 pound weight throwers and national stars.

One Central A. A. U. title event is scheduled—a ten mile marathon which has drawn 25 nominations. The marathon will start at the city hall and finish at Lane Tech track, where the open events for men and women are to be contested—adjoining the picnic grove which is the scene of the outing.

In Irish sports hurling will top the list with a game scheduled between stars from Chicago and St. Louis for the western championship. All of the players had records in hurling competition before leaving Ireland.

Teams from the north and south sides will compete in a Gaelic football game. Leading nines of the Ancient Order of Hibernians league will meet in a baseball contest. Several tugs of war are scheduled including a pull between huskies of Sherif Toman's office and Superior and Circuit court clerks.

Brooks, former national collegiate champion and member of the 1936 Olympic team will compete for the Old Timers A. C. He will meet three former University of Illinois and Big Ten stars in the sprints—Jack Robinson, Dick Brunton, and Johnny Gill. Brooks will also compete in the broad jump with Lloyd Seiburt and Caleb Springs among other contestants.

CARDINALS AND BEARS TO OPEN DRILL TOMORROW

Although professional football in Chicago will get a late start this season because both the Cardinal and the Bear schedules call for road games before opening in the city Oct. 17, practice opens tomorrow for the Red Birds at Mills stadium. The Bears will leave for their training camp at St. John's Military academy, Delafield, Wis., from Wrigley field at 1:30 p. m. tomorrow.

Forty-three players will work out under Coach Milan Creighton of the Cardinals tomorrow. Twenty-five of the athletes are rookies. Only seventeen of last year's squad will report for the pro season.

Coach George Halas of the Bears yesterday sent several early arrivals through a workout at Lane Tech field. Among them was Jules Carlson, who completed his eighth season with the club last year. Frank Sullivan, who came up from Loyola of New Orleans two years ago, reported after working in Nashville, Tenn., as a plumber this summer.

M'CREARY BEATS TALBOT, 3 AND 2, IN INDIANA FINAL

Kokomo, Ind., Aug. 14.—[Special.]—Richard McCreary of Indianapolis, 20 year old holder of the state junior and Indianapolis district golf titles, added the Indiana state amateur championship to his string today as he defeated Phil Talbot of Bloomington, 3 and 2, in the 36 hole final.

McCreary came from behind after being two holes down at the 18 hole mark. His rally began at the 25th hole, and he sank a 45 foot putt on No. 28 that was the highlight of the match.

U. S. WINS CHESS TITLE.

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, Aug. 14.—[U. P.]—The United States chess team won the championship with 54½ points in the International Chess federation tournament which closed today after 19 hours.

CIGARS and KISSES Now Go Together

The Metallic Nose Knows

Smokers' test shows that White Owls are at least 25% easier on your breath

The Metallic Nose Knows

Scientists use a sensitive osmoscope to measure odor . . . to record its intensity and lasting power. Ten different brands of 5¢ cigars were tested by this machine. White Owl was at least 25% easier on the breath than all the others. After 30 minutes, all trace of tobacco odor disappeared from the breath of White Owl smokers.

NO LONGER need you choose between cigars and kisses. By smoking White Owls, you'll get full enjoyment from both. It's a rich, fragrant cigar—and no stale tobacco breath hangs on for hours after you smoke one.

New scientific discoveries have shown that White Owl's Vintage tobacco is exceptionally low in the substances that cause unpleasant tobacco breath. Tests with a delicate osmoscope prove that this tobacco leaves less odor.

White Owl is a better cigar because it always has a Vintage-tobacco filler. Nature—not factory processing—made this tobacco exceptionally mild, mellow.

General Cigar Company maintains a vast crop-inspection system—the only known organization of its kind—to locate Vintage tobacco. Even in Vintage years, we classify all filler tobacco into seven grades—and buy only tobacco of the quality of the top three for use in White Owls.

Double your pleasure. Start smoking mild White Owls today . . . and forever after you'll be the favorite with the ladies!

SOUTH AMERICAN BOXERS DUE IN CITY TOMORROW

Meet C. Y. O. Fighters on Aug. 25.

Sixteen hard hitting boxers whose task it is to battle their way to victory over 16 C. Y. O. boxing champions in an international amateur show the night of Aug. 25 in Soldiers' field involving North and South America, will arrive in Chicago tomorrow afternoon after a successful stand in the Pan-American games at the Dallas, Tex., exposition. The South American boys—representing Argentina, Brazil, and Uruguay—are scheduled to arrive at the Union station at 2:50 o'clock.

A formal welcome to the city by Mayor Kelly will be extended to the South American visitors at the city hall immediately after their arrival. The real welcome honoring the youthful invaders will not take place until next Friday night, Aug. 20, when 100,000 men, women, and children are expected to surround the bandshell in Garfield park to greet the South Americans.

C. Y. O. Boys Fight On.

A colorful parade will precede the Garfield park reception. Jack Elder and Ray McCarthy head the committee in charge of arrangements. Leading the parade will be the Forges post of the American Legion. The Norman Cornwall post and other American Legion groups will be in the line of march, which will also include softball and baseball teams in uniform, bicycle stars, Boy Scouts, the C. Y. O. band and other bands from parishes and high schools.

While the South American invaders were bowling over their American adversaries at the Dallas exposition, the C. Y. O. boys, beginning today, were scheduled to go through the most strenuous period of their training routine at their outdoor camp on the grounds of the Lewis Holy Name School of Aeronatics, Lockport, Ill. Head coach Paddy Kane, assisted by Dick Fitzpatrick and Scotty Walton, sent all seventy-five candidates through rigid workouts yesterday.

Display Brilliant Form.

In sparring sessions yesterday at Lockport, it was the more experienced boys who carried the brunt of the attack. Chester Rutecki, Savior Canadeo, Johnny Noto, Tom Kenneally, Cornelius Young, Frank Kainrath, Hiner Thomas, and John Hawthorne displayed the same brilliant form that earn them many honors in local and national amateur competition and which may lead some of them to international triumphs against the South Americans.

All-Stars Take Opening Drill; 54 Work Out

the groups would have been numerically equal.

Difficulties in substitution and the limited playing time against the Packers were factors in the decision to use only one style. While the 11 players elected to the starting lineup by the 5,000,000 fans participating in the national poll conducted by THE TRIBUNE and 150 coöperating newspapers will open hostilities against the Packers, the coaches are at liberty to make such substitutions as they wish. Yesterday they began tabulation of notes on conditions and abilities of the large squad.

Copies of Plays Distributed.

Mimeographed copies of fundamental plays were prepared yesterday morning, and these were distributed to the squad at the team meeting which was held prior to the opening drill. Coach Moore and Coach Waldorf, whose Wildcats last year won the Big Ten title, will be in charge of the line men.

Moore and Waldorf played in the line in their undergraduate days. Dorais, Layden, and Phelan, all backs and all graduates of Notre Dame, will coach the array of All-Star ball carriers.

After limbering up exercises yesterday seven sets of backs and centers spent nearly an hour at signal drill. While they were engaged the line men went through routine exercises, such as pulling out of the line to lead interference and charging on offense and on defense. A long passing drill gave players a chance to loosen up their arms in this important phase of offense.

Kickers Go to Work.

At the end the group of kickers began their work. In this Joe O'Neill of Notre Dame, Albert Agett of Michigan State, Sam Francis of Nebraska, Lou Drone of St. Louis university, and Vernon Huffman of Indiana appeared best.

Huffman, chosen as a member of the starting back field, which will be composed of Francis, La Rue, Drake, and Huffman, is a power kicker. He gets distance, however, which will be important when the All-Stars try to match the work of Clarke Hinkle, the Packers' star punter.

Huffman's all-around ability is apparent. He undoubtedly will be most valuable because of his ability to run, pass, and kick. Yet so serious is Huffman about the task of whipping the Packers that he volunteered yesterday to play the blocking quarter back position.

The job of picking men to fill this rôle is one which already has the All-Star coaches worried. Under the Notre Dame plan of attack the quarter back frequently passes. He generally plays the safety position on defense, but he never is the ball carrier. Huffman said he was quite willing to fill this job if the coaches so desire. With Falaschi absent Bud Wilkinson, Minnesota's splendid blocking back is No. 1 candidate for the job.

In the opinion of the coaches the line candidates do not equal last year's group in weight, although it is admitted that at least two men for each position can be chosen who will equal the work of such stars as Reynolds, Stydahar, Karcher, Jones, and Oech. Capt. Steve Reid of Northwestern, Gordon Dahlgren of Michigan State, and Max Starcevich of Washington received favorable comment yesterday on their speed and shiftiness in pulling out of the line for blocking.

The team will drill this morning at 10 o'clock.

BY GEORGE HALAS.
Head Coach, Chicago Bears.

Yesterday I may have given the impression that the Herber-to-Hutson passing combination was Green Bay's offense. To be sure, some of the collegians who will comprise the secondary defense will go in as youths and come out as old men, because of the passing attack. But the running game of the Packers is also as easy to halt as an army tank.

There is a great line in front of the Green Bay backs. It includes Ernie Smith of Southern California, Lou Gordon of Illinois, Lon Evans of Texas Christian, Adolph Schwammel of Oregon State, Paul Engebretsen of Northwestern, Anthony Paulekas of Washington and Jefferson, Frank Butler of Michigan State, George Svendsen of Minnesota, Walter Kiesling of St. Thomas, and others. They are tremendously big, powerful men who know line play from every angle.

The back field is very capable. Hank Bruder of Northwestern remains the best blocking back on the team. Paul Miller of South Dakota State is a fine running back, very fast and elusive. Ditto for Bob Monnett of Michigan State. Joe Laws of Iowa goes to market when you put a football in his hands. The ability of George Sauer of Nebraska needs no elaboration to the football public. And on top of that ability, Green Bay has Clark Hinkle of Bucknell, full back, who is almost a backfield by himself.

Hinkle will be the most talented back, in all round ability, on the field. He and Nagurski are on a par in backing up the line. When he plunges he hits like the proverbial ton. He can kick off over the goal line, can boot placements fifty yards out, and he is a long, accurate punter. He is a better than average passer, and he is also very nice to old ladies.

A year or two ago, when Hinkle first broke into the league, Bronko Nagurski came back into the huddle shaking his head. One of the Bears asked him what the trouble was.

"I hit that fellow Hinkle three times, with my head down," the Bronk said, "and look, he's laughing!"

Hinkle, a senior at Bucknell in 1931, chose a fine time to ask Curly Lambeau for a tryout with the Packers. It was between halves of the Packer-Giant championship playoff of that season. Lambeau had plenty on his mind, during that intermission, and the youthful Hinkle got very little attention. On the following New Year's day, however, Lambeau watched Hinkle play in the East-West game at San Francisco. The Green Bay coach signed Hinkle an hour after the close of that game.

The All-Stars will find that he lives up to everything that has been said about him here.

from Los Angeles, completing the squad which faces the tremendous task of preserving professional football's prestige against the largest and most versatile group of All-Stars ever assembled. The Green Bay squad is the smallest, in point of numbers, that has tackled the All-Star assignment. The Bears went to camp in 1934 and 1935 with more than 80 men and the Detroit Lions last year had nearly 40.

The Packers will be strengthened for the regular championship season by the addition of four and possibly six members of the All-Star squad. Averell Daniell, Pittsburgh tackle; Ed Jankowski, Wisconsin full back; Bud Svendsen, Minnesota center; and Ken Nelson, Illinois end, are already under contract. Bud Wilkinson, Minnesota back, and Merle Wendt, Ohio State end, were allotted the Packers in the draft and are expected to sign immediately after the All-Star game. A seventh man, Gordon Dahlgren, Michigan State guard on the All-Star squad, also belongs to the Packers, but does not expect to play pro ball.

Squad in Shape.

The 28 men who participated in today's workout all reported in condition, although half dozen are still in need of a little work before they can be assigned to the rigid drill which will start with secret practice on Monday. The present schedule includes daily drills at 9:30 and 2 o'clock, including Sundays, with five lectures and a written examination each week.

LAYER SHOOTS 621 TO LEAD IN ARCHERY MEET

C. L. Layer took the lead in the men's division of the Chicago park district Archery association tournament at Grant park yesterday with 621 in the York round. Bert Archambault, defending champion, was second with 519.

Ranette Yanke, midwestern titleholder, topped the women who shot the national round with 352, and Bob Thompson led the junior national round with 492. The tournament will end today.

Four Games Scheduled in Cricket League Today

Only four games will be played in the Illinois Cricket league today as the Chicago Cricket club is on tour in the east. The Chicago-Garfield park game will be played at a later date. The four games today follow:

Hyde Park vs. Milwaukee at 48th street and the Outer drive.
Lake Shore vs. Washington Park at Evanston.
Melbourne vs. Lake Forest at Washington park.
Oak Park vs. Winnetka at Oak Park.

STROMBERG BACK HOME; THIS TIME AS AN ALL-STAR

It was like old times for Woody Stromberg, Army end, to return to Dyche stadium yesterday for the opening of the college All-Star practice. Woody, a former star at Lake View High school, spent his freshman year at Northwestern before receiving his appointment to West Point where he attained All-American honors. Woody was captain of the Cadet eleven last year.

Another Army star, Monk Meyer, was among yesterday's arrivals. Meyer, a short stocky chap, was king pin in the Army attack last year. He is regarded as one of the best Army backs since the days of Red Cagle.

Coach Jimmy Phelan arrived yesterday morning by United Air Lines plane from Los Angeles to complete the All-Star coaching staf. Phelan has been on the staf of a coaching school at Catalina Island for the last two weeks. Mrs. Phelan will join her husband next Saturday to remain until after the game.

Biggest player on the squad this year is Charles Hamrich of Ohio State. Hamrich weights 260 pounds and is 6 feet 2 inches tall. He has a 40 waist and wears a 10½ size shoe.

Among the All-Stars who spent the summer in the north woods was Tippy Dye, speedy Ohio State back. Tippy was a counselor at a boys' camp near Spooner, Wis., operated by Harold Olson, Buckeye basketball coach.

The National Professional Football league had a large delegation on hand to observe yesterday's drill. A number of the All-Stars will report to pro teams after the game, Sept. 1. Among the pro coaches present were George Halas of the Chicago Bears, Ray [Red] Flaherty of the Washington Red Skins, Dutch Clark, new coach of the Detroit Lions, and Milan Creighton of the Chicago Cardinals.

Tom Stidham, former line coach at Northwestern, now head coach at the University of Oklahoma, was among the observers at yesterday's workout. Stidham will spend several days at the Northwestern coaching school which opens tomorrow.

Bridge games and ping pong proved the popular diversions of the All-Stars during leisure hours at their headquarters at the Hinman house on the Northwestern university campus. A ping pong tournament with prizes for the winners is to be run off during the next two weeks.

The entire squad will be guests today of the Cubs at a double-header with Cincinnati. For many of the players it will be the first opportunity to see a big league game.

Coach Lynn Waldorf of Northwestern, a member of the All-Star coaching staf, will be one of the busiest men in Evanston during the next two weeks. Lynn will spend the morning hours lecturing at the Northwestern coaching school and assisting with the All-Star practices in the afternoon and evening.

House of Seven Gables Has Nothing on Fenway Park!

This is the tenth of a series on major league ball parks. To date all the National league parks, except Wrigley field, and Griffith stadium and Shibe park of the American league have been described. Wrigley field and Yankee stadium will be discussed somewhat nearer to world series time. E. H. B.

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

CLEVELAND, Aug. 14.—Nathaniel Hawthorne's famed House of Seven Gables stands some twenty miles from Fenway park, home of the Boston Red Sox.

You'd hardly think it, since Nathan never played any major league baseball, but that seven gable influence strongly was felt in the erection of the modern Fenway park. The wall bounding the field has 17 facets, just eleven more than the subject of our last week's piece, Shibe park.

There is no apparent reason for the outline of the field having similarity with a block out of a tough jig saw puzzle. The structure, in so far as the stands are concerned, was entirely rebuilt during the winter of 1933-'34 at a cost of one of Tom Yawkey's many millions of dollars, so the hodgepodge effect in no sense is due to makeshift additions.

Despite the zigzagging of the walls and other barriers, Fenway park is one of the best playing areas in the majors. Its only phoney aspect is its short left field, and an honest effort was made to correct this with the rebuilding of the park. Old Fenway park, built in 1912, had a 10 foot embankment at the base of the short left field wall, a great handicap to visiting left fielders. This freak construction was known for 20 years as Duffy's cliff, so called because Duffy Lewis, Red Sox outfielder of Boston's golden baseball era, could do all manner of fancy tricks as he ran up and down the embankment to capture flies.

All Evidences of Duffy's Cliff Removed.

Where the park was rebuilt all evidences of Duffy's cliff were removed. A 35 foot wall now stands in left field, topped by a 15 foot screen. The screen is outside the park, so a hit that makes it is a homer, even if the ball bounces back in the field. The left field wall is the longest of the park's 17 facets and embodies a scoreboard which carries American league games by innings and the progressive status of National league games, as at Comiskey park. Information pertaining to the game at hand is flashed by lights, as at Comiskey park.

The length of the left foul line is 315 feet. From the plate to a point about 50 feet beyond third base the grandstand crowds fair territory. For the last 60 feet there is a two foot strip of foul territory between the line and the wall which cuts off the grandstand. Half of the customers in a capacity crowd of 38,000 cannot see the left fielder make a play in the left field corner.

Right Foul Line Is 332 Feet Long.

The right foul line is 332 feet long, but this does not give an idea of the spaciousness of right field, for three facets rapidly carry the barrier out to 402 feet. The farthest point in the field is to the right of dead center, 420 feet. The flag pole is tucked back in one of the park's odd little crevices, 379 feet from the plate.

Bleacherites and pavilionites are well provided for. There is a huge terraced bleacher in center and right, admission 55 cents. To the right of the bleachers, which seat 10,000, is a roofed pavilion, capacity 3,000, at 85 cents. Coming in from the pavilion is a phoney grandstand, unpopular with the customers except when they can't get any place else. Though grandstand prices of $1.10 are charged, the seats are planks, with backs screwed on them.

Fenway Park Has No Double Decked Stand.

Fenway park shares with the Bees' park the distinction of being the only layouts in the majors that have no double decked stands. The big single deckers are nicely pitched, clean, and easily accessible.

The press box is one of the best in the majors, which perhaps accounts for the fact that few grouchy accounts are sent to the world from Fenway park. The press box, however, has an auxiliary to Earache Alley at the home of the Bees.

Medica first finished second to Shimpei Udo, who was clocked in 5:00.8 and then wound up third in the semi-finals. In the semi-finals Media swam the event in 4:56.6, but Hiroshi Takahashi and Udo were clocked in 4:54.6 and 4:56.4, respectively.

GOSSOON II. WINS, BUT ALERT IV. TAKES TROPHY

The Gossoon II. won the 12 mile R class race as 24 Chicago Yacht club sloops competed off Belmont harbor yesterday. Malcolm D. Vail, one of Gossoon II.'s owners, with Joseph Moller and Sterling Morton, sailed the yacht. The winner's elapsed time was 2:1.39.

Alert IV., which closed up to Gossoon II. at the finish, was second. The two victories the yacht already had scored, however, gave Alert IV. the Lipton Cup for the R class title, with 20½ points. Gossoon II. was second with 18¾ points. Dr. Theodore J. Morris is Alert IV.'s owner-skipper.

Friendship Wins Trophy.

The third straight victory gave the Gehrman Memorial Trophy to Friendship, the Tumlaren class sloop owned and sailed by George Dalseg and Joseph Richter. Friendship's time of 1:31:21 was over a four mile course, twice around. Henry Babson's Ruffa was runner up in the race and the trophy series.

Leeds Mitchell Jr. sailed his Star yacht Shimmer to first place in the opening race for the Joseph Richter trophy. Shimmer's time was 1:23:32. Gale, Harry Nye Jr.'s champion Star, finished second five seconds later.

The Dierdre, Charles Eliason Jr.'s sloop, won the first race in the Nutting cup series, over a twelve mile course. Dierdre finished in 2:17:20. It was followed more than a minute later by Hubert Ellis Eagle, Aquila. Summaries:

The largest fleet of Star class sloops ever to cross the starting line in a race is expected to compete today and every day this week off Wilmette harbor. Close to 60 Stars have been entered in the Sheridan Shore Yacht club's fourth annual Race week opening today.

In addition to the individual series for all Stars on the Great Lakes and inland rivers, the club will also conduct the Great Lakes Star class championship events. Twin Star, owned by L. M. [Woodie] Pirie, which won the title at St. Joseph, Mich., a year ago, will compete during the invitational series each afternoon.

Thirteen of the 60 Stars also will sail the Great Lakes championships each morning, starting tomorrow.

The Jackson Park Yacht club's 27th annual Lady Skippers' race, from Jackson park to the Van Buren street gap, will be sailed today. At 11 a. m. the cruising division will start, and the Seawanhaka and Universal [racing] divisions start at five minute intervals thereafter.

Expect 200 Coaches at N. U. School

Nearly 200 high school and college coaches from every state in the union will assemble at Northwestern university tomorrow for the tenth annual coaching school conducted by the university's athletic department. The school, which will continue for two weeks, offers courses in football, basketball, track, swimming, athletic administration, golf, tennis, and intramural sports.

In addition to Northwestern's regular coaching staf, the faculty will be augumented by Dana X. Bible, football coach at the University of Texas, and Doug Mills, basketball coach at the University of Illinois.

The football classes, which will consist of both lectures and field demonstrations, will be conducted by Coaches Lynn Waldorf and Burt Ingwersen of Northwestern and Coach Bible.

The workouts of the college All-Star football team will serve as demonstrations for the course. Coach Dutch Lonborg of Northwestern and Doug Mills of Illinois will collaborate in the basketball course. Other members of the faculty consist of K. L. Wilson, athletic administrator; Frank Hill, track; Tom Robinson, swimming; Ted Payseur, golf; Paul Bennett, tennis, and Ade Schumacher, intramurals. All are members of the Northwestern staf.

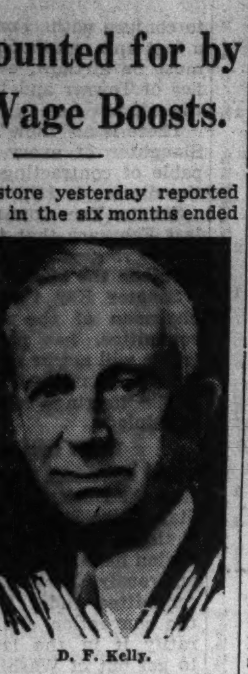
FAIR STORE HAS LOSS OF $6,250 IN SIX MONTHS

Is Accounted for by Tax, Wage Boosts.

The Fair store yesterday reported loss of $6,250 in the six months ended July 31. In the corresponding period of 1936 it had a profit of $21,460. D. F. Kelly, president, said in a letter to stockholders that the loss was more than accounted for by increases in wages and taxes.



D. F. Kelly.

Business in May, June, and July failed to show expected increases over last year, Kelly said, after holding to the upgrade during the first three months of this fiscal year. In the first half of the fiscal year, however, sales were $8,463,278, an increase of 5 per cent over sales of $8,043,578 in the first six months of 1936.

Abbott Laboratories Gains.

Abbott Laboratories, manufacturer of pharmaceutical, biological, chemical, and vitamin products, earned $865,335, or $1.35 a share. This compared with profit of $677,570, or $1.05 a share, in the first half of last year. Sales during the first half this year were 23 per cent above those of the corresponding period in 1936.

Abbott net profit in the twelve months ended June 30 was $1,603,041, or $2.50 a share, against $1,286,827, or $2.01 a share, in the preceding twelve months. Per share earnings were figured after all charges except excess profit tax, the report said.

American Stores company, big food store chain, reported net income of $551,067, equal to 42 cents a common share, in the first half of 1937. This was a sharp decline from net income of $1,083,506, or 83 cents a share, in the first half of last year.

Copper Companies' Figures.

Three copper companies controled by Anaconda Copper Mining company reported favorable earnings for the first half of this year. Chile Copper earned $11,423,852 or $2.59 a share, against $5,371,788 or $1.22 a share in all of 1936. Andes Copper earned $2,219,667, or 62 cents a share, against $844,342 or 24 cents a share in all of last year. Greene Cananea earned $1,067,610, or $2.14 a share, against $1,120,920, or $2.24 a share, earned in all of last year.

All three of the Anaconda affiliates operate outside the United States. Their better showing was said to be the result of higher prices for copper and other metals mined as by-products.

Columbian Carbon company reported net income of $1,072,149, or $1.99 a common share, in the quarter ended June 30. In the corresponding period last year, net income was $816,194, or $1.52 a common share. Pro[illegible] for the first six months of this year was $2,520,686, or $4.68 a share, against $1,843,305, or $3.43 a share, in the corresponding 1936 period.

Taxpayers, Not Renters, Carry PWA Burden

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 14.—Taxpayers and not renters will bear the burden of the federal low cost housing and slum clearance projects. This was clearly indicated today when Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes made public rentals for the Will Rogers courts, a $2,000,000 PWA project in Oklahoma City.

The federal government will not get back interest on its investment, let alone a fair return, and the city's needy will not be able to afford rentals, according to housing experts.

Rentals range from $14.10 a month for two room units to $22.10 a month for five room units. There are 12 two room units, 182 three room units, 138 four room units, and 22 five room units.

Yearly Rental Only $79,648.

At maximum occupancy the Will Rogers courts would bring in a total yearly rental of $79,648. If the yearly return were clear profit the federal treasury would get back far less than 6 per cent on its investment. Six per cent would yield $120,000 a year.

The rentals were fixed on the theory that the government will get back 55 per cent of the cost of the project in 60 years. This means that $18,333 of the $79,648 must be net profit to the government without considering interest on the investment, which is an essential consideration in private business.

The government will have to make repairs, service the unit, maintain a rental agency, and assume other landlord cares. The government also pays taxes for schools, fire and police protection, and other services under a PWA formula.

U. S. to Lose 45 Per Cent.

At PWA headquarters it was conceded that the government will lose 45 per cent of the cost of the project even if the building should stand sixty years and payments be made according to expectations. Officials said the government is not interested in making a return on the investment although they make much of slum clearance as "partially self supporting projects."

The tenants will have monthly service charges ranging from $3.85 to $5.45 per unit. This will bring the per room cost of the units to between $6.50 to $7.00.

To meet such a monthly drain tenants should have annual incomes ranging from $1,200 to $2,000, according to housing experts. Under PWA rules no family will be accepted whose total income exceeds five times the rental asked, or from $846 to $1,036. Such families, experts say, will prefer to remain in slums where rentals are lower than those set by the government.

RAIL UNIONS ASK PAY INSURANCE FOR IDLE MEN

An unemployment insurance system for railroad workers was proposed yesterday by the heads of the twenty rail brotherhoods, representing 1,100,000 men. Meeting in the Morrison hotel, the Railway Labor Executives' association started drafting an insurance bill for presentation in the next session of congress.

George H. Harrison of Cincinnati, chairman of the association, said the proposed law would create a pool from which jobless railroad men would be paid not more than $320 a year. Payments would be half the recipient's salary up to $80 a month, with a minimum allowance of $7.50 a week. The railroads would pay all the cost with a 3 per cent pay roll tax, estimated to provide 66 million dollars yearly.

The brotherhood leaders adopted a motion urging congress to exclude the railroad retirement, mediation, and adjustment boards from the Roosevelt administration's department reorganization bill.

ILLINOIS CORN CONDITION BEST FOR 12 YEARS

Springfield, Ill., Aug. 14.—(AP)—An Illinois corn crop of 387,491,000 bushels was forecast today in the Aug. 1 report of the state and federal agricultural departments, which said the corn condition at 92 per cent is the best since 1925. Corn production was 217,751,000 bushels last year and 336,738,000 for the five year average from 1928 to 1932.

A. J. Surratt, agricultural statistician, in the monthly report said that the Illinois oats crop is the best in twenty years, with 42 bushels per acre as the indicated probable yield.

WPA'S AIRPORT PROJECTS TOTAL 940 ON JUNE 30

Washington, D. C., Aug. 14.—[Special.]—The Works Progress administration, as of June 30, had placed in operation 940 airport projects throughout the country, Aubrey Williams, acting administrator, announced today.

Total federal expenditures in this field through June 30, he said, amounte dto $63,710,642, while local government agencies sponsoring the projects contributed $6,851,544.

Williams pointed out that this one phase of WPA activity had provided 89,076,515 hours of employment at the prevailing hourly wage rates for men who otherwise would have had no income.

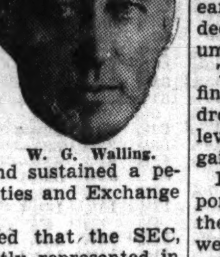
Name Walling as Trustee for Utilities Power

BY WILLIAM YATES.

Willoughby G. Walling, president of the Personal Loan and Savings bank, yesterday was appointed trustee for the 400 million dollar Utilities Power and Light corporation by Judge William H. Holly in federal district court here. The action ignored objections of attorneys representing a majority of the security holders and sustained a petition of the Securities and Exchange commission.



W. G. Walling.

Judge Holly ruled that the SEC, although not directly represented in the reorganization proceedings of the company, which is now under federal court jurisdiction, nevertheless represented the public interest.

Green Asks Dismissal.

Dwight H. Green, counsel for the company, asked dismissal of the entire proceedings under which the company sought to reorganize. His action was ordered by directors at a special meeting late Friday. Judge Holly set Oct. 6 for a hearing on the motion.

Although the original proceedings for reorganization were brought last September by creditors, the company later filed a voluntary petition which was given precedence over the suit of the creditors. The involuntary petition remained on file, but it was the company's own petition which was approved as filed in good faith, and all subsequent court orders, including yesterday's action appointing a trustee, have been predicated on the company's petition. Before the court can act on Green's petition for dismissal security holders of the corporation must be informed of the request by publication.

Fifteen Day Stay Granted.

Attorneys representing the company and a large majority of the security holders were granted a fifteen day stay in the trustee appointment to allow time for an appeal of the order to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals.

Abe Fortas, counsel for the SEC, who sought the appointment of a trustee, objected to granting any stay, contending that if it were granted the objectors would get indirectly what they were not able to get directly from the court—that is, to permit the present management of the corporation to continue in charge of the company as it has been since the original bill for reorganization was filed.

Judge Holly, in making the appointment, said he believed a trustee should be selected.

"I am sure the trustee will not disrupt the company or interfere with the plans for reorganization," he said. "I think he will be helpful."

Permitted to Buy Debentures.

The order appointing Walling permits him to put to productive use some of the 18 millions in cash which the company has in its treasury. He is allowed to expend 3 million dollars to buy debentures of the company at a price not exceeding 55 per cent of par value, and to spend a similar amount on the same basis for the purchase of subsidiary debentures.

Fortas said the SEC is satisfied with the court's action and that as a result a "good reorganization" can be brought about.

Floyd B. Odlum, president of the Atlas corporation, which has a large investment in Utilities Power, said his main desire in the proceedings was to see that a satisfactory solution of the company's problems was reached speedily. He told the court he would present a new reorganization plan during the fall term of the court in October which would be "favorable to all." In the meantime, he pledged that Atlas corporation would not dispose of any of its holdings in Utilities Power.

Air Line Adds 3 Flights to New Orleans Service

Chicago and Southern Air Lines announced yesterday it would operate three daily flights each way between Chicago and New Orleans starting Sept. 1. Afternoon service will be added to the present morning and evening schedules with ships leaving Chicago at 4 p. m., central standard time, and arriving in New Orleans at 10:05 p. m., and leaving New Orleans at 3:30 p. m. and arriving in Chicago at 9:48 p. m.

FARM EXPORTS FALL MORE THAN THIRTY MILLIONS IN YEAR

Washington, D. C., Aug. 14.—(AP)—A decline of more than $30,000,000 in the value of farm exports for the 1936-1937 fiscal year, as compared with the year previous, was reported today by the bureau of agricultural economics. Shipments of farm products for the year ended June 30 were valued at $732,839,000, against $766,548,000 a year earlier.

Volume of exports for 1936-'37 was 55 per cent of prewar levels [1909-'14], compared with 60 per cent a year earlier. The bureau said the value decline was 4 per cent and the volume decrease 8 per cent.

The volume of exports in June, final month of the fiscal year, dropped to 46 per cent of prewar levels. Only wheat and flour showed gains over Junes of recent years.

Increases in total imports and exports during June, as compared with the corresponding month in 1936, were reported by the commerce department. Exports amounted to $265,363,000, against $185,693,000 a year ago, an increase of $79,670,000. Imports during June were valued at $285,946,000, compared with $191,077,000 in the corresponding month last year, a gain of $94,869,000.

WEIR AND U. S. TO CLASH AGAIN OVER UNIONS

New Cumberland, W. Va., Aug. 14.—(AP)—Ernest T. Weir will meet the federal government Monday in the second major contest of his career to run his big steel properties without governmental intervention.

The national labor relations board will open a hearing here on its complaint that the Weirton Steel company, subsidiary of Weir's National Steel corporation, employed terrorism against the steel workers organizing committee.

Three years ago Weirton Steel won a court decision against the government's charge that it violated article 7A of the old national industrial recovery act by attempting to dominate the company's system of employé representation.

In the latest legal fight, the employé representatives and the Weirton Steel Security league, claiming 10,000 members out of 12,000 workers, will be aligned on the side of the company.

STATES SPEND MORE THAN A BILLION ON HIGHWAYS IN YEAR

Washington, D. C., Aug. 14.—(AP)—State highway departments received and expended more than a billion dollars in the last year, the bureau of public roads reported today. Revenue totaled $1,145,590,000 and expenditures $1,131,151,000. Officials here said these totals were only a few million dollars short of the all-time records in 1932.

Biggest source of income was payments by highway users in gasoline taxes, registration fees, motor carrier taxes, and tolls from state operated bridges and ferries. These amounted to $663,886,000. Pennsylvania topped all states by spending more than $80,000,000 on highways last year.

Private Power Cost Held Less than TVA Rate

Nashville, Tenn., Aug. 14.—(AP)—Tennessee's public utilities commission announced tonight it had decided to permit the Tennessee Electric Power company, over the protest of the Tennessee Valley Authority, to build a $2,000,000 steam generating plant here in an area nearly encircled by TVA's hydro-electric lines.

Chairman Porter Dunlap and W. H. Turner, commissioner, signed the majority opinion holding that electricity can be produced cheaper at the steam plant than by buying it under a proposed purchase contract with the TVA.

Commissioner Leon Jourolmon Jr., wrote a dissenting opinion opposing the proposed construction as uneconomic, imprudent, and sure to result in higher electric rates than if the company purchased power from the TVA.

Clash Over Power Costs.

The two opinions clashed sharply over comparative costs under the three proposals under consideration—steam generation, purchase of power delivered here by the TVA, and purchase from the TVA at Columbia, approximately 50 miles away.

Jourolmon said the total outlay for generating 25,000 kilowatts at the steam plant would be $438,000 annually. The TVA, he continued, would sell a like amount and deliver it here for $415,758, or at an approximate $22,240 saving.

If purchased at Columbia and brought here over the company's own lines, Jourolmon contended, the same volume of power would cost $425,092, or $12,908 less than if steam generated.

Opinion of Majority.

Against this, the majority opinion cited testimony of five witnesses, only one of whom, Turner and Dunlap said, figured purchased power to cost less than steam generated.

"There is evidence in the record and the commission also takes judicial knowledge of the fact that there exists and is available in Tennessee an enormous amount of power generated by the Tennessee Valley Authority," Dunlap and Turner said. "But it does not appear from the record that the rates at which the power is to be sold to the Tennessee Electric Power company will result in any advantage to the customers of the Tennessee Electric Power company, to the general public, or to said company since the company, according to the overwhelming testimony of all witnesses, can generate power cheaper than it can purchase it under any rate proposed."

AIR CONDITION CONTRACTS SET NEW HIGH MARK

Another air conditioning record was established in Chicago during July, the Commonwealth Edison company reported yesterday. A total of 141 contracts were closed, compared with 112 in July of last year, the previous high record month, for a gain of 26 per cent.

Aggregate capacity of the installations was 906 horse power, compared with 754 horse power in the same month last year, an increase of 20 per cent. The total number of air conditioning installations in service or under contracts in Chicago at the end of July, 1937, was 1,838.

Private offices led all other classifications last month with installations of seventy. Residences were next with twenty-three installations. Nine restaurants contracted for temperature control.

ILLINOIS THIRD IN PWA GRANTS IN FISCAL YEAR

Illinois received the third largest grant of Works Progress administration funds during the fiscal year ended June 30, according to a compilation issued yesterday by the Illinois Manufacturers' association. The state's total of $130,642,639 represented 32.2 per cent of the internal revenue collected in Illinois by the federal government.

New York led with $321,432,060, or 32.9 per cent, of its assessed internal revenues. Pennsylvania was second with $214,565,157, or 54 per cent.

Sixteen states received more in WPA funds than they paid in taxes. Largest percentage return was given to New Mexico, $7,572,630, or 414 per cent of its internal revenue collections.

PLANS FOR CROP CONTROL AMAZE FOOD EXPERTS

U.S. Already Suffers from Scarcity.

BY HOWARD WOOD.

President Roosevelt's insistence that congress enact "control" legislation at a time when American farmers are not raising sufficiently large crops to satisfy the demands of domestic consumers has caused much wonderment in trade circles in Chicago. Commodity experts have also been trying to reconcile the President's demands for more power to curtail the output of American farmers while at the same time the administration is making treaties with other nations enabling them to ship more farm products to the United States.

The signing of the reciprocal trade treaty with Canada last year let down the bars to increased sales of Canadian cattle to American consumers. Similar treaties have been signed or are being arranged with other nations. Most of these allow heavier imports of farm products.

Foreign Producers Favored.

At the same time the administration has been pushing two other measures aimed at favoring foreign producers. The so-called "sanitary meat convention" proposed by the administration would ease the restrictions on imports of dressed meat from sections of the Argentine which cannot now sell to the United States because of health regulations imposed with the idea of preventing the shipment here of meat infected with hoof and mouth disease germs.

The President's sugar bill which has been so stoutly resisted by congress would have given insular producers a greater edge over domestic cane and sugar beet producers.

The Roosevelt-Wallace demands for restoration of the crop "control" measures, which were so large a part of the now defunct Agricultural Adjustment administration, come at a time when consumers, farmers, and processors are just beginning to feel the worst effects of the administration's last attempt at "controling" crops.

Agricultural Imports Soar.

According to a recent report by the department of commerce, the value of agricultural imports directly competing with American farm products totaled 707 million dollars for the eleven months ended May 31, 1937, compared with 526 million dollars' worth of such products in the like period of the preceding year.

Pork, which prior to the AAA experiment in crop curtailment constituted one of this country's leading export items, is now coming over the frontiers in heavier volume than it is going out. In the first six months of 1937 American consumers ate 38 million pounds of foreign pork, compared with 18 million pounds in the corresponding period of the preceding year and only 738,000 pounds in the first half of 1934.

In the eleven months ending May 31 middle west corn farmers saw 64 million bushels of corn brought in from Argentina, South Africa, and other countries, more than double the amount imported in the corresponding period of the preceding year.

Consumers Must Pay More.

While administration leaders are insisting upon restoration of their powers to curtail the production of American farms, over the borders come Polish hams, Argentine corn, Canadian wheat. And the consumers' living costs are rising steadily because of the shortage of foodstuffs, particularly meat.

The administration wants to do something toward winning back the political support of the southern Democratic states by meeting the southerners' demands for increased subsidies on cotton but it professes to fear that subsidies without crop "control" would result in an extraordinarily heavy planting. The rationality of this reasoning is not questioned, but it is generally suspected that the proposed cotton bounty is merely the bait to win support for the attempt to restore political control of farm production as it existed under the AAA.

CHINESE MONEY DECLINES AS DUE TO WAR TENSION

Chinese currencies were unsettled yesterday in foreign exchange dealings in New York as the war crisis in North China grew more intense.

The Shanghai dollar fell .13 of a cent, then recovered to close slightly above Friday's price at 29.94 cents. The Hongkong dollar lost approximately a fifth of a cent, closing at 30.95 cents.

European currencies were steady. The British pound rose 5/16 of a cent to $4.98 5/16. The Paris bourse was closed for a holiday. The French franc was quoted in New York .00¼ of a cent below Friday at 3.75¼ cents.

Wheat Lower, Corn Firmer in Quiet Trading

CHICAGO GRAIN FUTURES

Closing prices on the September delivery of principal grains on the Chicago Board of Trade yesterday:

	Yesterday.	Friday.	Year ago.
Wheat	$1.11¾	$1.12¾	$1.12⅝
Corn	.98⅜	.97⅝	1.08⅛
Oats	.29⅛	.29⅛	.42⅞
Rye	.83⅜	.83	.82⅝
Soy beans [Oct.]	.98	.97⅝	....

Speculative interest in the grain markets was light yesterday and prices fluctuated erratically within a moderate range. Relative easiness in the Liverpool market led to scattered selling of wheat futures, with the close showing a loss of a cent a bushel.

Part of the decline in wheat was regarded as due to closing of spreads with September corn, the latter being bought. Some buying of corn also was attributed to short covering. Corn futures finished unchanged to ⅜ cent higher, with the September delivery leading. Price changes in oats and soy beans were confined to fractions of a cent a bushel. Rye closed irregular.

Foreign Prospects Favorable.

Reports of favorable yields of wheat in India, Italy, and Rumania, and a slow demand for cash grain were responsible for a decline of 1 to 1½ cents a bushel in futures in Liverpool, and there was some selling on a forecast for rain in Argentina over the week end. That country has been reporting drouth conditions for several months.

Losses on wheat futures at Kansas City were ¾ to 1¼ cents, while Minneapolis declined 1¼ to 2¾ cents and Winnipeg was 1½ cents a bushel lower.

There were the usual intimations yesterday of export business being done in domestic hard winter wheat, but the quantities were not given. Toledo reported a boat was loading 55,000 bushels of soft red winter wheat for export, the first direct business done by that market in five years.

Expect Federal Corn Loans.

The prospect that the government will lend farmers 50 cents a bushel on their 1937 corn crop was regarded as a factor in checking sales of the December and May deliveries of that grain. Crop reports generally were very favorable.

The September delivery of corn at Kansas City closed 8⅝ cents a bushel under the same future in Chicago, which was said to be equal to the freight charges on corn between the two markets. Cash corn in Chicago, however, yesterday sold at a discount under every other leading market.

Export sales of American rye have been reported almost daily recently and induced shorts to take the buying side of the September delivery yesterday. That future closed ⅝ cent higher, while the December delivery was ½ cent lower. About 72,000 bushels of rye were shipped from Chicago to Montreal last Friday night.

Domestic disappearance of wheat in the United States during the crop year ended June 30, 1937, is estimated at 697,000,000 bushels, compared with 664,000,000 bushels during the previous season, and was the largest since 1932-'33, when it aggregated 719,000,000 bushels.

INDUSTRY INDEX FALLS FOR 4TH STRAIGHT WEEK

New York, Aug. 14.—(AP)—Industrial activity declined for the fourth consecutive period this week, with cotton manufacturing activity and residential building setting new lows for the year. The Associated Press seasonally adjusted index slumped to 102.4 per cent of the 1929-'30 average from 102.8 last week. It stood at 95.1 in the same period a year ago.

The index, with its seasonally adjusted indices based on the latest available statistics and with 1929-'30 as 100, compared as follows:

USE OF COTTON RISES TO NEW ALL TIME PEAK

Washington, D. C., Aug. 14.—(AP)—The census bureau today reported that cotton consumed during the cotton year of 1936-'37, which ended July 31, totaled 7,944,803 bales, breaking all records. Heaviest consumption in any year previously was 7,189,585 bales in 1926-'27. Last year 6,351,160 bales were consumed.

The year's carryover—cotton on hand at the end of the year—was 4,497,505 bales, compared with 5,409,389 bales a year ago.

MEAT IMPORTS PACT HELD PERIL TO U. S. CATTLE

Live Stock Men Fear Argentine Disease.

BY WARREN BAKER.

Included in a mass of legislation over which congress is laboring in a last minute scramble to get something done before adjournment is a strange administration measure—the sanitary meat convention with Argentina.

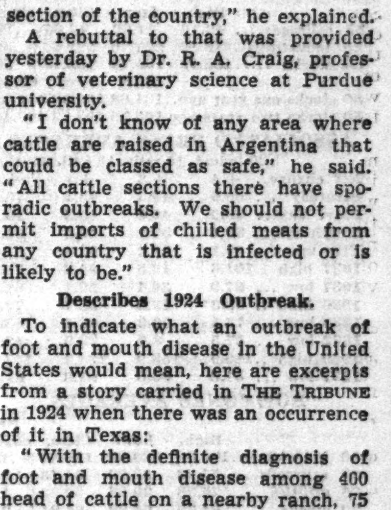
Live stock men throughout the United States have watched with much concern ever since President Roosevelt gave the treaty to the senate for ratification. They fear it as the plague, and literally—a plague of foot and mouth disease, the most terrible of all live stock scourges, and one from which America has been free for many years.

The United States is protected by a quarantine against importation of live stock or dressed meat from countries where the disease still persists. The treaty, now before the senate foreign relations committee, would relax this quarantine in the case of Argentina.

Experts Differ with Roosevelt.

Shortly after it was given to the senate President Roosevelt was asked why he wanted it. His answer was that the quarantine, in the case of Argentina, was "unjust."

"Argentine cattle are all banned because of diseased cattle in a small section of the country," he explained.



Senators Tom Connally (left) and Key Pittman who oppose treaty admitting to U. S. meat that may be infected.

A rebuttal to that was provided yesterday by Dr. R. A. Craig, professor of veterinary science at Purdue university.

"I don't know of any area where cattle are raised in Argentina that could be classed as safe," he said. "All cattle sections there have sporadic outbreaks. We should not permit imports of chilled meats from any country that is infected or is likely to be."

Describes 1924 Outbreak.

To indicate what an outbreak of foot and mouth disease in the United States would mean, here are excerpts from a story carried in THE TRIBUNE in 1924 when there was an occurrence of it in Texas:

"With the definite diagnosis of foot and mouth disease among 400 head of cattle on a nearby ranch, 75 guards and inspectors were thrown into the area and before night 6,000 acres of land and 1,100 head of cattle were under patrol."

There follows the description of a quarantine placed over two entire counties and parts of two others.

"The quarantine was extended to dressed carcasses of all ruminants," it said, "and their hides or wool, as well as to all products of the soil, including hay, grain, trees, grass, shrubs, flowers, and greenhouse plants.

Airtight Quarantine Required.

"Trenches were dug by a steam shovel for the burial of the infected cattle which will be destroyed. Probably half of the herd will be sacrificed. Poison bait was spread to kill any dog, wolf, or other animal that might wander onto the ranch. All trafic was stopped over the state highway."

Multiply those conditions by a thousand and you have an outbreak

STOCKS EXTEND FORWARD DRIVE AS WEEK ENDS

Steels, Motors and Oils Lead in Advance.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 14.—Stock prices on the "big board" again worked higher today following yesterday's brisk advance. Profit taking operations were well absorbed in a moderate volume of trading. Fractional gains were the rule throughout the list, and according to one set of recognized averages, each of the major groups managed to advance.

The volume of trading for the session showed a pickup over the abbreviated trading period of the previous week with a flurry of buying at the opening accounting for most of the dealings. Total transactions for the two hours amounted to 467,030, compared with 314,863 shares last Saturday.

Most of Issues Advance.

Steels, motors, and oils were in the van of the upturn. Opening prices were generally higher throughout the list, and although some selling to take profits hindered the advance, a long list of issues showed plus signs at the close. On the day 324 issues finished higher, 166 suffered declines, and 151 issues were unchanged.

Stock market analysts were hopeful that today's market action was a forerunner of broader dealings and higher prices in anticipation of substantial gains in industrial and business activity in the fall. Financial circles are reported to be in a more cheerful frame of mind these days as they envision a quick adjournment of congress. U. S. Steel opened ⅜ of a point higher, fell back to its previous closing level and then forged ahead to end with a net profit of a half point. Bethlehem and most other steel issues followed a similar course.

Rail Stocks Strong.

Rail issues reflected relief that wage increases to nonoperating unions will not exceed five per cent, which, according to students of the situation, was about the minimum that could be expected. Most rails were above the previous close.

Motor shares were helped by operations figures showing the industry operating at a higher level than had been anticipated. Chrysler was up a point before profit taking reduced its margin of gain to a fraction and General Motors held steady.

About the closest thing to a feature that cropped up during the abbreviated session was a leap of 7½ points in Eastman Kodak, bringing its rise for the week to 17 points.

Live Stock Raisers Fea Argentine Disease.

to conjure with. For, to be effectiv a foot and mouth disease quarantin must be airtight, even to the sacr fice of Towser and the geraniums i the window box.

There is no "new" method know Slaughter of every living thing c pable of contracting or transmittin the disease is still the only way.

Senator Tom Connally of Texas sai last February that the treaty woul not be ratified "unless the Presiden turns on the heat."

Senator Key Pittman of Nevad chairman of the foreign relation committee, has promised that th treaty will not be ratified until publi hearings have been held on it. N public hearings have been held o scheduled.

Farm Groups Protest.

The American Farm Bureau feder tion, the National Grange, the Unite States Live Stock association, and th National Live Stock Marketing ass ciation have protested repeatedly an vigorously. Now they fear that th committee, under "heat," may repor the convention and the senate ma ratify it in the last minute hurr to get out of Washington.

Sam Guard, editor of Breeder Gazette, a magazine read by 200,00 in the live stock business, said yeste day:

"Patagonia in particular woul flood New York, Boston, and Philade phia with cheap chilled meat, thereb destroying the best outlet of the cor belt producer, should the treaty b ratified. In addition to exposing ou flocks and herds to foot and mout infection, the Argentine treaty woul bring economic disaster to the Ame can live stock industry. Bovine tube culosis has been eradicated from a except seven states by the expend ture of millions. Shall we now ris infection with foot and mouth diseas which we have succeeded in eradica ing completely, to promote the wi o' the wisp of reciprocal trade?"

Danger Reported Great.

That the danger of economic dis aster is as great as disaster from dis ease is the opinion of many live stoc men. They point out the result o high prices and short supply in th field of pork production and asser that, if it were not for the quaran tine, the six cent tarif would not da the flood of cheap beef from abroa any more than the pork rate has, fo instance, Polish ham.

As to the danger of importing foo and mouth disease in chilled dresse meats: Some laymen have held tha the freezing process will largely elim inate the danger. Others have aske how the infection could be sprea through meat for human consump tion. Answers were sought from Dr Craig, from Dr. J. V. La Croix o Evanston, secretary of the Illinoi Veterinarians association; from Dr Charles Murray, dean of veterinar science at Iowa State, and from Dr Robert Graham, professor of anima pathology and hygiene at the Uni versity of Illinois, recognized as one of the foremost authorities in hi field.

Views on Import Hazard.

Dr. La Croix said, "To allow importation of beef products from South America would be to incur hazard."

Dr. Murray quoted the federal government itself in his reply, pointing out that an outbreak of the disease some years back was established by the department of agriculture as having come through garbage from a ship that had taken on a quantity of fresh meat in South America.

Dr. Graham, before making his reply, studied the records of ten serious occurrences of the disease in the United States in the last sixty-seven years. Two of the ten outbreaks he found had been laid directly to the importation of contaminated or infected beef carcasses or by-products from a country which harbored the epizoötic.

"All of the ten outbreaks," he said, "suppressed at a cost of 200 million dollars, were traceable to diseased animals or by-products shipped from foreign lands. Therefore the problem of preventing future outbreaks cannot too strongly emphasize the importance of maintaining rigid national embargo and quarantine procedure.

Threat to Industry.

"Daily exposure of the American cattle industry to the importation of fresh beef or unsterilized by-products from countries where foot and mouth disease exists constitutes a potential danger to the beef cattle and dairy herds of the United States little short of armed invasion, and a death threat to the national stock industry which, in terms of cattle, sheep, and swine, may be invoiced at present at close to 4 billion dollars.

"The future productiveness and wealth of this industry and the important part it plays in agriculture and social welfare are dependent upon freedom from disease. Every individual and collective effort is necessary to maintain a healthy industry in the production of food and clothing for man."

New York Stock Exchange Lists Six Share Issues

The stocks are Bower Roller Bearing company common, National Bond and Share corporation capital stock, Allied Kid company common, Bond Stores common, Consumers Power company preferred, and Pittsburgh Coke and Iron company common and preferred stocks.

FEWER BONDS TO MATURE.

Standard Statistics company announced that corporate bond maturities during September will total $21,347,500, comprising 55 issues of bonds and notes of which 5 issues amount to $1,000,000 or more. August maturities totaled $73,085,500.

COTTON

Cotton prices advanced around .20 cent a pound in the early trading yesterday on general foreign and trade buying and short covering as a result of reports indicating that the Commodity Credit corporation would loan farmers 10 cents a pound on their cotton and would pay a bounty of 2 to 3 cents a pound to producers who would agree to crop control plans in 1938.

Trading was active, but toward the last there was a heavy selling movement and the early bulge was quickly wiped out. Closing sales in Chicago were .02 cent higher to .02 cent lower. Other American markets were .06 cent lower to .06 cent per pound higher.

Spot cotton closed unchanged to .05 cent lower, with New Orleans 10.55 cents, New York 10.70 cents, and Galveston 10.40 cents a pound. Prices follow:

GOODYEAR CO. ACCUSES UNION AT GADSDEN, ALA.

Charges Terrorism in Reply to Labor Board.

Gadsden, Ala., Aug. 14.—(AP)—The Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company of Alabama charged the United Rubber Workers of America today with "coercion, intimidation, and terrorism" in a membership campaign.

Shootings, dynamitings, and "threats of personal violence" were listed by the company as methods used by "the United Rubber Workers, members or associates" to urge employés into the union.

The company made the accusations in answer to a union complaint, hearing on which was set by the national labor relations board next Thursday in Gadsden, site of the Alabama plant.

Charles N. Feidelson is regional director for the national labor board. He had announced the union complaint charged the company had "sponsored a series of acts of terrorism directed not only at the United Rubber Workers, but at members of other labor unions."

Accuses Union of Terrorism.

The Goodyear company accused the union of threats of shutting the plant, by threats of personal violence, and of causing employés to be discharged or lose their jobs; parading in automobiles at late hours of the night by the homes of employés, accompanied by great noise and frequently by shooting into the homes or boarding places of employés who did not belong to the United Rubber Workers of America.

The company accused the union or its associates of purchasing and transporting in their automobiles dynamite and dynamite cartridges "for the purpose of frightening, terrifying and intimidating employés or members of their families, or of blowing up cars in which such employés were riding or of blowing up their homes."

Denies Board's Jurisdiction.

The company prefaced its denial of charges made against it by the United Rubber Workers with an assertion of belief the NLRB "does not have jurisdiction over it in these proceedings," contending it operates only in manufacture of goods in Gadsden.

The Goodyear company asserted its management from time to time had given recognition to the United Rubber Workers and denied promoting an organization known as the Etowah Rubber Workers Organization, and asserted it had "scrupulously complied" with the national labor relations act.

EDISON AMENDS CHARTER TO CUT PAR OF STOCK

The Commonwealth Edison company yesterday filed with the secretary of state at Springfield, Ill., an amendment to the company's charter changing the par value of the stock from $100 to $25. Trading in the new $25 par stock will start tomorrow on the Chicago Stock and New York Curb exchanges.

Letters to stockholders of the Edison company were mailed yesterday advising them of the change and inclosing certificates representing three new shares of stock for each $100 of the old stock. Stockholders were asked to send in their old $100 par shares in exchange for new $25 par stock.

Chicago Bank Stocks Show Downward Trend for Week

Harris Trust and Northern Trust each declined $10 a share last week as Chicago bank stocks generally turned lower. First National finished the week $1 lower, Chicago Title and Trust was off $5, and Terminal National eased $1 a share. Lake Shore made the best showing by advancing $4 a share. Continental Illinois, City National, and Merchandise National were unchanged.

Live Stock Men Tell Ways to Keep Meat Bill Down

The housewives' search for meat bargains last week was rewarded with comparatively few real "buys," because all meat is selling substantially higher than any time in recent years. However, there are a few cuts that are relatively less costly than others, it was pointed out in the live stock trade yesterday.

Many cuts of lamb meat are selling to retail butcher shops at much less initial cost than beef or most cuts of pork. At the close of the week the various cuts of lamb ranged from $1 to $4 per hundred pounds higher than in the same week last year, indicating gains of 5 to 30 per cent, with the least upturn in the best cuts, such as legs, saddles and loins.

Stewing lamb showed the greatest advance. Leg of lamb sold wholesale at $20 to $23 per hundred pounds, compared with $17 to $20 a year ago, while lamb stew brought $13 to $15, compared with $10 to $12 a year ago.

Best Cuts Really Cheapest.

Packers believe that consumers in their efforts to hold down meat bills are paying relatively high prices for "cheap" cuts of meat and passing up the bargains in some of the best cuts, which, considering the less amount of waste in bone and fat, return more meat for the dollar than most lower costing cuts, such as stews, spareribs, and trimmings. While top cuts of fresh pork are highest in eleven years, and $5 to $8.50 above a year ago, hams can be bought only 25 cents to $1.25 higher than in 1936.

Live costs are so high that packers are working on a hand to mouth basis, putting little stock in cure. Consequently, green hams that ordinarily go in cure are regarded in the trade as one of the cheapest cuts, at $16.75 to $23.50 per hundred pounds. The heavy hams bring less than spareribs and trimmings.

Advances in beef cuts over a year ago ranged from $1 to $18, the sharpest upturns in the higher priced cuts such as ribs and loins.

Live Stock Changes Sharp.

Sharp changes occurred in the live stock trade last week. Top steers soared to $17.60, a new nine year peak, but there was a reaction in grassy stock. The latter closed 50 cents to $1 lower for the week, while corn feds finished 25 to 50 cents higher. The average for the week lost 15 cents, at $13.75.

The average price of hogs at $12.25 was highest of the year, but final sales were unevenly 20 to 40 cents lower than the close of the preceding week, some underweights showing 50 cents to $1 loss.

Lambs finished steady to strong for the week, but sheep were 25 cents lower. The six day lamb average at $11 was off 10 cents.

All cattle and sheep, and 75 per cent of the hogs received yesterday were billed direct to packers. Odd lots of hogs sold at $13.25 and down, steady with Friday considering quality and weights.

USE OF CHECKS INDICATES FALL IN TRADE TOTAL

Volume Below Week and Year Ago.

Business transacted by checks in the middle west declined sharply in the week ended Aug. 11, banking statistics indicated yesterday. Debits to individual deposit account—check withdrawals—amounted to $1,092,649,000 in the 7th federal reserve district. This was a decline from the preceding week's total of $1,271,135,000, and also below the corresponding period last year when volume was $1,111,813,000.

Chicago Debits Fall.

In Chicago debits last week amounted to $632,139,000, compared with $722,696,000 in the preceding week and $664,129,000 in the corresponding period of 1936. Des Moines, Ia., reported a volume of $21,451,000, against $22,194,000, and $27,857,000; Milwaukee had $57,777,000, compared with $67,183,000 and $62,697,000; Detroit, $191,254,000, against $252,325,000 and $179,815,000, and Indianapolis, $42,180,000, against $46,852,000 and $39,164,000.

A decline was also shown for the nation as a whole, debits by banks in the twelve federal reserve districts amounting to $7,489,098,000, compared with $8,926,982,000 in the preceding week and $7,502,168,000 in the corresponding period of last year.

Chicago Clearings Rise.

Bank clearings in Chicago in the week ended yesterday registered an increase over the preceding week and a year ago. The Chicago Clearing house reported the total was $332,500,000, compared with $329,800,000 a week ago and $302,500,000 in the 1936 period. Bank clearings by days follow:

CHEAPER FRUITS AND VEGETABLES CUT FOOD BILL

But Dearer Meats Absorb Part of Savings.

The influx of seasonal fruits and vegetables into the local market caused the cost of feeding the average Chicago family to decline moderately during the last two weeks, a survey of wholesale food prices in the Chicago area indicated yesterday.

Large consumers of meat, however, found that rising prices of choice cuts of beef, pork, and lamb about offset any savings resulting from cheaper fruits and vegetables. The top price of beef loins climbed 3 cents a pound on the Chicago wholesale market during the period.

Potatoes Decline Sharply.

Potatoes dipped sharply during the two weeks due to arrival on the local market of Nebraska round white potatoes, thereby bringing the average price of all potatoes from $1.72½ a hundred pounds to $1.30. The Nebraska potatoes could be bought for $1.10 to $1.20 a hundred pounds yesterday, while best Idaho russets sold for $1.65 a hundred pounds.

Illinois cantaloupes were available on the Chicago market at a price range of 50 to 75 cents a crate. Two weeks ago California cantaloupes sold for $2.75 to $3.75 a crate here.

Blueberries, cherries, celery, apples, peas, and cucumbers, were cheaper. String beans, cabbage, and carrots were a little higher.

Wholesale Prices Compared.

CHICAGO STOCKS END IRREGULAR AS WEEK CLOSES

Losses and gains were almost equally divided in the abbreviated session yesterday at the Chicago stock exchange. Volume of trading expanded to 28,000 shares from the 11,000 shares on the preceding Saturday, but still fell below the 30,000 shares traded on the corresponding date a year ago.

Of the 70 issues traded during the two hour session yesterday, 24 advanced, 25 declined, and 21 were unchanged. During the week, 175 issues were traded, of which two were new issues, and 79 advanced, 59 declined, and 35 were unchanged. Volume for the week was 202,000 shares, compared with 173,000 shares in the preceding week and 523,000 in the corresponding 1936 week.

HALF OF CHICAGO CORN RECEIPTS BEING IMPORTED

Fifty per cent of the 31,083,000 bushels of corn received at Chicago since Jan. 1, 1937, have represented imports from Argentina, South Africa, and other countries, it was announced yesterday by Lyman C. West, statistician of the Chicago Board of Trade.

Since May 1 arrivals of foreign corn at Chicago have been 15,474,000 bushels, establishing a new all-time record, compared with only 767,000 bushels for all of 1936 and 970,000 bushels in 1935. For the week ending yesterday receipts of all corn were reported by West at 985,000 bushels, of which only 61,000 bushels represented domestic grain.

Corporate Refunding.

The issuance of securities by a corporation is usually for one of two purposes: 1. To raise money to retire securities already outstanding; or, 2. To raise money for new capital to expand operations, build new plants, or buy new equipment.

For two or three years at the bottom of the depression there was little corporate financing of either type. Corporations in good financial condition usually had enough money to tide them along at their then reduced rate of activity. Investors—still frightened by the effects of the big drop in prices following the 1929 collapse of the securities markets—were not anxious to buy, anyway.

About three years ago corporations began to issue securities again. Those whose bonds would enjoy a high rating did not want additional capital, but they did want to take advantage of the low interest rates, fostered by the treasury department and the federal reserve board, to sell new bonds at lower coupon rates so that they might use the proceeds of such sales to retire already outstanding bonds bearing higher coupon rates.

Hundreds of millions of dollars of such securities were sold by leading corporations, thereby improving the profit making possibilities of such corporations because each dollar saved on interest payments meant a dollar more for the account of the stockholders.

Tomorrow: New Money Financing.

DULUTH, MISSABE SEEKS TO BUY 2 AFFILIATED RAILS

Washington, D. C., Aug. 14.—(AP)—The Duluth, Missabe, and Iron Range Railway company applied to the interstate commerce commission today for permission to acquire by capital stock purchase two affiliated railroads operating in Minnesota and Wisconsin.

The roads are the Duluth and Iron Range Railroad company and the Interstate Transfer Railway company, both now operated by the Duluth, Missabe, and Iron Range Railway company under ninety-nine year leases. All three roads are owned by the United States Steel corporation.

The Duluth, Missabe, and Iron Range said that to effect the transaction it would issue to Minnesota Iron company its bonds of $19,500,000 par value in exchange for all of the outstanding capital stock of the Duluth and Iron Range Railroad company, 65,000 shares of $100 par.

It would deliver to the Agate Land company its bonds of $500,000 par value for all of the outstanding capital stock of Interstate, 5,000 shares of $100 par value.

COMMODITIES PRICES DECLINE IN LAST WEEK

Prices of commodities drifted lower last week despite a display of strength in the metal group Monday and Tuesday. Export copper, which Tuesday reached a high since early April of 15 cents a pound, yesterday sold at 14.47 cents a pound, 0.28 cent a pound below the final quotation the week before.

Most commodity markets on both sides of the Atlantic were closed yesterday for the usual summer Saturday holiday. Of the few that were open, cotton and cottonseed oil were irregular, wool tops were unchanged, and export copper finished at 14.47 cents, up 0.07 cent for the day. Trading was said to be light in copper, zinc, and lead cash markets at unchanged prices.

Commodities which lost ground during the week in leading futures markets were wheat, corn, oats, soy beans, lard, cotton, eggs, cottonseed oil, coffee, sugar, rubber, hides, copper, lead, and tin. Rye, butter, cocoa, and zinc advanced.

CHARGES LARGE STOCKHOLDERS BLOCK RAIL PLAN

Van Sweringen Chairman Replies to Merger Suit.

Baltimore, Md., Aug. 14.—(AP)—Robert R. Young, board chairman of the Alleghany and Chesapeake corporations, principal holding companies in Van Sweringen rail system, asserted today that large stockholders are blocking merger of the two concerns because they "don't want dividends."

Recalled to the stand as a witness in injunction proceedings brought by opponents of the proposed merger, Young asserted. "Some of the larger holders don't want dividends. They feel that, if their stock is not earning, they don't have to pay 80 per cent to the government."

Two Suits are Filed.

Two injunction suits were filed against the proposed union. Plaintiffs in the first phase of the action, heard yesterday in Circuit court here, were Tri-Continental corporation and Selected Industries, Inc. Today's second phase concerned an action filed by the Broseco corporation and Aldebarran corporation.

"It is my opinion that the vast majority of the stockholders of the two corporations want the dividends which the consolidation would make possible," Young said. "If these opposing the consolidation win their case today, they will certainly lose it later on."

The merger, he said, would, among other things, greatly simplify the systems of operations. The corporations seeking the injunction contend combination of the two concerns would be unfair to the stockholders.

Judge Sees Benefits.

Chief Judge Samuel K. Dennis, at one point in Young's testimony interpolated a statement that "I see many good reasons for the consolidation."

"First," he continued, "it would get rid of certain tax liabilities, and second, it would certainly get rid of public criticism and disapproval caused by the Van Sweringens through built-up holding companies.

"But, what I want to know is—can you do that without skinning some one's shins? Mr. Howard [Charles McHenry Howard, attorney who filed suit for the plaintifs] says his shins will be skinned to the extent of $3 a share."

The judge will give his ruling Monday.

LEAD COMPANY CALLS VOTE ON REORGANIZATION

Terms of a proposed reorganization for Evans-Wallower Lead company were announced yesterday after directors approved the plan. A special meeting of stockholders was called for Sept. 15 at East St. Louis to act on the proposal.

A new Delaware corporation having authorized capitalization of 360,000 shares of $5 par common stock will be formed to take over assets of the old company. Present preferred will be exchanged for four new common shares. Present common shareholders will be given rights to buy one-tenth new common share for each share held at prices ranging from $10 to $20, depending on when they are bought.

Globe Wernicke Will Vote Aug. 23 on Stock Increase

Officials of Globe Wernicke company, manufacturer of office equipment and supplies, yesterday called a special meeting of stockholders for Aug. 23 to vote on a proposal to increase the authorized number of common shares from 55,000 to 100,000 of which 6,600 will be sold immediately to provide funds for expansion.

Leverage.

Leverage is an important factor in both rising and declining markets. The intelligent investor will take this into consideration.

Common stocks are said to have leverage when they are preceded by bonds or preferred stock, or both. A company with a large amount of debt of preferred stock must earn a considerable amount of money before any earnings are available for common stockholders. In bad times this may be a tremendous burden. As earnings decline, profits for common stock quickly disappear.

In better times when earnings are improving, however, investments in leverage common stocks may offer attractive profit possibilities.

A good example of this during the last two years has been United States Steel common stock. The company suffered large losses during the depression and failed to meet its heavy preferred dividend requirements.

When business began to improve, U. S. Steel soon was earning enough to cover preferred dividends. After this "break even point" was reached all further improvement in profits benefited the position of the common stock. A small gain in profits meant a large gain so far as the common stock was concerned.

This is quite different from the case of the corporation which has only common stock. Such a company piles up no unpaid preferred dividends during bad times. As soon as it begins to make a profit, this applies to the common stock. But as recovery gains momentum, earnings per share of common increase at a slower rate than is the case with "leverage stocks." A 25 per cent gain in net profit means a 25 per cent gain for the common stock.

In the case of a company needing half of its current profits to pay interest and preferred dividends, however, a 25 per cent increase in profits means a 50 per cent increase in earnings for the common stock.

What has been said in regard to ordinary corporations applies equally to investment trusts. If an investment company has $5,000,000 of bonded debt and its portfolio has a market value of $10,000,000, for example, a gain of 50 per cent or $5,000,000 in market value doubles the value of the common stock.

At all times, however, the investor should remember that leverage common stock profits shrink just as fast when earnings decrease as they expand when earnings increase.

SLOAN GRANTED MORE AUTHORITY BY GEN. MOTORS

New Bylaws Disclosed by Stock Exchange.

New York, Aug. 14.—[Special.]—The text of the amendments to the bylaws of the General Motors corporation, adopted by the board of directors on May 3, 1937, was made public at the New York stock exchange today as filed with the Securities and Exchange commission. It shows a marked increase in the authority now vested in Alfred P. Sloan Jr., chairman of the board and in the policy and administration committees created at that meeting.

Abolishment of the old executive and finance committees, whose memberships were not fixed at a specific number but which were to be made up of directors elected by the board, was the first effect of the amended bylaws.

Policy Committee Powerful.

The bylaws relating to the new policy committee in the main contains language similar to that pertaining to the old executive committee, with the additional stipulation that the policy committee "may assume direct charge and control of any of the affairs, activities, positions, officers, and employés of the corporation." It shall have control specifically of the financial affairs and general policies of the corporation.

The policy committee possesses all the powers of the board of directors during the intervals between meetings, and chairman of the committee possesses the committee's powers during the intervals between committee meetings.

Bylaws applicable to the new administration committee are entirely new. This committee concerns itself with the manufacturing and selling operations of the corporation, and, subject to the policy committee, has special charge and control of such operations.

How Committees Are Formed.

The rules provide that the directors shall elect from the directors the policy committee and designate its chairman, and that the membership at all times will comprise nine persons. The directors will select the administration committee "from the executive officers of the corporation and its subsidiaries" and designate the chairman.

While the former chairman of the board, Lammot du Pont, merely had the duties of presiding at all meetings of the board, the bylaws now provide that the chairman shall be the chief executive officer of the corporation and, subject to the board of directors and the policy committee, shall be in general and active charge of the business and affairs of the corporation.

Vice Chairman's Position.

The vice chairman of the board, a new post to which Donaldson Brown was elected, under the bylaws shall have such powers and perform such duties as may be assigned to him by the board or the chairman, and in the absence or disability of the chairman shall exercise the powers of the chairman.

The president, William S. Knudsen, has general charge of the manufacturing and selling activities of the corporation, subject to the board, to the chairman of the board, and to the policy committee.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 14.—Narrow and mixed price movements characterized another listless two hour trading period in bonds today on the New York exchange. Scarcely enough trading developed to establish definite price trends even among the pivotal issues, with the result that the various group price averages showed only minor changes on the day.

Government bonds braced slightly in quiet trading. Gains ranged up to 6/32d point, while losses, which were in the minority, were held to 5/32d point.

For the week the treasury list met the sharpest setback of the summer months, reflecting a general lack of interest and, to some extent, preparations by institutional investors for the government's big mid-September financing.

The trend continues toward slightly higher levels among the secondary railroad issues.

Trading in foreign dollar bonds was marked by further pressure against most of the Japanese loans, forcing the government issues to new lows for the year. Other foreign bonds held within a restricted range.

Sen. Thomas Proposes Cost Study to Fix Dollar Value

Senator Thomas [D., Okla.] announced today that he will draft a new money stabilization bill directing the federal reserve board to make a study of living costs, taxes, debts, and interest and determine where the value of the dollar should be fixed to sustain purchasing power. The senator's announcement came after the treasury department joined the federal reserve board in opposing the senator's pending bill, which directs the federal reserve board to fix the value of the dollar at the 1926 level.

CHICAGOLAND AWAITS MUSIC FESTIVAL

Hope for world amity grows dim at times and almost dies, but it can never fade entirely while there exists such splendid symbolism as the Pageant of Nations, to be given by 1,000 Girl Scouts Saturday evening at Soldiers' field as part of the eighth annual Chicagoland Music festival sponsored by Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc. Vivid costumes, foreign flags merging in the trefoil of the Girl Scouts, and a living American flag, flanked by flags of the thirty-seven nations which belong to the World Association of Girl Scouts, will make the spectacle a breath-taking one. In addition to giving visual proof of their unity with the world, the pageant celebrates the silver anniversary of the Girl Scout movement. Pageant directors include Miss Olga Carlson of New York City headquarters, Mrs. Ermie Schultz, Miss Mayblossom Macdonald, and Miss Mary English. Mrs. Richard Bentley of Lake Forest is Chicago Girl Scout commissioner, and Mrs. George O. Bayrd of Beverly Hills is serving as pageant chairman. VILLAGE USES SITE OF 'HEALING' SPRING AS PARK

BY ONEY FRED SWEET.

Hillside Springs, said to have possessed medicinal properties, once attracted pioneers for miles around to the community that took the name of Western Springs. The springs have been dried up these many years, but residents of the modern suburb seek the locality where in earlier days the cool waters flowed as they enjoy rest and recreation in what is now known as Spring Rock park.

Acquisition of the twenty-four acre tract was in the minds of members of the Western Springs park district when it was organized some fifteen years ago with E. P. McClure as president. It was not until five years later, however, that the undeveloped tract, much of it involved in litigation because of tax delinquencies, was made available for park purposes.

Old Timber Remains.

The park board had the clear cut idea of centering its program on one large park and of fulfilling a two-fold purpose—that of providing park land and preventing the acres from being unsatisfactorily developed.

The twenty-four acres, south of the C. B. & Q. railroad, and west of Central avenue, a block and a half from the railway station, were wooded with elms and pines at the east end and sloped westward into a neat bog. The natural timber has been retained, and the bog filled.

Through the years fences have been built, walks laid out and shrubbery planted. Today Western Springs is said to have the largest single tract devoted to park purposes within village boundaries, among the western suburbs. The park is equipped with tennis courts, baseball diamonds, a green for bowling, and playground equipment.

Pool for Children.

There is a picturesque wading pool on the rockledged slope that, dur-

House of Seven Decades Keeps Tradition Alive

BY MILDRED WILDS.

Chicago today has its broad business blocks edged with a towering skyline because in yesteryear men came westward to build homes. The city's character is told in places where men live as well as where they have made their living.

Henry W. Austin Jr.

The home that Henry Austin Jr. built on the outskirts of the "city constructed on sand" has stood for 77 years. Today it is owned by his son, Henry Austin, chairman of the board of directors of the Oak Park Trust and Savings bank, and it is located at 167 Forest avenue, Oak Park. In the course of time the city has grown sprawling westward toward its front door. The house, probably the oldest in Oak Park, has been constantly occupied by the Austin family. In 1887 the frame face of the rambling home was changed for the first time. Brown shingles were used to cover the verticle frame boards and gables were added to the back.

Links Past and Present.

Its rooms are the same as they were when Martha Sofia Austin moved in as a bride. The trees in the four acre wooded lot are taller now and fewer and the echoes of train noises and speeding automobiles on the three sides of its garden have changed it from a country homestead to a comfortable suburban home. As Chicago celebrates its charter jubilee it may look to Oak Park for a bit of history that weaves together the city where men have made their living and the village where some of these men have lived.

24 SUBURBS JOIN FORCES AGAINST AUTO ACCIDENTS

To stimulate and coördinate accident prevention activities in the Chicago suburbs, representatives from 24 municipalities, the state police, and the Illinois division of highways have formed the Suburban Safety council.

Officers of the new organization are George F. Brown, Glencoe, chairman; Charles F. Scheel, La Grange, vice chairman, and W. H. Klapproth, Illinois division of highways, secretary.

To carry out the work of the council, the members have set up a detailed plan with the divisions of engineering, enforcement, and education.

List Proposed Activities.

1. Extend accident reporting to the Suburban Safety council to include municipalities of less than 5,000 population.
2. Promote uniform trafic control devices—signs, signals, and markings—and application of remedial treatments at locations prone to accidents.
3. Encourage trafic and safety surveys in municipalities.
4. Standardize accident reports and methods of filing.
5. Develop standards for tree and shrub trimming.

Enforcement Aims Revealed.

Points under the heading of enforcement are the following:

1. Promote selective and uniform enforcement programs in municipalities.

OUR TOWN

THE title, grand master of the Progressive Order of the West, was awarded recently to Louis Jaffie, Chicago attorney, who lives at 425 South 18th avenue, Maywood. Mr. Jaffie succeeds A. D. Bearman of Memphis, Tenn., as the head of the order, a Jewish national fraternal organization with branches in various parts of the United States and Canada.

Louis Jaffie.

The organization has been active in Jewish philanthropic, educational and cultural work since it was founded 41 years ago in St. Louis. Mr. Jaffie as new grand master will call a conference of leaders of the order this month to draft a new program of work.

IT'S IRISH DAY FOR CHICAGO'S CLANS FROM ERIN

Practically every Irishman in the city will be at Riverview park today for the Chicago version of Lady day. Mayor Kelly or his representative will be on hand, in view of the fact that the city council has officially set Aug. 15 aside as Irish day. There will be a full program of games, athletic events, and contests, and, to top it off, a piece of the original Blarney Stone will be available for one and all to kiss.

Chances are fair for an Irish debate when it comes time to judge the beauty contest, since more than 500 lovely colleens have entered, and chances are more than fair that there will be some argument when time comes to count the heads of the Ryans, the O'Briens, the Kennedys, the Murphys, and the O'Malleys, preliminary to awarding honors to the clan with the biggest turnout.

The event is sponsored by the Irish-American Athletic club and other organizations and will be held annually.

MR. AND MRS. EUGENE MORIS, 132 North Mason avenue, with their daughter, Norma, and son, Eugene, arrived in New York last week on the Colombian Line steamer, Haiti, following an 18 day cruise to the Spanish main. At Cap-Haitien, Haiti, they motored to Milot to visit the ruins of Sans Souci, the palace of the black slave, Henri Christophe, who rose to emperor. They also made the ascent by horseback to his Citadel la Ferriere, which is located on the highest peak of a tropical jungle mountain. By special arrangement with the Haitian government travelers who ascend the mountain to the citadel are eligible for membership in the Society du Roi Christophe. Mr. and Mrs. Morris will be presented with the scroll of merit signifiying membership when they return home.

Duke Philip Gibbon made his entry into the world recently at West Suburban hospital. He is the new son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Gibbon, 445 South Kenilworth avenue, Oak Park.

MR. AND MRS. THOMAS M. KAVANAUGH, 811 South Harvey avenue, Oak Park, are aboard the Manhattan on the high seas, bound for a visit to Mr. Kavanaugh's native land, Ireland. The journey followed the recent retirement of Mr. Kavanaugh after fifty years as local car accountant in the freight office of the Illinois Central railroad, 211 East South Water street. He took with him a traveling bag and shaving set as tokens of remembrance and well wishes from fellow clerks at the freight office.

Mr. Kavanaugh looks forward to visiting a sister and a former schoolmate in his native town of Easky, and plans to be gone two months.

Not only did Mr. Kavanaugh hold his one and only job for half a century, but throughout the entire period he was stationed at the same office. Surroundings changed, but, says Mr. Kavanaugh, the office didn't move an inch. There was but one lapse in the record of continuity. In 1898 Mr. Kavanaugh obtained a leave of absence when he departed with his regiment, the 7th Illinois, for Spanish-American war duty, and served as captain with his company at Washington, D. C.

MR. AND MRS. JAMES B. ROTI, 225 North Mayfield avenue, Austin, announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Emanuella De Stefano, to Gene R. Fowler, 3410 West 64th street., Miss De Stefano is a graduate of Trinity High school and is at present a student in the Academy of Fine Arts.

Residents of Chicago's suburbs who are vacationing at Turkey Run, near Clinton, Ind., this week include J. J. Sailer, 607 Highland avenue, Oak Park; Miss Clara Sieving, 612 Beloit avenue, Forest Park, and Miss Elizabeth Rex, 305 Wisconsin avenue, Oak Park. Turkey Run is Indiana's historic state park. Chicagoans who are joining the annual migration there are Miss Helen L. Smith, 4946 Washington boulevard; Miss Arvilla Guse, 1029 May street; Miss Bernice Wolff, 10440 Church street, and Mrs. B. A. Sheldon, 3507 West Adams street.

Miss Edith M. Kneif, daughter of Mrs. Richard A. Knief, 4241 Franklin avenue, Western Springs, recently returned from a cruise to Alaska. She sailed from Seattle on the M. S. Northland on an itinerary that included sightseeing at Ketchikan, Wrangell, and Sitka. She left the boat at Juneau to visit with the W. B. Kimballs of that city. Her return trip was made on the S. S. North Sea.

Mr. and Mrs. Douglas F. Beach, 1004 Linden avenue, Oak Park, left recently for a railroad tour of Texas, Mexico, and the California coast. They will also travel northward to Lake Louise and Banff. While they are making the trip their daughter, Miss Betty Beach, will camp near Pullman, Mich.

Vacation is over for Mr. and Mrs. Raymond E. Kenny, 211 North Long avenue, who have returned home after an extended trip to California and Arizona.

VAST PAGEANT NEXT SATURDAY TO DRAW CROWD OF 100,000

Famous Stars and Unknowns Will Share Soldiers' Field Program.

BY ROBERT CROMIE.

Proof that Chicago, strut and swagger as she may, is still a friendly little village at heart will be offered at 7 o'clock Saturday evening when the eighth annual Chicagoland Music Festival, sponsored by Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., gets under way at Soldiers' field.

Henry Weber.

Tens of thousands of hometowners will jam their way into the bowl to watch their sons and daughters and their neighbors' youngsters step into the spotlight and sing or play the number that won them places of honor. Or, parental eye sharpened with pride, to pick out the one figure they are most interested in when members of thirty-three high school bands swing across the field, or 1,000 Girl Scouts, directed by Miss Olga Carlson of New York headquarters, stage their colorful Pageant of the Nations.

And from other and slightly smaller villages all over the country will come singers and instrumentalists and bands, each with a group of loyal rooters to spur them to performances beyond their usual excellence. One band, made up for the most part of the butcher and the baker and the man who sells electrical supplies, is coming from Canton, Ill. And a high school band is journeying all the way from Orlando, Fla., to compete.

Picture, if you can, 100,000 persons singing, sweet voices harmonizing with harsher ones, as the stands respond en masse to the leadership of Homer Rodeheaver, one time compatriot of "Billy" Sunday, in such favorites as "Let Me Call You Sweetheart," "Sweet Adeline," and some of the songs of Stephen Foster.

STUDENTS TELL IDEAS OF HEAVEN IN BELOIT QUIZ

Upper Classmen Reveal Unorthodox Trend.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

What the average college student brings with him to the campus by way of spiritual equipment and religious training is indicated in a religious survey of students at Beloit college, Beloit, Wis. The survey was made by Herbert Krauss, 3537 North Bell avenue, assisted by Joyce Hartman of Janesville, Wis., as a basis for a graduation thesis.

The survey was conducted under the general guidance of Lloyd Vernon Ballard, professor of economics and sociology. A modified questionnaire method reaching 76 per cent of the student body was used. The general conclusions of the study follow:

1. The majority of the students have a sincere religious feeling, although many have not yet formed definite ideas on all the aspects of religion.
2. Their approach to religion is a rational one in general.
4. Underclass men are more orthodox than upper class men.
5. Women are more orthodox than men.

Confusion About God.

While the question and answer system was used together with a list of suggested answers, a blank space for individual opinions was provided—some of which would seem to betray a rather confused state of mind. Answering the question "What is the nature of God?" two answers volunteered were, "Your God is what you make him—art, music, money, clothes, etc.," and "He who has forgotten all about us."

When asked their conception of heaven, 38 men and 8 women denied its existence altogether, one volunteered, "A religious concept for the illiterate dogmatist and a goal for the intellectually unimaginative," while less than 25 per cent of the total checked the suggested answer "the greatest happiness on earth." The conception of hell made a worse showing, 47 men and 16 women denying its existence, and a volunteered answer was, "A threat given to contented persons by those who are unhappy."

Regarding evolution, 299 students answered yes to: "Do you believe that man and ape are descended from a common ancestor?" Fifty-seven replied in the negative and 56 ignored the query altogether.

Silence vs. Sermon.

The last question was a request to give some comment on the church, as distinguished from religion, with reasons for not attending it if such were the case in the individual instance. Half the students had no criticisms to offer, and half were classified under general headings as "too orthodox" or "too liberal." Some of the reasons for nonattendance are quite frank: "I prefer to go into an empty church and meditate rather than hear a boring sermon," one student admitted.

More individually revealing is the comment, "I do not attend church regularly, I must confess. It is not because I am lazy, but because I do not get out of it what others seem to. It bothers me terribly sometimes, wondering why I cannot believe what other people do."

Presentation Parish Marks Irish Day at Picnic Today

Presentation parish, 758 South Springfield avenue, will celebrate Irish day at its second annual picnic and homecoming this afternoon at National grove, 30th street and Des Plaines avenue, North Riverside. There will be a dance in the afternoon and evening and refreshments will be served. Buses will leave at frequent intervals from the church from 9 o'clock in the morning until 5 o'clock in the afternoon.

169TH GAEL FESTIVAL SATURDAY WILL BE WITNESSED BY 15,000

Eight states will be represented by the 15,000 Irish-Americans who will witness and participate in the 169th anniversary of the Festival of the Gael which will be held from 6 until 1 o'clock Saturday night at Mills stadium, 4700 West Lake street. Dance stars are coming from New York to take part and specialists at the ScottishHighland fling have been invited to vary the Irish reel.

Miss Mary Corcoran.

The New Yorkers are Kathleen Delaney, Reta Martin, Veronica Ferguson, and Tommy Quinn. Mildred Mitchell, who won the Feis of Tara prize in Chicago last summer, will come from San Francisco to compete for dancing honors with Miss Mary Kelly, the dance star of Ireland, and the three Illinois champions, Miss Loretta Mungovan, Miss Kathleen Winkle, and Miss Margaret McNamara.

The Irish Jubilee popularity queen contest that has attracted 300 applicants is led at present by Miss Mary Corcoran, 3335 West Van Buren street, with 5,006 votes. Second is Miss Helen Sloan, 5400 Shields avenue, with 3,178 votes, and third is Miss Agnes O'Brien, 3331 Van Buren street, with 3,102 votes.

A TRULY ROYAL SCOT

King Henry has well earned his board and keep by being a good fellow and friend, but lately he earned a right to his royal name by winning a blue ribbon. Richard Bowman, 1031 Thatcher avenue, River Forest, is the owner of the proudest pooch in the pet parade held recently on the River Forest playground. More than fifty owners of pets received prizes. King Henry was the best of the Scottish line. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

CHILDREN PLACE PETS ON EXHIBIT IN RIVER FOREST

Roosters and hens, alligators, dogs, cats, monkeys, ducks, and goldfish came on leashes, in boxes, and in bowls to the River Forest playground recently for a pet parade. More than fifty children who assembled this "Noah's ark" went home again with pride in their eyes and blue ribbons in hand because the objects of their affection had won prizes.

The pet show was one of the main events on the calendar of the River Forest playground, Park avenue and Lake street. It was arranged by William C. Ladwig, director, and Miss Clara Mencl and Lammon Kipp, recreation leaders.

Winners Are Listed.

OAK PARK RAZES SCHOOL AND HOME FOR PLAY SPACE

A pioneer Oak Park home, built nearly three-quarters of a century ago, and the old Lowell school that was new in 1859 are being torn down. The children of the new Lowell school, Forest avenue and Lake street, need more space to play.

The enlarged playground will be completed by the time Oak Park children go back to their books on Sept. 7. It is a part of the 1937-'38 building program launched by the Oak Park board of education. Two softball diamonds will be added to the present playfield and the front part of the grounds will be used as a park. Elm trees that provided the shade for the old Dodge home will be saved and hedge plants on the North boulevard frontage of the school will be extended.

B. L. Dodge, late owner of the house at 956 North boulevard which is being enveloped by the growing school, was superintendent of Oak Park schools from 1876 to 1892 when he was succeeded by the late W. H. Hatch. The residence was his home for fifty years.

More than $150,000 will be spent to build a new center addition to Emerson school, located on Washington boulevard between Kenilworth avenue and Clinton street. It will house a gymnasium and auditorium, an executive suite, a library and rooms for the household arts and the fine applied arts classes. A new heating plant also will be installed.

To make room for the new section, the old building, which was the original Emerson school, will be removed. When more space is needed a third floor will be added to the new section which is expected to be completed by May or June of the next school term. The playground of the Emerson school will be enlarged as soon as the old building is razed.

With this additional space at the Emerson school and the enlarged Lowell playground and the recently completed children's theater at Lowell, the Oak Park board of education believes it will have one of the most modern systems in the Chicago suburbs.

OAK PARK STORES TO HOLD DOLLAR EVENT TUESDAY

With most of its stores modernized and air conditioned during the last year, Oak Park will observe dollar day on Tuesday. The August dollar day this year will be a more up-to-date sales event than any retail promotion yet held in the Chicago territory, George M. Gleason and Merle H. Potter, co-chairmen of the retail committee of the Oak Park Chamber of Commerce, have announced.

Members of the retail committee are George Bennet, W. W. Cole Jr., Lester R. Walker, J. R. Scott, Franklin Gilmore, Paul Host, Russell Critchfield, D. K. Downs, I. E. Weiss, D. J. Berke, and Louis Joseph.

More than 75 stores in Oak Park will join in the semi-annual dollar day, and will display the official chamber of commerce dollar day pennant. Each clerk in the 75 stores will wear a welcoming badge.

Reilly P.-T. A. Picnic.

The Reilly P.-T. A. will hold a picnic in the forest preserve at Milwaukee and Devon avenues on Thursday.

The queen contest is open to any girl between the ages of 16 and 25 years. All pictures and applications must be received before tomorrow evening by Mr. Weiss at 3301 Roosevelt road.

A social swim, another charter jubilee feature, will be held from 7 to 8:30 o'clock Thursday evening at Columbus park, Central avenue and Flournoy street. Because of the lack of locker facilities accommodations for dressing cannot be provided at the park. The pool will be illuminated and life guards will be on duty.

A "learn to swim" campaign is being conducted through classes which meet from 3 to 4:30 o'clock Mondays and Fridays for girls and at the same hour Tuesday, Thursdays and Saturdays for boys. Medals and certificates will be awarded by the Red Cross Life Saving organization to those completing the course.

The amateur musicians and dramatists who won in the semi-finals of the vaudeville contest held recently in Columbus park will compete in the finals to be held the last week in August. EIGHT WEST SIDE SCHOOLS TO HAVE NEW BOUNDARIES

Changes Will Equalize Each Unit's Load.

The areas served by eight west side schools have been altered this year by the Chicago board of education in order to equalize the load in each school and to centralize some of the special departments. When the school bells ring in education and ring out vacation days on Sept. 7, children will have to look to the following list of boundaries in order to get on the right road of learning.

The new boundary of the Jackson school is a line beginning at Loomis and Harrison streets and continuing east to Morgan street, south to Taylor street, west to Racine avenue, north to Macalister place, west to Loomis street, and north to the starting point.

Goodrich Boundary Line.

The new Goodrich school boundary line begins at Racine avenue and Taylor street, goes east to Halsted street, including both sides of Taylor between Blue Island and Halsted, south to Roosevelt road, west to Racine avenue and north to starting point. Schedules of events and entry blanks were mailed last week to neighboring clubs and inquiries have been pouring into the flower show headquarters at the home of the entry chairman, Mrs. Charles Grier, 151 North Harvey avenue, Oak Park.

Tickets are available now and may be purchased from all garden club members or wherever garden show posters are on display. Mrs. Carl Schaus, 815 Keystone avenue, River Forest, is president of the club and general chairman of the committee.

Must Be Garden Grown.

Flowers used in exhibitions for the show must be garden grown, no hot house plants except for specimen blooms, will be accepted. The number of entries by any one exhibitor in a section is not limited but only one prize will be given in each class to that exhibitor. Flowers staged for the show may not be removed until after 9 o'clock of the exhibition day. Personal containers used in the display must be marked clearly with the owner's name and address. The club will furnish containers upon request.

The show will be divided into four general classes: annuals, including zinnias, asters, marigolds, nasturtiums, snap dragons, dianthus, and others; perennials such as phlox, chrysanthemums, salvia, and roses; bulbs such as dahlias, gladiolas, canna, and tuberose; and class four will include flowering shrubs.

Plan Miniature Section.

Other exhibits will include flower arrangements in vases, bowls, baskets, and pairs of containers. There will be a section of miniatures four inches or less and six classes of table arrangements including formal dinner tables, formal luncheon tables, informal tables, and buffet and bridge tables.

Other divisions will include house plants, vegetable arrangements, and junior exhibits, such as a doll's tea table, dish gardens, and gift baskets.

2 PRESBYTERIAN CHURCHES AWAIT NEW MINISTERS

Riverside and La Grange Pastorates Change.

Two of the larger Presbyterian churches in the west suburban area, those at Riverside and La Grange, will have new pastors this fall. Dr. Paul Turner of Omaha, Neb., has accepted a call to the Riverside church, and the Rev. Emerson O. Houser will come to La Grange from the First Presbyterian church of Norman, Okla.

The Rev. Alfred F. Waldo becomes pastor emeritus of the Riverside Presbyterian church. During his 24 year pastorate membership has increased from 192 to 650, and a community house costing $110,000 has been added to the church plant. Services have been omitted at the Riverside church during August.

Lake Forest Graduate.

Dr. Turner comes from the Lowe Avenue Presbyterian church in Omaha. A graduate of Lake Forest college, he took his doctorate at McCormick seminary, now the Presbyterian Theological seminary, in Chicago.

Dr. Turner has been with the Omaha church for seven years and previously held pastorates at Chippewa Falls, Wis. and York, Neb. He and Mrs. Turner and their four children are expected to arrive in Riverside in time for the opening of the schools following a vacation at Association camp, Estes Park, Colo.

Student Group Director.

While pastor of the Oklahoma church the Rev. Mr. Houser also was director of the Presbyterian Foundation student organization at the state university. He taught a course in the Old Testament in the Oklahoma School of Religion and was active in the work of the Oklahoma City presbytery, of which he was a moderator.

For several years, the Rev. Mr. Houser was dean of the annual Presbyterian conference at Buffalo Gap, Tex., and taught in other young people's conferences at Chickasha and Hollister.

Hinsdale Pastor Back in U.S., Grateful for World's Unity

The traveler from this country to foreign lands finds much for which to be grateful, concludes Dr. Wilfrid A. Rowell, pastor of the Union church of Hinsdale, who recently returned from a three months' trip to the orient. "One comes home with new appreciation," he said, "of the basic things that make life so rich and which those countries under military rule and dictatorship do not have."

Dr. Wilfrid Rowell.

After traveling 18,000 miles, Dr. Rowell said that, as a traveler he also felt grateful that, with so much political disorganization, there was world organization and unity, so much beauty in the world, and so many evidences of Christian fellowship.

Daughter Returns Also.

Returning with Dr. and Mrs. Rowell was their daughter, Miss Teresina Rowell, who has spent the last year in Japan as a student of the history of religion.

For the theme of his first sermon after returning home, Dr. Rowell took a text from Joshua, "Jehovah, our Lord, preserved us in all the way wherein we went, and among all the people through whom we passed."

The Rowells left Peiping just a week before the outbreak of hostilities between China and Japan. Dr. Rowell said there was a good deal of tension between the peoples of the two countries, but that friends told him that the people of neither country wanted war, although incidents might arise that would provoke it.

"I found myself grateful," said Dr. Rowell, "for the social and mechanical unity existing in the world. Three months ago, sitting in my study, I could plan the trip with all its details—and despite the variations of language and customs, even in the remote places of China, everything went according to schedule.

"I returned in gratitude for the beauty of the world in its usual and extraordinary scenes. We reached Japan when the azaleas were in bloom, and many travelers consider them more beautiful than the cherry blossoms for which the country is famed. China has its man made beauty with its marvelous temple gardens. Frequently, as we crossed the Pacific, there were delightful showers that ended in rainbows.

"I felt a traveler's gratitude for the Christian fellowship encountered. I met many missionaries and visited their missions, churches, and colleges. There is a passion for education in the orient and the missions were full to overflowing. I found the missionaries were held in highest esteem and doing a work that was greatly appreciated by the natives.

Impressed with Leisure.

"There is so much about the orient that is distinctive. In a number of ways the people are beyond anything we have in their religious and social organization. They have a sense of leisure and are never in a hurry. They take time to think in repose. The oriental is a natural philosopher and a mystic in religion. His family system, wherein all problems are settled, gives solidity to social life.

"The traveler's great gratitude, however, is for America with its freedom, democracy, and opportunity for the individual, unknown to the orient. The traveler returns with a keener appreciation for the blessings which he has been inclined to take for granted."

cago's best colored singers, led by J. Wesley Jones.

Or the triumphal entry, promptly at 7 o'clock, of the winning drum and bugle corps, flanked by competing corps including the Continental Illinois and Marshall Field & Co. posts of the American Legion.

Or a harmonious sequence of performances by winning instrumentalists and vocalists, many of them the stars of tomorrow, and by winning choruses, and bands, led by winning directors. Truly a parade of champions.

The final hour of the program, from 9 to 10 o'clock, during which Rubinoff, Marion Claire, the Negro singers, a winning vocalist, Charles Wakefield Cadman, Rodeheaver, and both festival orchestra and choruses appear, will be broadcast over nation-wide Mutual and NBC networks. Most of the three hour program will be available to listeners to W-G-N.

Miss Claire's Number.

Mr. Cadman will direct the festival orchestra as the winning vocalist sings "At Dawning." The song was composed by Mr. Cadman.

Rubinoff will play two selections, a solo, "Dance of the Russian Peasants," and the other with the orchestra. The orchestra itself will play some of the late George Gershwin's numbers in tribute to that composer.

The competing choruses, 3,500 voices, will merge under the direction of Noble Cain and sing the Hallelujah chorus.

And, finally, just before 10 o'clock there will be a fireworks display and singing of "The Star Spangled Banner" by festival singers and audience.

Leaders in Program.

Among leaders and directors who will take part in the program beside those mentioned are Capt. Howard Stube, president Chicago Public Schools Band association, who, with the help of thirty-three bandmasters, will have charge of the all-Chicago high school band; David Nyvall Jr., director of public school chorus music, who will lead the festival chorus, and Oscar Anderson, public school instrumentalists supervisor, who will direct the all-Chicago high school concert band.

Others are Glenn Cliffe Bainum, Northwestern university bandmaster, and A. Austin Harding, bandmaster of the University of Illinois, who will lead competing bands, and Mrs. Ermie Schultz, Miss Mayblossom McDonald and Miss Betty Jones, working with Miss Carlson in the Girl Scout pageant.

Highlight of the week's preliminary events is the first festival luncheon, to be held at 1 o'clock Friday in the Drake. Civic leaders, contestants, musical celebrities, and music fans will gather to listen to talks by Henry Weber, Mr. Cadman, and others, including possibly Mayor Kelly.

Others to Attend.

Others expected to attend are James C. Petrillo, president of the Chicago Federation of Musicians; Fred Miller, festival field supervisor; Joseph Triner, state athletic commission chairman, and Mrs. Edmund J. Tyler, chairman of vocal and choral contests.

A number of rehersals will be held during the week. The Negro chorus will meet at 3:30 this afternoon at the Metropolitan Community church and again Thursday evening at 8 o'clock in Soldiers' field.

Girl Scouts on the south and southwest sides will practice at 10 o'clock tomorrow and Wednesday mornings in the Trianon ballroom. West and northwest side girls will meet at Austin Town hall tomorrow and Thursday. North siders will reherse Tuesday and Thursday at the Aragon ballroom, and a general dress rehersal will take place at 6:30 Friday evening at Soldiers' field.

Rehersal for Bands.

Massed high school bands under Capt. Stube and 33 other leaders will hold a dress rehersal at 4 o'clock Friday afternoon at Soldiers' field. At 7:30 o'clock Friday the festival chorus will meet in Orchestra hall, and at 8:30 it will reherse in Soldiers' field.

Final and preliminary eliminations also will be held during the week. The Cook county contest for men's, women's and mixed choruses will be judged at 7 o'clock tomorrow evening in the grand ballroom of the Drake. Special notice should be taken that the date of the women's and mixed chorus contests have been moved up from Tuesday and Wednesday evenings.

Thursday evening at 7 o'clock 18 survivors in the contest to pick the winning vocalists from the Chicago-Cook county area, will meet at the Drake. Instrumental soloists also will be judged.

MODERN STYLING TRANSFORMS OLD BOXLIKE HOUSE

Original Frame Utilized Only as Nucleus.

A new booklet by Louise Bargelt, Tribune home builders' editor, tells ways and means of keeping your house cooler in hot weather. On sale now at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower. Price, 3 cents. Postpaid, 5 cents.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

There was need of starting fairly close to "scratch" when it came to the problem of renovating and enlarging this small, boxlike country house, with its 1880 lines and its cramped, outmoded interior.

Imagination as well as skill was required to prepare plans and specifications for a basically sound and satisfactory 1937 home.

Joseph Nadherny, the architect, undertook to effect the change which should produce a spacious, attractive country house, with modern conveniences and floor plans.

The original house had five small rooms. Off came the old roof, the wide front porch, and the old siding. A complete new foundation was put under the new home and a 15x21 foot dining room added; also, a breakfast room, a butler's pantry, a rear entrance, and new lavatory.

Pine in Living Room.

The new design has been carried out in the colonial spirit, with 12 inch molded northern white pine siding, painted white, with canary yellow trim.

All new oak floors were laid over the old floors, and the present large living room is finished in knotty pine. The new dining room has a wood panel wainscot with scenic wall paper above, topped with a wood cornice.

Soft, attractive colors have been used throughout the house. In the breakfast room there is an asphalt tile floor, with a reddish gray cast harmonizing with the Chinese red in the wall decoration. The kitchen is carried out in apricot and peach, with black asphalt tile floor. The bathroom walls are canvased in Copenhagen blue, with bone white fixtures and tile floor. In the basement there is an oil fired warm air heating system, with provision for winter air conditioning.

Halt on Depreciation.

Altogether, a very nice and practical piece of modernization, this restyled house, with an infinite amount of new comfort built into it by the renovation. It has all the charm of a new, well designed, modern home, in a fine old country setting.

A stable type of investment, this safeguarding of an old house from speedy disintegration. When homes pass a certain age they start to depreciate rapidly. But this depreciation can be stopped if it is taken in time, and from the ageing structure there may be captured not only the spirit and semblance of youth but the bone and structure of youth.

Mrs. Bargelt will speak over W-G-N next Wednesday at 2:15 p. m.

Legion of Mary.

The Legion of Mary of St. Mel's parish, 22 North Kildare avenue, will make a pilgrimage this afternoon to Marywood grotto in Aurora. Reservations may be made at the parish house or with Arthur Graham, Miss Genevieve Murphy, Mrs. James Donlevy or Mrs. Ellen McCabe, members of the committee.

AWAITS DEGREE

Miss Selma Lee Stone, 1001 South 3d avenue, Maywood, has completed her work at Northwestern university's school of music this summer and will receive the degree of bachelor of music education at the age of 19. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Maurice A. Stone. In 1933 she was graduated from Proviso Township High school.

YOUNG CYCLISTS AWAIT 134 MILE RIDE WITH TORCH

Chicago youths will try a feat of endurance as an opening to the junior Olympics tomorrow that was never attempted by the Macedonians in their games centuries ago. A lighted torch will be carried 134 miles from Chicago's loop to the Valentine bowl of the Chicago Boys' club, Winona Lake, Ind., by four bicycle riding champions. They will leave at midnight and expect to arrive in camp in the evening when the Olympic events will begin.

The torch will be lighted at State and Madison streets in the loop one minute past midnight tomorrow by Irving Rudolph, executive director of the clubs.

Edwin Mason, 12 year old club member, will tie the torch on his bicycle and ride away toward Indiana accompanied by four guardsmen also on bicycles. The boys will stop at Valparaiso, Plymouth, and Warsaw where local Kiwanis clubs will feed them and send them on toward the finish line.

When the entourage arrives at camp it will pass through the Avenue of Flags of all nations and down the slope of the Valentine bowl while the fife and drum corps salutes. The torch will be delivered to Arthur R. Snyder, assistant camp director, who will light the ceremonial bonfire and the games will begin.

The torch bearers are "four bikemen" from among the riders at the Ogden Hill club branch, 6405 South Hermitage avenue. They are, in addition to young Mason, Alvin Kempf, Donald Rennich, Robert Doring, and Arthur L. Griswold, instructor.

The junior Olympics, planned as an annual feature of the Chicago Boys camp, will include foot racing, gymnastic exhibitions, water sports, and boxing.

ing the heat of summer, attracts children. Racing of toy sailboats is a popular sport at the pool.

Two WPA projects, that of supervising the play and improving the grounds, are now in progress at the park. A low place in the peat bog at the western end of the park provides skating in winter and plans have been made for including an area for hocky.

Franklin Burns succeeded Mr. McClure as president of the park board. Mr. Burns was a commissioner on the first board and has been a member of the organization throughout its history. J. H. Cattell was the third president of the board.

Members of the board now are Herbert A. Brand, president; J. H. Cattell, Franklin Burns, A. K. Leupold, and Mrs. Frank Somers. Miss Lucy Williams is secretary; John Obalil, treasurer, and J. H. Lokke, superintendent.

Forest Borders Town.

According to the Chicago regional plan, Western Springs, with its park covering area of nine city blocks, comes close to meeting the requirements in amount of acreage. Inasmuch as the forest preserve borders the north end of the village, it is felt that no matter how much building development may take place—and Western Springs is surpassing most suburbs in the number of building permits being issued—the area established for park purposes is most adequate.

In creating a park board while there was yet an opportunity to acquire acreage, Western Springs residents discounted the theory that the suburb was sufficiently parklike. The park board has been jealous of its credit rating and, despite the depression, there has been no default on interest or principal of its indebtedness.

Bohemian Women's Group to Hold European Market

The Ladies' auxiliary of the Bohemian Charitable association will hold a "Jarmark," a European market, Wednesday on the grounds of the summer home of Mrs. Jennie Buchal on Fox lake at Ingleside. Mrs. Buchal is president of the organization and Mrs. Edward Charvat is social chairman. Buses will leave Kedzie avenue and 24th street at 7:30 o'clock in the morning and at the same hour a bus will leave from Oak Park boulevard and Cermak road, Berwyn. Reservations must be made not later than Monday evening.

RABBI WISE TO SPEAK AT DINNER ON OCT. 6 FOR SIGMUND DAVID

The Chicago division of the American Jewish congress will begin its fifth year of activity with a testimonial dinner for Sigmund W. David, former president of the division, on Wednesday, Oct. 6, at the Hotel Sherman.

Rabbi Stephen S. Wise.

Mr. David will speak on "My Contact with Chicago Jews and What It Has Taught Me." Rabbi Stephen S. Wise, national president of the American Jewish congress, who has been attending the World Zionist congress in Zurich, Switzerland, will be one of the principal speakers.

Plans for the dinner are progressing under the direction of Leo H. Lowitz, president of the Chicago division, and M. J. Krensky, chairman of the banquet committee.

DU PAGE LEGION ASKS R.O.T.C. FOR 3 HIGH SCHOOLS

Units Sought for York, Wheaton and Hinsdale.

The executive committee of the Du Page county American Legion, representing 2,500 men, has unanimously passed a resolution urging the war department and congress to allot R. O. T. C. units to Hinsdale, Wheaton, and York [Elmhurst] high schools immediately so that training may commence with the opening of the fall term next month. Pressure also will be placed on the White House, Howard G. Wade, chairman of the committee, said.

Coöperating with the American Legion and other interested organizations will be the Reserve Officers' association, comprised of thousands of civilians devoted to the cause of citizen military training for possible emergencies.

Copies of the resolution have been sent to the senators and congressmen at large from Illinois, the representatives from the 11th Illinois district, the commanders of the 11th Illinois district American Legion, the commanders of each post in Du Page county and of La Grange post in Cook county, the national executive committeeman from Illinois, the national defense committee chairman and R. O. T. C. committee chairman of the department of Illinois, and the Du Page county chapter, Reserve Officers' association.

Seek Convention Action.

It was also decided that delegates to the department convention of the American Legion will propose a similar resolution for adoption by that group.

The passage of the resolution by the executive committee is the continuation of efforts, begun several years ago, to secure the establishment of R. O. T. C. units in these three schools, Mr. Wade explained.

Success seemed assured last month, he said, when army officials reported favorably on the facilities of the schools after an inspection, and congress appropriated adequate funds to the war department for the creation of new units.

Principals of the schools, however, received letters from the Sixth corps area headquarters last week informing them that it had been advised that no R. O. T. C. units would be established at the present time.

Order Impounds Funds.

Cause for this action, Mr. Wade said, has been ascribed to an order which went out from the White House to all departments of the government to impound 10 per cent of the funds appropriated by congress this session. This money—$500,000 in the case of the war department—apparently is to be kept available for return to the treasury or possibly for some other purpose at the discretion of the executive.

The movement for the establishment of an R. O. T. C. unit in Hinsdale began in September, 1935, when the school board voted unanimously to apply to the government in accordance with a petition signed by 125 high school boys. At the time the action was taken it was too late to be included in the order creating 11 new units in the Chicago high schools.

Until July of this year, moreover, the war department did not have enough officers qualified to act as instructors, so it was not possible to assign units to Hinsdale and other schools which had applied.

Resolution Is Quoted.

Parts of the resolution emphasizing the views of the American Legion are as follows:

". . . The American Legion posts in Du Page county communities have consistently urged upon congress and the war department the allocation of R. O. T. C. units in their high schools, believing such units contribute materially to the welfare of the students, the school, and the community.

". . . Conditions in the world today have stimulated racial and national animosities to an extent that endangers the peace of the world and may lead to calling untrained American youth to undergo the hazards of a highly technical and mechanized ordeal by combat where the untrained youth is rendered helpless to protect himself and valueless as a defender of his country.

". . . Congress has appropriated large sums of money for less important measures and the army has provided skilled instructors to train junior R. O. T. C. units."

Mr. Wade indicated also that a delegation from all over the country may petition the President to release the money appropriated by congress immediately so that training may be started in the newly created R. O. T. C. units this fall.

REGISTRY OPENS FOR JUVENILE POLICE SCHOOLS

Three classes of the Juvenile Police schools will be formed next month and continue for a period of twenty-four weeks, it was announced by Capt. William Rogers, who has conducted the schools for the last four years. The object of the course is the teaching of legal principles which should be of common knowledge, and classes are open to both men and women of 17 years or older.

Finger printing, photography, handwriting, blood chemistry, parliamentary procedure, anatomical measurements, and Red Cross work will be the subjects comprising the semester's curriculum. Sessions will begin at 7:30 o'clock in the evening and last for three hours.

The first class will meet Monday evening, Sept. 20, in the Gladstone hotel, 6200 Kenwood avenue, and the next night another will meet in the Englewood Y. M. C. A., 66th street and Union avenue. An executive class for officers will be conducted Sept. 22 in the Great Northern hotel, Jackson boulevard and Dearborn street.

Registrations can be made in person or by mail at the headquarters of the Juvenile Police schools, 509 South Wabash avenue, room 502.

SAGE UNCLE TOM RETURNS

Oldsters may insist that the play "Uncle Tom's Cabin" has been worn threadbare through the number of its performances, but members of the Hinsdale Little theater cast say all they know about the show is what they have read in Mrs. Stowe's book. Among those to appear in the modern version of the drama that stirred the nation for generations are Richard Dehnert as Uncle Tom, Miss Linda Cherry as Topsy, and Miss Wenonah Pickell as Eva. The play will be presented Thursday night at the Symphony Woods orchestra shell, Western Springs. Everett Mesenbrink is director.

REHERSE LINES WITHOUT HAVING SEEN 'UNCLE TOM'

Hinsdale Cast to Stage Drama Thursday.

Wholly unhampered by memories of interpretations given by others, members of the Hinsdale Little theater group will present "Uncle Tom's Cabin" Thursday night in the Symphony Woods band shell in Western Springs.

Everett Mesenbrink, who is directing the play and will take one of the principal rôles, said that he nor any member of the cast had ever witnessed a version of the drama taken from Harriet Beecher Stowe's novel.

"The admission may sound strange to those of earlier generations," agreed Mr. Mesenbrink, "but we are all without any background concerning the play except that handed down by our elders. We have approached the Charles Townsend adaptation of the novel as we would any play of a period with which we have no familiarty. We have read the book closely, and we will offer the play to midwest suburbanites as an antidote for late summer ennui."

What, No Bloodhounds?

"No bloodhounds, no artificial Ohio river ice, no singing in the cotton fields, no little Eva among the angels?" Mr. Mesenbrink was asked.

The director replied that the thirty-two scenes called for in the play had been cut down to three sets, which would eliminate one of the major difficulties encountered in the curtainless stage performance.

"We have been told," he added, "that the play of slavery days was produced in tents during the summer season as well as in opera houses, and we feel that our open air theater will lend itself nicely on this occasion to a movable prismatic platform, a revival of the early Sophoclean stage appliance, to allow for alternate changes of scene.

No Burlesque Planned.

"In reading the book, we find Topsy, Marks, Ophelia, and other characters good theater. We appreciate the humor of their lines, and we have no intention of burlesquing the theme. Nor will we inject any lines not in the book. We will, however, introduce Negro spirituals between acts. They will be sung by Miss Gertrude and Miss Clara Werfelmann and Miss Mildred Bode. Orchestra interludes will be provided by the Western Springs Symphony orchestra.

BETROTHED

The engagement of Miss Lucile Irmis to John H. Miller Jr. was announced recently by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin E. Irmis, 851 North Harvey avenue, Oak Park. The senior Mr. Miller resides at 1018 North Mason avenue, Chicago.

HOUSE OF SEVEN DECADES KEEPS TRADITION ALIVE

and Oak Park. He made his living in a hardware business on South Water street. For eleven years the business grew and then Chicago burned. One day in 1871 Water street business men looked over a pile of smoldering ashes trying to find the spots where their businesses had been. Henry Austin's hardware store was at that moment a pile of warped iron pumps that stood out like a reddish glowing specter amid the pile of débris.

How Austin Was Started.

Thereafter the Austin Wholesale Hardware store was located at 192-94 Lake street and the house in Oak Park was well in its second decade and the three children who had been born there were playing Indian in the yard.

Years passed and Henry Austin retired from his business and bought a plot of ground in the township of Cicero east of the growing village of Oak Park. He subdivided his land and persuaded the North Western railroad to stop trains there. He bought wagon loads of tiny saplings and with a hired man went up and down the new streets planting trees. The result of his foresight is Austin, the subdivision of Chicago that bears his name.

As a Republican patriot the senior Henry Austin led parades through Oak Park and took a trip to Washington to meet President Grant, the man he most admired and most resembled. An artist once asked him to pose because of this marked resemblance.

Retains Old Charm.

Henry Austin Jr. brought his bride home to the brown house where his mother and father had died some years before. The junior Austins reside there now with their youngest son sharing the heritage of a house that was strong enough to stand three-quarters of a changing century.

The wide front lawn is cool and restful. Mr. Austin, who is the second oldest native born male citizen of the community, occupied the bedroom where he was born 73 years ago. Off the front hall to the left downstairs is the parlor with the brocaded stiff backed settee and long modern drapes that suggests a quiet old fashioned lady in sweeping skirts.

Garden of Romance.

Three romances ripened in the garden around the house. Three brides tossed their bouquets to waiting bridesmaids from a broad stairway while laughter echoed through the spacious rooms and gave them memories. The first was Sophia, the daughter of the senior Henry Austin. The second was Sophia's daughter who came back to the house where she had been born to be married. The third was Henry Austin's granddaughter, Marian, who was married last December to Robert Fisher.

Two years ago the house faced Lake street, a business block of Oak Park, and when Mr. Austin sold that part of the original grounds to make way for an expanding business section, the brown house was put on rollers and moved around the corner to Forest avenue. So it remains a landmark of Oak Park because the brides who came there and the children who were born there had changed a house into a home.

Charley Youngblood, service officer and business representative of the Painters' local No. 147, was elected for his fourth consecutive term. H. E. Robbins is the outgoing commander.

La Grange post is making plans for its 17th annual fall festival to be held Sept. 6 to 11, under the chairmanship of Harry Howland.

BOYS FIND PLACE TO GO CAMPING ON MAXWELL ST.

Out on the west side where Chicago's canyons of stone and steel grow more shallow, boys of the Maxwell street district have found a place to camp. It is in the Y. M. C. A., 1012 West Maxwell street, and takes the place of the vacation school program that closed recently.

The cabins, which are rooms in the "Y," will be open until Aug. 31. Above each cabin doorway is a name suggesting early Chicago history in honor of the city's charter jubilee. There is the DuSable cabin, the McKinzie, Cook cabin, and several others. Two hundred fifty boys have registered to date. Mornings the boys will do craft projects, tell folklores, and learn campfire songs. Each afternoon the cabins will be emptied while the residents take outings at the Brookfield zoo, Salt Creek valley, Palos park, and Riverview park.

Volunteers Are Chosen.

Assisting Miss Lillian Laven, director, are the following volunteer leaders from the community, chosen for their past merit and good sportsmanship as campers. They are Eva Thomas, Willella Nuttal, Edward Hill, Percy Harvey, Steve Harris, John Gales, and Naomi Pool.

Assistant staf members are Mrs. Hazel Garland, Mrs. Hester Machen, Mrs. Minnie Bruce, Mohlan Cheathom, Jerry Marks, and Louis Jerrin. The staf will arrange for trips to various Chicago historical spots and landmarks to augment the story of Chicago which will be taught in each cabin.

In addition to the stay-at-home camp a group of boys will leave home Tuesday afternoon for Camp Wabash near Benton Harbor, Mich. Boys who never had camping experience away from home were chosen for the trip.

Picnic Is Concluding Event.

The concluding event on the summer program at the Maxwell "Y" will be a picnic on Aug. 25, when mothers and children of the neighborhood will have a picnic at Ryan's woods in Beverly Hills. Also during the last week in August, finals will be played in the older boys' baseball and horseshoe tournament.

A fall program will be arranged the second Tuesday of September by the children's committee of the "Y." Members of this committee are youth leaders of the west side. They are Edward Stulken, chairman; Ernest Schae, Mrs. Alice Rogers, Mrs. H. Reginald Smith, Mrs. Truman K. Gibson, William Diffay, Mrs. Martha Parks, Mrs. Irene Lewis, Mrs. Perry Frazier, Miss Rose Liederman, Mrs. Edward Beasley, Ernest Schaefer, Mrs. Andrew Bason, Mrs. Lloyd Hall, Mrs. Virgil Mackey, Mrs. Edward Cole, Miss Helen Moore, Mrs. R. R. Jackson, and Mrs. W. H. Riley.

Mr. Baggiore will continue to make his personal appearances in concerts. Last fall and winter he appeared in more than sixty concerts and his travels took him to more than twenty states and into Mexico for singing engagements. On his radio programs, Mr. Baggiore will be presented each week with Henry Weber and the W-G-N concert orchestra on W-G-N and the Mutual chain.

AIR STARS BURN NAMES ON RADIO LEADER'S PIANO

Autographed Instrument Brings High Offers.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

In stalking the stars of radio for almost a decade your observer has seen them trailed by all sorts of autograph seekers. The other day we encountered a new kind of signature collector—a chap who has the glamorous of the kilocycles burn their names upon his piano. He is Ros Metzger, head of the radio department of Ruthrauff & Ryan advertising agency here.

Metzer's piano autographing venture started out as a stunt at a party at his home in Winnetka several years ago. But it has proved quite a [prospective] profitable venture. He has already declined offers of many thousands of dollars for the old upright piano bearing the names which originally cost only a few hundred. A big Chicago legal firm recently made him an attractive offer on behalf of a client anxious to acquire the piano for a crippled son, thinking it would serve as an inspiration for him.

Dorothy Lamour First Signer.

Dorothy Lamour, now a motion picture and radio star, was the first to burn her name on the piano, using an old soldering iron. That was before she married Herbie Kay, the band leader, a friend and former associate of Metzger who himself was once in the orchestra business. [He performed for WDAP, the predecessor of W-G-N way back in 1923 and '24 at the Drake hotel.]

Since Miss Lamour signed a procession of stars have visited the Metzger home and carved their names in the mahogany with the electric pen which he keeps handy. Not so long ago Metzger moved the instrument to his downtown office in order to make it more accessible for visiting notables. If the celebrity finds it difficult to come to his office he sometimes carts the front panel to them.

Many Notables Scratch Names.

Hundreds of well known names are engraved upon the instrument. Among the better known ones are Jack Benny and Mary Livingstone, George Burns and Gracie Allen, Frank Parker, Fannie Brice, John Boles, Toby Wing, Mark Fisher, Mitzi Green, Sylvia Froos, George Givot, Miss Lamour and Herbie Kay, and many others.

Recently Metzger received a letter from Miss Lamour in Hollywood offering to round up some of the glittering names out there. Ros figures the express on a piano to Hollywood would be a little high so plans to saw a chunk off the top and air mail it to her.

Metzger, as radio head at Ruthrauff & Ryan, handles such radio programs as the Smoke Dreamer on Mutual, Rhythm at Noon and Todd Hunter's news comments on WBBM and other programs not outletting here.

JACK LITTLE AT TRIANON A WEEK; THEN TO ARAGON

Little Jack Little and his orchestra returned to W-G-N-Mutual last night from the south side's Trianon ballroom. Little and his band will be heard today from 6:30 to 7, 10:30 to 11 p. m., and 12:15 to 12:30 a. m.

Following a week at the Trianon Little and his bandsmen will move to the north side Aragon for two weeks. Dick Jurgens' orchestra is currently at the Aragon and will be heard over W-G-N from 6 to 6:30, 10:15 to 10:30, and 12 to 12:15.

When Little goes to the Aragon on Aug. 21 Dick Jurgens will move to the Trianon for a week's stay. Then on Friday, Aug. 27, Ted Weems and his famous band return to the Trianon and W-G-N-Mutual for the fall season.

MISS CLAIRE, RUBINOFF TO BE HEARD DURING FESTIVAL BROADCAST

Two of the best known stars of the radio, screen, and stage will be heard during the W-G-N-Mutual network's broadcast of the Chicagoland Music festival from Soldiers' field next Saturday. They are Marion Claire and Dave Rubinoff.

Miss Claire, whose fame as an opera star, concert singer, and radio artist is nation-wide, has recently blossomed as a star of the movies. On the Chicagoland Music festival broadcast she will be heard singing "Make a Wish" from her latest picture success, accompanied by the festival orchestra of 100 men under the baton of Henry Weber.

Rubinoff will play his famous violin in the selection "Dance of the Russian Peasants" and will also direct the great festival orchestra in another selection.

W-G-N will broadcast a full hour of the music festival from 7:30 to 8:30 p. m. locally and then will join the Mutual Broadcasting system's coast to coast network to present the final hour of the country's greatest musical show from 9 to 10 p. m.

How to Aquaplane in Five Easy Lessons—Pictures of Expert in Action Emphasize Skill in Water Sport

FOUR TYPES OF FEMININE BEAUTY

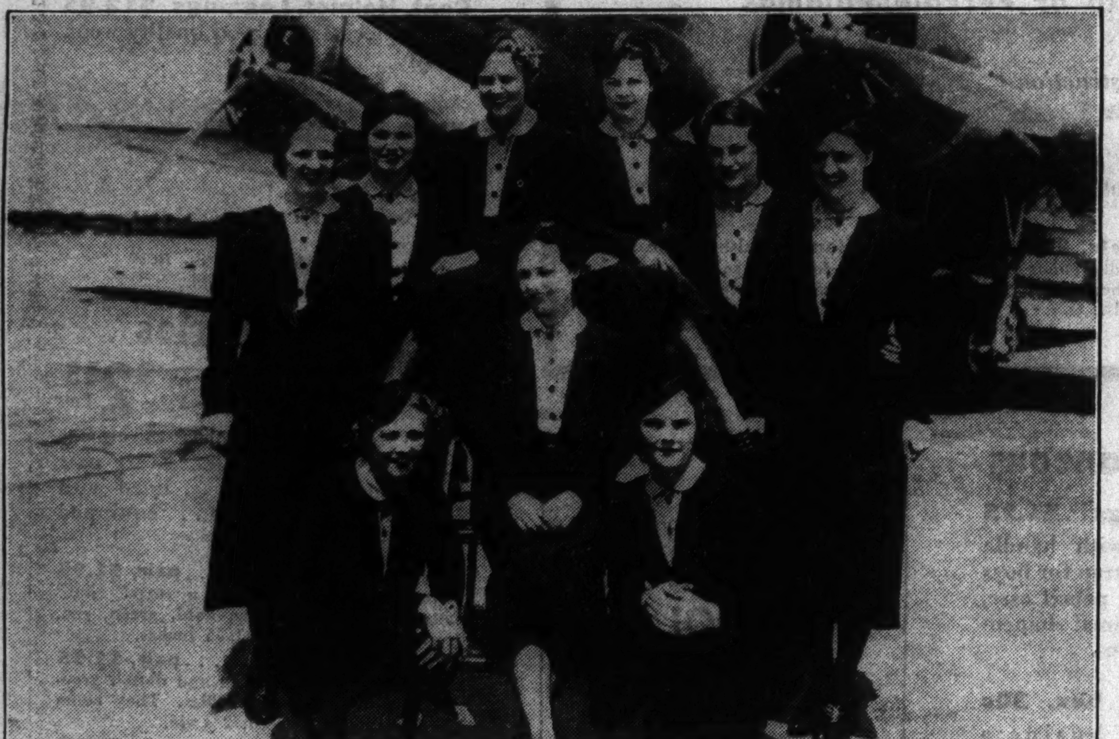
Virginia's beauties are world famed and some of the state's prettiest supported this huge pipe which is to be displayed at National Tobacco festi val. Of course, there must be a tobacco queen. [Associated Press Photo.]



Although air line stewardesses are noted for their beauty, these were brought together for a different reason. They were cited for outstanding service to humanity for work in Ohio river floods in award made annually by Rho Pi Phi, druggists' fraternity. Letf to right, rear: Marie Wanda, Kankakee; Thelma Fuller, Chariton, Ia.; Marian Horton, Pompton Lakes, N. J.; Jean Waltermire, Indianapolis; Mae Leslie, Antler, N. D., and Caroline Goth, Bethlehem, Pa. Front row: Mabel Williams, Colon, Mich.; Phyllis Alldredge, Evansville, Ind., and Agnes Spence, Walkerton, Ind.

Gertrude Silver of Manuelito, N. M., was elected queen of the Indian celebration at Flagstaff, Ariz. She is a member of the Navajo tribe. As a princess of the tribe she was adorned in rich silver trinkets for the contest.

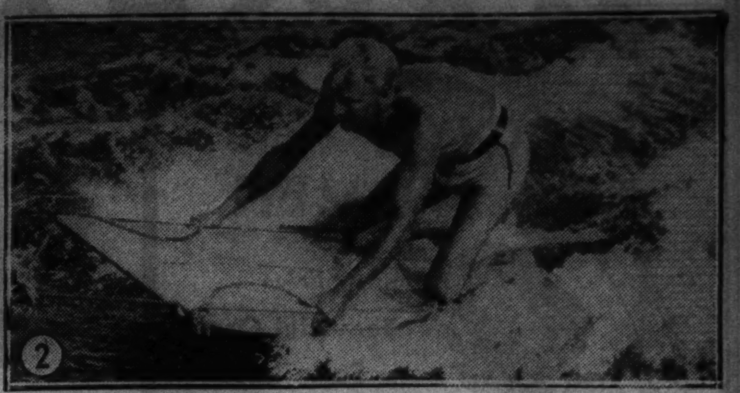
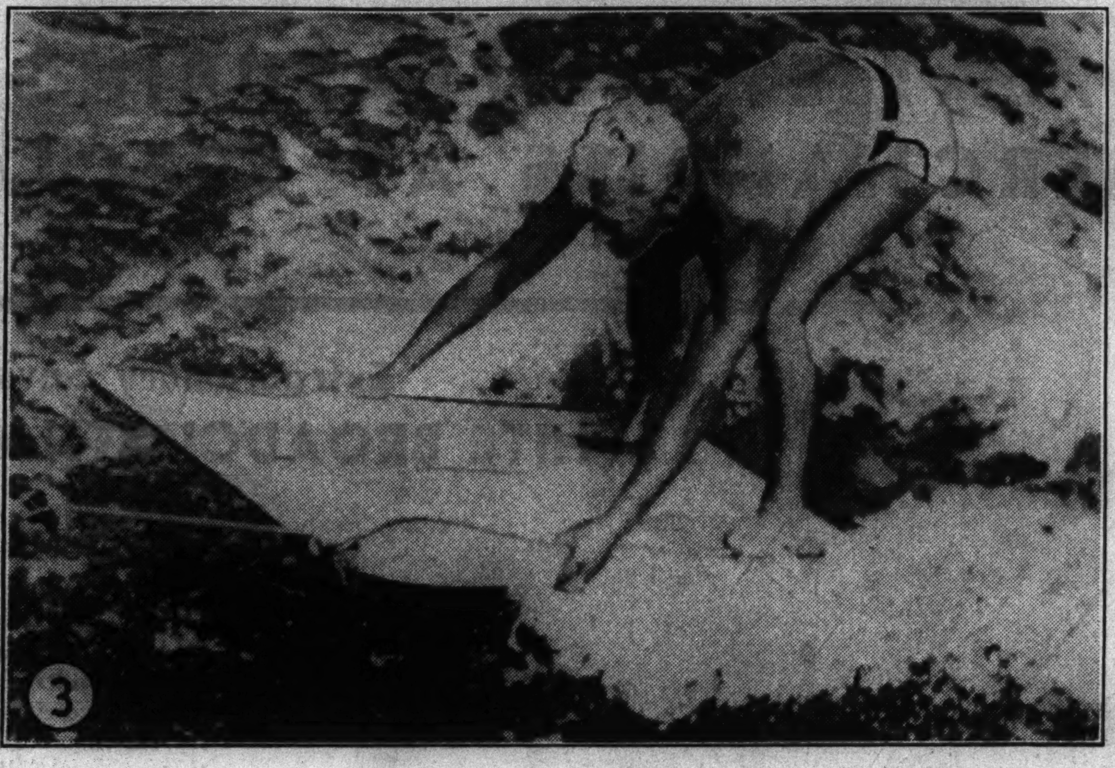
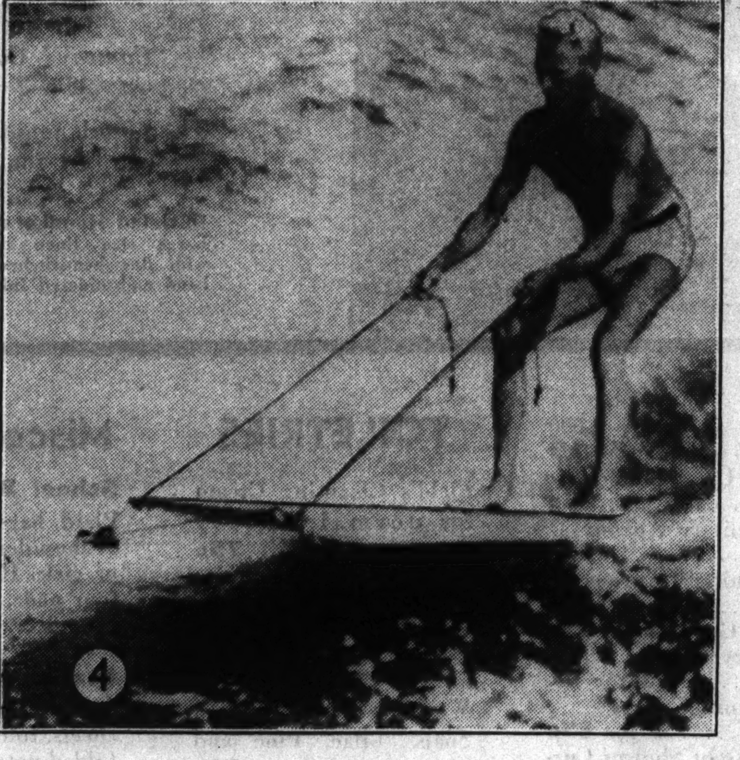
Herbert Welsh, one of the foremost aquaplane enthusiasts in the country, takes the first position on the board being pulled by motorboat. Aquaplaning is particularly populer in California. Welsh advises practice at slow speed before attempting 60 mile an hour tow.



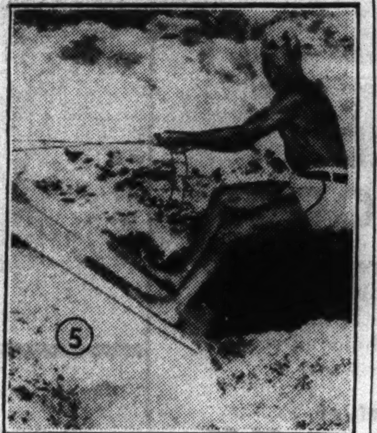
As soon as you feel the speed bring the aquplane to the surface, pull yourself to your knees slowly, placing each knee evenly on the board. Keep the ropes in your hands.



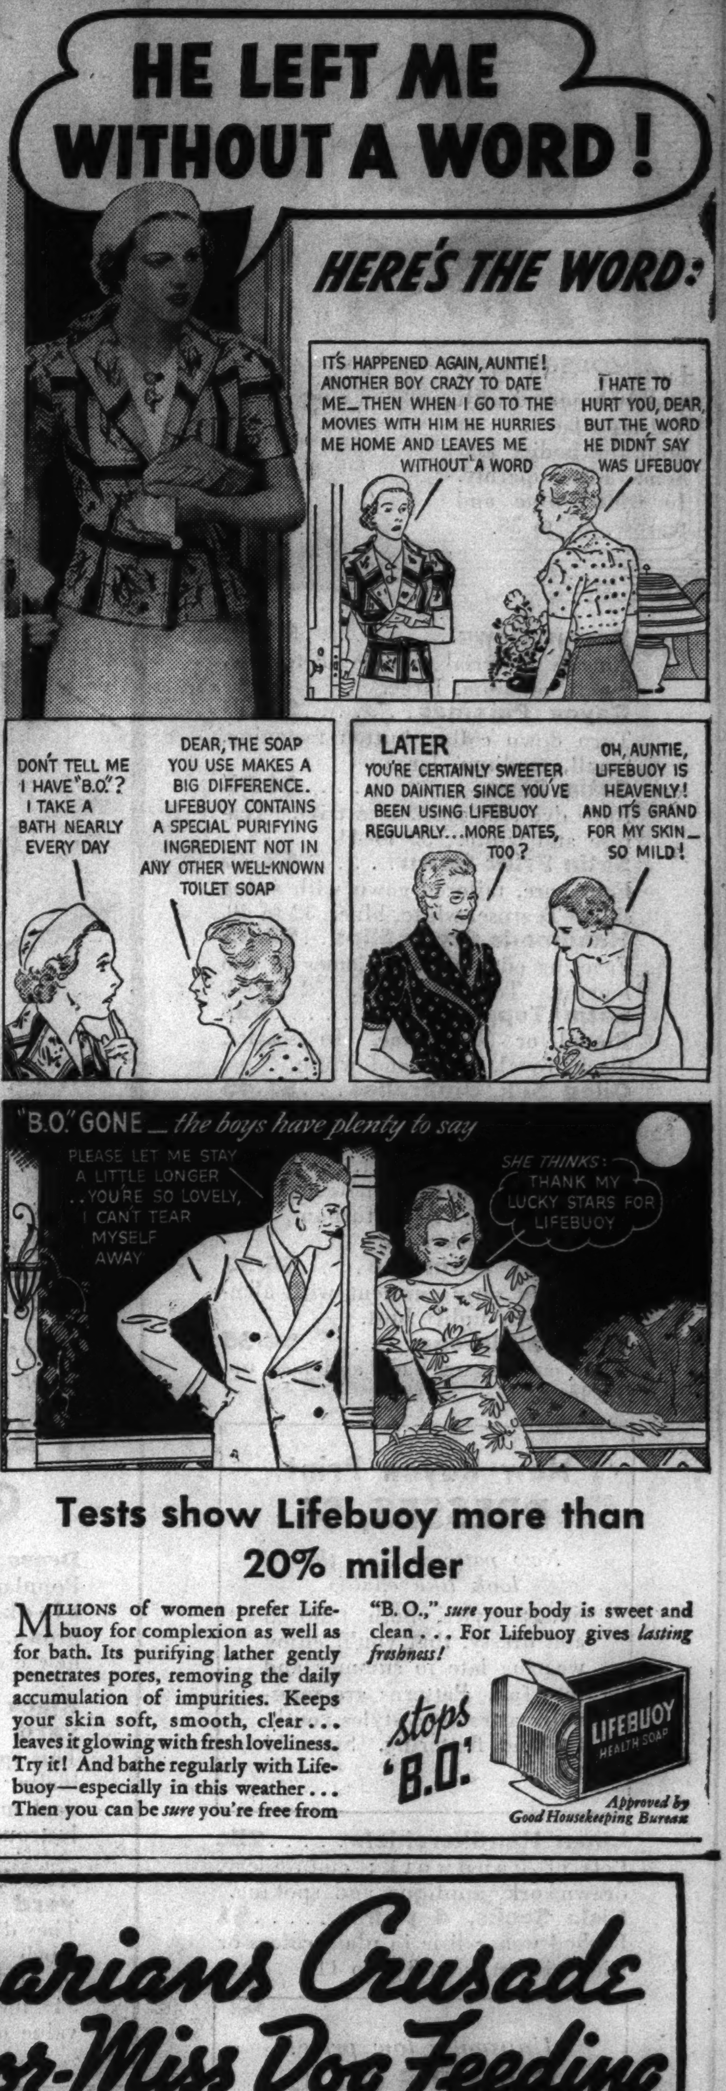
Perfect timing and balance are necessary. Holding onto the board and ropes, pull to this position. It is the most difficult trick for the beginner.



Release hold on the board, holding onto rope. Gradually ease up and ease back, allowing ropes to slip through your hands, until the hands are about 14 inches in front of your feet.



To make a turn, push one foot down and pull on the opposite rope.



HE LEFT ME WITHOUT A WORD!
HERE'S THE WORD:
IT'S HAPPENED AGAIN, AUNTIE! ANOTHER BOY CRAZY TO DATE ME—THEN WHEN I GO TO THE MOVIES WITH HIM HE HURRIES ME HOME AND LEAVES ME WITHOUT A WORD
I HATE TO HURT YOU, DEAR, BUT THE WORD HE DIDN'T SAY WAS LIFEBUOY
DON'T TELL ME I HAVE "B.O."? I TAKE A BATH NEARLY EVERY DAY
DEAR, THE SOAP YOU USE MAKES A BIG DIFFERENCE. LIFEBUOY CONTAINS A SPECIAL PURIFYING INGREDIENT NOT IN ANY OTHER WELL-KNOWN TOILET SOAP
LATER
OH, AUNTIE, LIFEBUOY IS HEAVENLY! AND IT'S GRAND FOR MY SKIN—SO MILD!
"B.O." GONE—the boys have plenty to say
PLEASE LET ME STAY A LITTLE LONGER ...YOU'RE SO LOVELY, I CAN'T TEAR MYSELF AWAY
SHE THINKS: THANK MY LUCKY STARS FOR LIFEBUOY

Tests show Lifebuoy more than 20% milder

MILLIONS of women prefer Lifebuoy for complexion as well as for bath. Its purifying lather gently penetrates pores, removing the daily accumulation of impurities. Keeps your skin soft, smooth, clear... leaves it glowing with fresh loveliness. Try it! And bathe regularly with Lifebuoy—especially in this weather... Then you can be sure you're free from "B. O.," sure your body is sweet and clean... For Lifebuoy gives lasting freshness!

stops 'B.O.'

LIFEBUOY HEALTH SOAP

Approved by Good Housekeeping Bureau

Plenty of Dates now... I MADE THE "ARMHOLE ODOR" TEST

NOTHING will cool a man's interest more quickly than a girl's unforgivable neglect of her underarm. Yet, because you deodorize faithfully, you probably think you are safe! Let your dress tell you! Make this "armhole odor" test tonight. When you take off your dress, smell the fabric under the arm. Shocked? Nevertheless, THIS IS THE WAY YOU SMELL TO OTHERS!

Dryness Essential... Just when you want to be loveliest, a stale "armhole odor" will be brought out by the warmth of your body—if once the slightest moisture has collected on the armhole of your dress. And single-action preparations, that deodorize only, are not made to help that at all.

The double action of Liquid Odorono keeps your underarm sweet, and also completely dry! Frocks can't be stained, cleaner's bills stay down where they belong.

Odorono acts by gently closing the pores in that little underarm hollow, harmlessly diverting the perspiration to body surfaces where it can evaporate freely. In two strengths, Regular and Instant. Make sure you never offend, by starting Odorono's use today!

Veterinarians Crusade against Hit-or-Miss Dog Feeding

CASE HISTORIES PRESENTED BY SWIFT AND COMPANY World-Famous Purveyors of Fine Foods

THIN, UNDERWEIGHT DIARRHEA

Treated by *Dr. A. C. M_____, who reports: "This water spaniel's symptoms—diarrhea and thin, run-down condition—were disturbing to its owner, but not nearly so serious as the real underlying trouble. Like so many dogs brought to me, this one was suffering from malnutrition, caused by incorrect feeding." Dr. M____ is just one of the many outstanding veterinarians who are actively crusading against hit-or-miss dog feeding, and particularly against the feeding of nutritionally deficient rations. (This spaniel, shown in the photo at right, is now at normal weight and in perfect condition on Pard, Swift's canine-tested feeding formula.)

PARD.. SWIFT'S CANINE-TESTED FEEDING FORMULA

JAGGED, GLEAMING TEETH show your dog was meant to be a flesh-eater. But domestication has radically changed his way of life, and his diet must be re-adjusted to fit his present-day living habits.

Swift & Company's research laboratories and experimental kennels have developed a formula that solves this problem for you in a simple and effective way. Called PARD, it is made of fresh beef meat food products and seven other fine ingredients. Feeding tests on over 100 dogs, extending to 4 generations, have proved it a thoroughly adequate formula. Put your dog on Pard! Swift & Company, Chicago.

TWO SMART GIRLS
GOODBYE! I'M GOING TO STAY AT THE HOTEL UNTIL YOU...
JOHN... JOHN!
OH, DEAR! I TOLD YOU SOMETHING AWFUL WOULD HAPPEN IF THOSE SILLY ARGUMENTS DIDN'T STOP.
SILLY, MY EYE! DADDY LOOKS LIKE THE PHANTOM OF THE BEACH... AND IT'S TIME MOTHER DID SOMETHING ABOUT THAT TATTLE-TALE GRAY.
STOP TALKING RIDDLES. IT'S SHIRTS THEY ALWAYS QUARREL ABOUT.
IT'S TATTLE-TALE GRAY. JUST WAIT TWO MINUTES... AND SEE HOW I FOUND OUT A FEW DAYS AGO.
OKAY, I'M TUNING IN... LISTEN.
NO HUSBAND LIKES TO GO AROUND WITH TATTLE-TALE GRAY IN HIS SHIRTS AND THINGS.... THAT DULL, DINGY COLOR THAT SHOWS VERY PLAINLY THAT ALL THE DIRT DIDN'T COME OUT IN THE WASH.
BUT WHY HAVE HALF-CLEAN CLOTHES... WHEN A GRAND NEW DISCOVERY IS NOW BRINGING THOUSANDS THE WHITEST WASHES EVER! FELS-NAPTHA SOAP CHIPS... THE ONLY CHIPS TO BRING YOU RICHER GOLDEN SOAP AND LOTS OF DIRT-LOOSENING NAPTHA!
SO LONG!
HEY... SIT DOWN!
THESE NEW CURLY FLAKES ARE WONDERFULLY GENTLE TO HANDS, TOO... THERE'S GLYCERINE IN THEM.
I WON'T SIT. I'M GOING TO TELL MOTHER RIGHT AWAY.
WAIT! WAIT FOR ME!
AND NO SNEEZY DUST IN FELS-NAPTHA SOAP CHIPS. IF DUSTY, POWDERY SOAP HURTS YOUR NOSE, THINK WHAT IT DOES TO YOUR CLOTHES!
FEW WEEKS LATER
ARE WE SMART! MOTHER AND DAD ACT LIKE HONEYMOONERS AGAIN.
STOP PATTING YOURSELF! IT'S FELS-NAPTHA SOAP CHIPS THAT GOT RID OF TATTLE-TALE GRAY- AND BROUGHT DADDY BACK.
FELS-NAPTHA SOAP CHIPS
THE GOLDEN CHIPS WITH THE CLEAN NAPTHA ODOR

WASH CLOTHES HOSPITAL-CLEAN WITH CONCENTRATED SUPER SUDS

NOW THAT I KNOW THERE ARE DANGEROUS GERMS IN ALL SOILED CLOTHES, I USE THIS NEW SOAP THAT REMOVES GERMS AS WELL AS DIRT!

Staphylococcus Albus (Commonly present in skin infections)

Bacillus Coli (Commonly found in intestinal infections)

IN THE LABORATORY

OH, MY GOODNESS! I CAN ACTUALLY SEE THOSE AWFUL GERMS YOU FOUND IN MY WASH!

YES, MRS. O'SULLIVAN, MILLIONS OF GERMS ARE PRESENT IN ALL SOILED CLOTHES. THAT'S WHY I ADVISE WASHING CLOTHES WITH CONCENTRATED SUPER SUDS. IT REMOVES GERMS AS WELL AS DIRT - GETS CLOTHES REALLY CLEAN.. HOSPITAL-CLEAN.

NEXT WASHDAY

MY, WHAT THICK, RICH SUDS, MOTHER!

YES, CONCENTRATED SUPER SUDS SOFTENS WATER IN A JIFFY! AND IT'S AMAZING HOW QUICKLY THOSE THICKER, RICHER SUDS SOAK OUT DIRT, WITHOUT SCRUBBING!

HOW PRETTY MY PLAY DRESS LOOKS!

YES, AND I'M SURE THIS NEW SOAP IS SAFE FOR ALL OUR COLORED THINGS, BECAUSE IT'S SO KIND TO MY HANDS!

WHAT A LOVELY, SWEET-SMELLING WASH, MAY! AND YOU HAVE IT ALL OUT ON THE LINE SO MUCH SOONER!

YES, YOU SHOULD USE CONCENTRATED SUPER SUDS IN THE BLUE BOX, TOO, GRACE - IT SAVES SO MUCH TIME AND WORK!

CONCENTRATED SUPER SUDS GIVES ME THE CLEANEST, WHITEST WASHES I'VE EVER HAD - AND IT REMOVES GERMS AS WELL AS DIRT! NOW MY CLOTHES ARE REALLY CLEAN - HOSPITAL-CLEAN!

MRS. MORTI[illegible] O'SULLIV[illegible] VERONA, [illegible]

THE [illegible] BOX FOR WASHING CLOTHES

HOW CONCENTRATED SUPER SUDS WASHES CLOTHES HOSPITAL-CLEAN!

NEXT washday discover—as Mrs. O'Sullivan did—how you can get a far cleaner, whiter, sweeter-smelling wash! This remarkable new granulated soap not only cuts time and work, ends tedious scrubbing—it also REMOVES DANGEROUS GERMS!

This is important, for doctors have long known that dangerous germs in bed linen, towels, handkerchiefs, may spread sickness.

1. SOFTENS WATER INSTANTLY. Made to give quick, rich suds, even in hard water.

2. SOAKS OUT DIRT without scrubbing. These lively, active suds soak out even stubborn grime and grease. Yet colors are brighter —hands stay lovely.

3. REMOVES GERMS that physicians warn are present in every family wash. This does not mean sterile, but it does mean that most dangerous germs are removed or killed in the washing process.

Get Concentrated Super Suds in the blue box—and wash your clothes really Hospital-Clean!

[SEE 1730 N. McVICKER-AV. $6,750]

AN INVITATION TO THE MAN WHO SERIOUSLY CONSIDERS THE PRESENT AND THE FUTURE WELFARE AND SAFETY OF HIS FAMILY.

THINK—About the fast disappearing outstanding value home buying opportunities.

THINK—About the average of 50,000 yearly marriages in the Chicago area, as compared to the relatively insignificant number of new homes built during the past 5 years [average about 368 annually] and then think what this most surely means in home shortage and rising rent levels.

THINK—About the difficulties of trying to adjust this shortage by the building of new homes at today's costs.

THINK—About the advantages of buying in a fully and desirably settled community versus buying in far away areas and struggling through long years of paying heavy special assessments for street improvements.

These Following Positive Facts Should Interest You.

We offer a number of soundly constructed brick two apartment homes, where you may live in one apartment and collect rent from the other.

There are 5 and 6 good sized rooms and enclosed porches [in most cases], full basements, separate heating plants [no janitor work required], and 2 car garages on paved alleys. No special assessments.

Present rent rate is 67% of former rentals.

Present offering price is about [in average case] 52% of former selling prices, or today's cost to reproduce.

The above thoughts and FACTS invite investigation by the man who WANTS FACTS. You will find on inspection that we have stated ONLY FACTS.

See the typical buildings offered below—then come to our office—ask questions and ask to see our simple, straightforward, understandable contract for the sale of these income homes offered on Ideal Homes for Moderate Incomes.

PRICE—The cost of your home must offer full value.

TERMS—Must be easy and leave enough surplus for the children's educational needs, amusement and a little "nest egg" for a "rainy day."

NEIGHBORHOOD SURROUNDINGS — Must be attractive and provide desirable social contacts, adequate educational, religious and recreational opportunities—nearby shopping and transportation facilities.

STREET IMPROVEMENTS—A perfect setup requires that all street improvements be in and fully paid for.

CONSTRUCTION—Must be "life long" to require minimum upkeep cost.

LAYOUT AND LANDSCAPING — Rooms should be large enough to permit attractive furniture and allow a change of arrangement now and then—trees, shrubs and plenty of sun and fresh air are fundamental needs.

The above and many other attractive features and IDEAL HOME requirements are all available in

Burnham Park On the Lake

Supreme in location, ideal in landscape, perfectly adaptable to almost any building plan.

Here amid century-old trees, these six lovely acres have been laid out in beautiful homesites—which are available to SELECTED purchasers. HIGHLY RESTRICTED as to price and plan the homes will bespeak prestige of ownership and pride of living.

Burnham Park Was Planned

in 1886 as an Estate by Daniel H. Burnham, late architect of the Columbian Exposition and of the Chicago Plan. Here in Evanston he chose the finest land available, lost no opportunity in improving it as a beautiful natural park—and as such it has remained up to the present. It is a fascinating spot, unspoiled and untouched by the amazing suburban growth around it.

Here Is a Situation That Can Never Be Duplicated

There is nothing else of this kind in the entire territory. It can never happen again. Only a stroke of real luck enables us to offer it to you now. Not only will Burnham Park on the lake be THE ideal location for your home, but also it is a preferred investment which should enjoy a fast appreciation in market value. Prices are well below those of immediately adjacent properties. Every house will front on a permanently private park, and your view will always be insured against any discordant note.

Drive In and Look Around

Come as our guest and without obligation. See actual models of homes soon to be built for owners. Interested parties are invited to drive directly into the property, the two entrances being located on Burnham-place and Dempster-street, just east of Forest-avenue. Office on premises is open daily, 9 a. m. to 8 p. m.

Day By Day Story of the Experimental Farms

By Bob Becker

Sandpipers Convene

Aug. 14, 1937.

THE annual sandpiper convention that is held on the farm every August has been in session this last week. The little shore birds took one look at the farm ponds, noticed how much rich black mud there was for them to work on, and settled down to spend some time before their next flight. The sandpipers are early migrators southward. Every year at this time dozens of them hunt food in the black ooze around the farm ponds.

The other morning the sandpipers had killdeer on the job as guards. A walk through the oak and hickory woods near Half Moon pond disclosed the flash of wings on the far side of the water. These were the sandpipers playing in the mud. When we stepped into the open several petulant killdeer began to sound an alarm—a job at which they are proficient because they are chronic complainers.

Complacent Ducks.

With the sandpipers and killdeer were some grackles looking for food on the mud flats. Meanwhile the snow white Muscovy ducks, unmindful of all the hubbub, paddled around the pond as if they knew they were the real owners of the place and all the smaller birds were just transients to be ignored.

The most beautiful visitor to the farm ponds this week was a snow white egret. When we saw this bird that usually is associated with the southland it was wading in the big pond before an admiring flock of geese. The scene looked as if it were staged by the birds.

The single white egret was standing in the shallow water, its head cocked to one side, its neck arched for a strike at a small fish. Back of it, on the shore, were all the Canada geese—quiet, attentive, and apparently much intrigued by the egret, which looked as if it were teaching a class on the fine points of catching a fish. Not a bird was on the water. The egret had the stage to itself, although a clattering kingfisher kept darting back and forth in the hope of doing a high dive to seize a fish.

Skyscraper Weeds.

The flowering weeds that are lucky enough to grow around the edge of the ponds where the soil is moist have raised their blossoms arrogantly, high above the ground. At the big pond we had to look over purple vervain plants nearly five feet high to watch the egret put on its show. Even the funny little blue monkey flowers have skyscraper ideas. Some of them stand three feet high. All along the shore of the big pond the vegetation is tall and luxuriant, although ten feet back on the slopes where the ground has even parched the grass and flowers plainly show they could use more rain.

Weed Cutting Time.

Weed cutting days are on the schedule for farm workers. The other day the weed war was being waged along several fronts. The boys in the experimental plots were using a long scythe on the weeds along the creek and garden trowels on weeds in the plots. Several of the men were cutting ragweeds in the oat stubble, and another worker was attacking them near the berry plots.

REAL ESTATE LOANS, MORTGAGES.

MR. K. NEEDED A LOAN TO RENEW HIS mortgage and for repairs; we however advised making a 15 yr. loan and instead of repairing to sell the old house, buy a lot and build a new one with a 20 year FHA loan. Mr. K. followed our advice, and just moved into the new bungalow. We handled the entire deal, made both mortgages, and also lent him money to buy the new lot before the old house was sold.
This is an example of our sincere efforts to help our clients. May we serve you too? FHA 20 years, 5% loans up to 80%. Also other plans. Our own bank and insurance funds, also construction loans and purchases financed. Homes, apartments, stores, factories.

"Important to Used Car Buyers"

Your satisfaction is vitally important to me. I would not knowingly have an employe sell you a used car that is not as represented, and if you should ever find cause for complaint you will receive every consideration from me and my employes. The following cars are recommended for their durability, economy, performance, and appearance. They are unusually good.

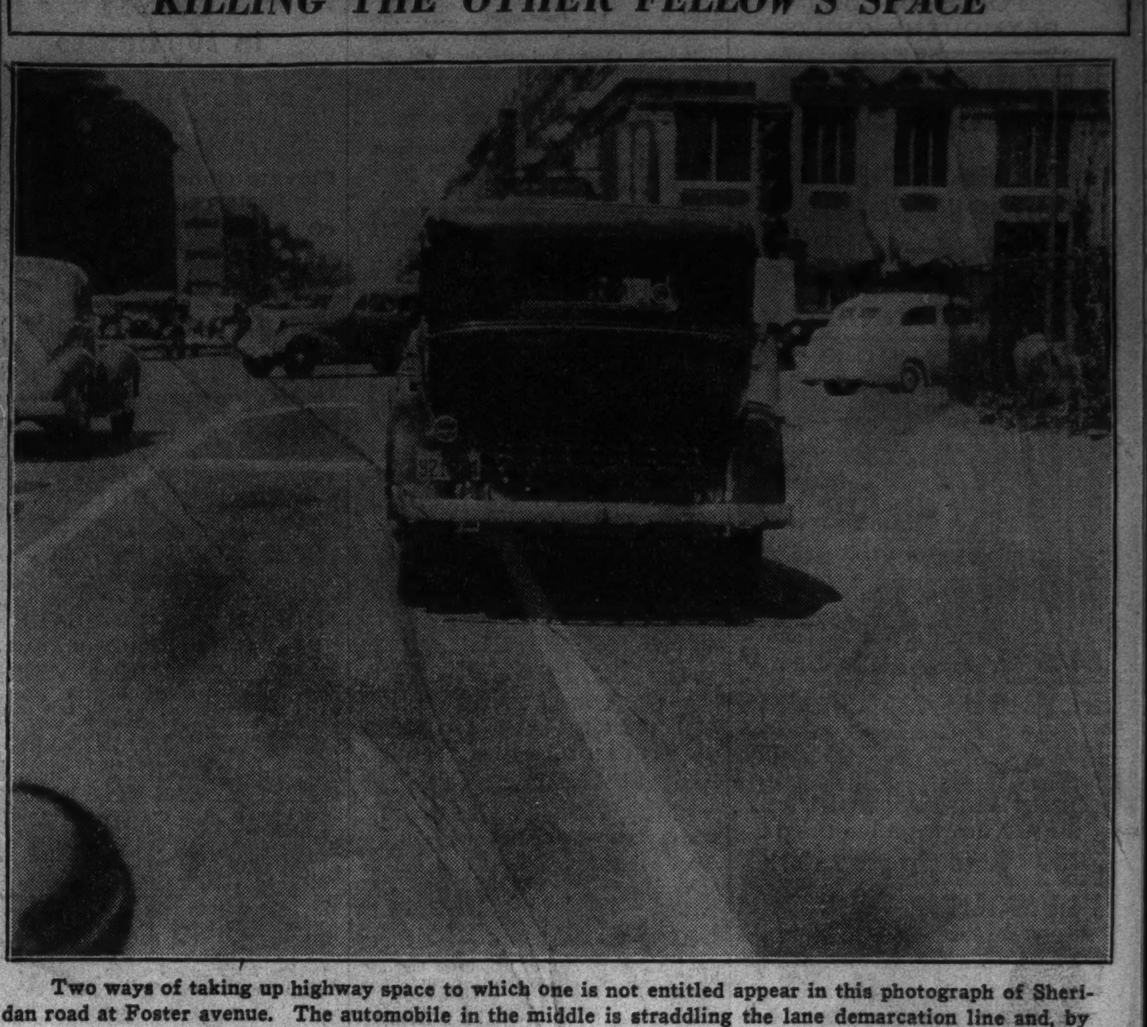
KILLING THE OTHER FELLOW'S SPACE



Two ways of taking up highway space to which one is not entitled appear in this photograph of Sheridan road at Foster avenue. The automobile in the middle is straddling the lane demarcation line and, by occupying an area appropriate for two machines, it will prevent the car whose headlight appears in the left foreground from being at the jump-off line when the trafic lights change. In the upper left is a car clear across the stop line and in the pedestrian lane.

MOTORS—TRAFIC—HIGHWAYS

OVERTAXED 130TH STREET HAMPERS STONY ISLAND AV.

Full use of the new extension of Stony Island avenue between 95th street and 130th street, just completed at a cost of $1,275,000, lies far in the future because the terminal artery cannot efficiently handle the trafic which is being poured into it, according to George W. Barton, chief engineer of the Chicago Motor club. The comparatively light flow of trafic now using the new extension is taxing 130th street to the limit, the engineer said yesterday.

Mr. Barton's statements were made in a letter sent to the board of county commissioners urging that scheduled improvement on 130th street, in the section between Indiana avenue and Torrence avenue, be advanced to "as early a date as possible."

Planned improvement of 130th street, an important link in the county road system, includes widening and repaving with concrete and the construction of a grade separation over the railroad tracks of the South Shore line and the Michigan Central and a new bridge over the Calumet river. The grade separation and bridge are scheduled for construction in 1940 and the paving in 1941.

Sees Four Years' Waste.

"If the planned improvements are not carried out before the scheduled dates the money spent on the Stony Island avenue extension which, incidentally, is one of the best examples of modern road construction in this area, will have been wasted," Mr. Barton said. "In its present shape 130th street is distinctly a third rate trafic artery.

"It is too narrow, being only twenty feet wide, poorly paved with bituminous macadam, which is unsuitable for heavy trafic and unsafe because of the many railroads which cross it at grade level and the narrow two lane wooden bridge over the river."

One Hundred and Thirtieth street will continue to be subjected to heavier and heavier trafic loads as the public becomes better acquainted with Stony Island avenue, Mr. Barton added. "The new road is still something of a novelty, but when the bus and cross-country truck lines and the normal flow of private automobiles start using it in earnest, 130th street will be jammed beyond its present limited capacity."

Boom of 130th Street.

The full significance of the Stony Island avenue extension has not yet been realized by the traveling public, Mr. Barton said. "When everybody learns that it is the only way to avoid the tortuous grind of traveling through South Chicago in going to or coming from the loop, Stony Island avenue will really start carrying the trafic load it was built for. And when that happens 130th street will fall apart."

Some relief will be provided when the extension of 103d street, now under construction, is completed, but that street will terminate at Torrence avenue, already carrying a full trafic load, he asserted. Further relief will be provided if plans for future extension of Stony Island avenue southward to Dalton avenue, are carried out in the not too distant future, Mr. Barton said. Then trafic bound for the east or west after leaving Stony Island avenue could avoid using 130th street.

Urges Being Prepared.

"Those solutions are only temporary. The whole Calumet region is due for a boom which, if it comes, will skyrocket vehicular trafic. Creation of a deepened Calumet channel and lake will bring in new industries, demanding adequate trafic arteries. It would be far better to have these arteries ready than to hold up further economic progress by building the roads after they are needed."

VOICE OF TRAFIC

Elburn, Ill., July 26.—No constable or police magistrate is infallable, but the constable who made the arrest of Mr. Veedman [referred to in THE TRIBUNE'S Sunday, July 25 issue, in "Motors-Trafic-Highways" article], at 4 o'clock on the afternoon of Sunday, July 18, in Elburn, I am certain was fully justified in that instance.

The Elburn constable more often "warns" the speeders of the "speed limit" signs through the business-residence portion of his town than he does of making actual arrests. When arrests are made the court of Elburn first listens to the testimony of the arresting officer, and then that of the arrested driver. This opportunity was given Mr. Veedman, and he did not deny the accusation of the constable, though he did display a somewhat belligerent attitude.

Mr. Veedman was given a choice of a jury trial, but he chose to sign the "waiver of jury trial." When it is considered that the constable was required to "race" for nearly a mile [with siren sounding] to catch up with this reckless speeder [as witnesses will testify], the fine and costs of $7.90 let the defendant off very easy.

On July 3 a young man en route from Ohio to Wisconsin was brought before the Elburn magistrate on the charge of speeding. He quickly said "guilty!" He was assessed the usual fine and costs. Three days later, accompanied by a young lady, he called at the Elburn magistrate's home and asked to have the marriage knot tied.

A lady from Morgantown, W. Va., was brought in for speeding past a stop sign at a very dangerous intersection. She, too, said "guilty," and after paying a fine she apologized for having caused the magistrate so much trouble. So I ask the Voice of Trafic jury "Has Elburn a Speed Trap?"

ELBURN POLICE MAGISTRATE.

Greenup, Ill., Aug. 6.—Several months ago a set of safety slogans were sent to Mr. Hughes, secretary of state, who approved them and sent them to Mr. Harrington of the highway department, who wrote me he hadn't made up his mind yet to use them for fear they would weaken his own official slogans. My contention is it is useless to put safety articles in newspapers because the moment any one gets in a car the safety stuff is utterly forgotten.

What is needed is to carry the campaign to the highways. When wrecks occur have police or sherifs to take pictures before the wreckage is removed. Have those pictures enlarged, and posted up right there where the wreck occurred, giving date and details. Line the highways with these pictures and the death toll will come down in short order. People need startling, arresting warning signs where they can see them while driving.

Another strong aid to highway safety would be to make it fashionable to drive slow. This can be done. You can sell the public anything by adroit suggestion through enough advertising. The automobile companies themselves, together with the great magazines and other agencies, could make it the fashion to drive slow within the next 90 days. People will do anything to be thought highbrow and fashionable, and they would do this. Apply a little psychology, and the thing can be done.

COUNTRYMAN.

TOO FEW AUTO DRIVERS HEED TRAFIC SIGNS

Officials Study Ways to Get Compliance.

Officials concerned with safety on street and highway are seeking more general obedience to trafic warning signs primarily as a method of attack on the accident problem. If education will not bring the desired results they plan more drastic methods.

The negligence of many drivers in disobeying certain road signals is held by some officials to have spread in recent years because of multiplicity of signs and increased vehicular movement, accompanied, in most cases by no expansion of patrol forces.

The extent of driver disobedience of highway signals is not yet ascertainable on a national basis, but studies in a number of localities indicate a fairly high degree of noncompliance.

Half Obey Stop Sign.

As reported by the National Bureau of Casualty and Surety Underwriters, of 18,000 vehicles observed at an intersection calling for a full stop, 50.2 per cent came to a complete halt, 39 per cent "practically stopped," 9 per cent slowed down, and 1.8 per cent entered fast.

These figures are for daytime. At night, of 10,100 vehicles observed, 51.2 per cent stopped completely, 39.7 per cent practically stopped, 7.7 per cent entered slowly, and 1.4 per cent entered fast.

Safety experts have also been making a study of pedestrians involved in trafic accidents in relation to trafic signals. About 11 per cent of those injured yearly are struck while crossing against trafic lights. A study of pedestrian observance of signals gives 60 per cent obedience for the green light, 34.5 per cent for the red light, and 5.5 per cent for the amber light.

Folks Are Just Different.

Trafic engineers use "obedience" studies to guide them in changing the size, location, and wording of signs so as to obtain better compliance. Sometimes it takes a good deal of experimentation before the desired results can be achieved. A type of sign which works well at one intersection may lead to accidents at another.

Residents of one town, according to a classic example, used to gather Sundays on a high bluff overlooking an intersection where approaching motorists had a clear view, just to watch the accidents.

Slow signs, flashing beacons, and stop signs were tried but had little effect. Finally a trafic accuated signal, with green and red lights, was installed, reducing accidents 90 per cent.

NEWS AND VIEWS

Cadillac-La Salle deliveries to customers in July for the sixth consecutive month topped the comparative monthly highs of the company, according to D. E. Ahrens, sales manager. "The previous all-time peak for July was set in 1929," said Mr. Ahrens, "when 2,571 cars were delivered at retail. This year in July dealers reported 3,840 cars, registering an increase of 49.3 per cent over the former record."

Sales of Studebaker passenger cars and trucks in the first seven months of 1937 are 25 per cent ahead of 1936, according to Paul G. Hoffman, president. For July Mr. Hoffman reported the sale of 4,387 units compared with 1,436 in July, 1936, bringing sales for the year up to date to 61,028 compared with 49,020 a year ago.

Retail deliveries of Pontiac automobiles showed very little seasonal recession during July and continued at a much higher level than during July a year ago, according to C. P. Simpson, general sales manager. "July deliveries by dealers were 21,436 compared to 22,662 in June," he said. "The July figures are 28 per cent above the July deliveries a year ago, when they reached 16,674." Total sales of 197,340 to July 31 outstrips 152,746 for the 1936 model on the same date last year.

Deliveries of Packard cars in July this year exceeded those of July, 1936, by 113 per cent, according to M. M. Gilman, Packard vice president and general manager. Reports to the company from the selling field show that July deliveries totaled 8,438, as compared with 3,940 in July last year, Mr. Gilman said. This figure, he added, brings the total number of new Packards delivered to purchasers in the first seven months of 1937 up to a new high record of 73,902.

Records for the last ten years were broken by the Buick Motor division of General Motors corporation during July, when 22,065 cars were delivered at retail to customers in the United States, according to W. F. Hufstader, general sales manager. The total was the best for July since 1927, when 24,013 cars were delivered. Mr. Hufstader says this is the first time in many years that July deliveries have exceeded those of June, reversing the usual summer trend in automobile sales.

● Upper left: The pet of the fur showings, the short boxy coat of opossum. Notice the absence of any unnecessary bulk around the neckline, and the long straight loose sleeves. ● Center: Another of the newer short coats, using dark, shining skunk skins. The sleeves are wide, loose, and long, the neckline collarless. ● Upper right: Squirrel is better than ever. It's soft, feminine, and flattering. Long, short, and in-between lengths are plentiful.

Bewitching Furs for Cold Winter Weather Make Their Midsummer Bow

By RHEA SEEGER

DURING AUGUST the fashion wise Chicagoan goes to town for new furs, new streamlines, new ideas about distinctive details and the spectacularly special prices featured during the month. She has the righteous feeling that she is selecting furs with lower price marks than will be available even thirty days later; next she is keeping expert craftsmen busy all the season round; she is getting the benefit of the pick of the pelts, the latest streamline details, and when she orders a coat made to suit her own particular whim or fancy, she is giving them ample time to complete each detail perfectly; then when she needs it, the creation is ready for instant delivery.

The special August fur prices lure the smartest and most knowing fur coat hunters, for these August specials have been flourishing for years. The same coats that you buy now unquestionably will be enough higher in later weeks to justify the timely though early purchase.

By every count, if the average woman doesn't look slim, trim, and years younger in any of the fur creations of this year's dating it's not the fault of the furs or the furriers. A coat no longer resembles a sausage roll of bulky fur. Positive wizardry has been expanded most lavishly on designing new models that are excitingly young.

Prime pelts are worked so smoothly and with such consummate artistry that fluffy furs are used and still you look thin and flexible. Collars have been reduced to small fitted necklines. When a large collar is used, it will utterly surprise you to see how supple and "foldable" it is.

Erratic shoulders and shoulder fulness have been definitly banned; coats are reasonably designed for comfort and freedom with the dress sleeves that have to go under them. Sleeves are wide, loose, and roomy without too much sloppiness from shoulder to wrist.

Brevity is the high fashion word for the new coats. Worn with street clothes, with afternoon dresses, also with suits, they are grand ideas for the owner of a limited budget as they can easily go dress parade at night with your most romantic dance or party clothes.

Tepidly neglected for seasons, skunk takes the fashion spotlight. This gleaming, long wearing fur is used in the snappiest and smartest of new boxy type short coats. Because of its deep, dark, rich tone, it becomes the ideal coat for general purposes.

Stunning silver gray opossum is another fashion revival. It, too, wears well, looks smart with all colors and is tremendously flattering.

What is unquestionably the largest and most exciting of high fashion furs are the almost limitless collections of fine Persians. Stressing all shades of brown, the furriers now present a positively bewildering array of Persian coats styled for every budget and for every streamline. Gray and black Persians run a good race for popularity with all the brown tones.

With all manner of beautiful black furs, the widest assortment of every imaginable shade of brown, all kinds of handsome gray furs, and prices lower than they will be in a month or so, the time to shop and select your winter furs is now.

A new length in a luxurious mink coat, featuring interesting sleeves, a restrained fullness to the coat, a new collar line and the newest streamline of 1937.

OBSERVED AT THE RACES

This Week in the Garden

Monday, Aug. 16

Make ready to plant peonies from the end of August or early September, although planting can be done up to the time the ground freezes. Any soil in good mechanical condition will grow peonies, although the plants respond to extra care and food. Do not use too small divisions for it takes too long a time to produce strong flowering plants. Plant no more than two or three inches deep or they will not bloom well. Plant in a sunny place for best results. Good standard varieties include festiva maxima, pure white; Felix Crousse, brilliant red; Karl Rosenfield, dark crimson; Edulis superba, fine mauve pink; M. Jules Elie, lilac rose; and Soulange, lilac white, deepening to salmon center.

Tuesday, Aug. 17.

If an old lawn is bare in places, fork up the bad spots and work in some fine, well rotted manure, or compost, or rich soil, rake the surface until it is a fine seedbed, and sow a desirable lawn mixture thickly. Small areas may be tamped down with the back of the spade instead of the roller. It is wise, also, to rake over the remainder of the lawn with a steel-toothed rake to loosen the soil around the roots. After this is done a top-dressing of rich soil in which seed is mixed, should be applied. Give a good watering and the new seeding will make a fall growth which will survive the winter.

Wednesday, Aug. 18.

Some lilies should be planted in fall. Among them are candidum, the madonna lily; tenuifolium, the coral lily; and testaceum, nankeen lily. Do not plant lilies near plants that spread rapidly from underground stems, such as the achillea and physostegia or elm and poplar trees, as their root systems fill the ground, preventing the bulbs from growing well. For indoor use pot a few bulbs of oxalis and freesia. Disease may be largely eliminated if good care is given at all times. This means watering when needed, removing dead leaves, avoiding close planting, and selecting dependable kinds.

Thursday, Aug. 19.

Fall is the best time to make a rock garden. Dependable plants must be selected. If plants are wanted do not arrange an exhibition of rocks. Use rocks of one kind, not a collection from many sources. Weathered limestone is excellent for middle west gardens. Place the rocks flat to give a natural, ledge-like appearance. Use larger rocks rather than smaller ones. Rocks provide a suitable setting for plants and the more natural they appear the better. Use sun-loving plants for sunny places and shade-loving kinds for shade, and never worry about making mistakes for the rockery can be changed until satisfactory.

Friday, Aug. 20.

When dahlias begin to show buds give an application of commercial plant food and repeat every two or three weeks until through blooming. Extra quality gladiolus blooms may be had by applying a dressing of nitrate of soda or sulphate of ammonia when the flower shows color. Do not allow the soil to dry out. Roses should not be given plant foods from now on, but spraying for disease and insects should continue to encourage fall blooming.

Saturday, Aug. 21.

A pot or two of calla lilies makes excellent material for the house. Geraniums that are intended for winter blooming should not be allowed to flower at this time. Even though the lawn assumes a brownish appearance due to lack of water, the whole garden can be much enjoyed if the beds are kept in trim condition. Do not neglect keeping the back yard in as good condition as the front yard, and plan to screen outbuildings with tall shrubs or low trees. Get the orders for bulbs that must be planted this fall, and keep notes of any changes that can be made to improve the garden.

Helpful Hints for Housewives

To make sure jelly will be clear never squeeze the pulp in the jelly bag. Let the juices drip and strain through a heavy cheese cloth. The pulp may be made into butter or jam. So there is no waste. About one cup of juice is needed for each four cups of pulp, however.

Carefully follow instructions for making pickles. Tough, shriveled pickles are caused by too much salt, too much vinegar, or the use of old cucumbers. Soft pickles are usually due to the use of vinegar that is too strong.

Pie meringues become flat when too much sugar is used in them, they are baked in too hot an oven, or they are not baked enough. A fourth of a teaspoon of cream of tartar mixed with each two egg whites helps to keep the meringue firm.

Strawberry jams and jellies should be stored in a dark, cool place to preserve color and texture.

Bake escalloped mixtures in a shallow, wide dish to save time and fuel.

Summer Tan Unlovely with Fall Fashions

How often should you shampoo your hair? Antoinette Donnelly gives the answer and tells you how to do it in her booklet, "Bring Out the Beauty in Your Hair." On sale at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower. Price, 5 cents. By postpaid mail, 7 cents.

SUMMER makes a fadeout leaving the nut brown maids of the beaches, tennis courts, and golf links gazing as wistfully at the drawing rooms as a Goth in horsehide looking at the gates of Rome. It leaves them summing up, with rueful eyes, their parched bronze skins, their dry, lifeless hair, and a couple of tough, brown fists which would put a farm boy's to shame.

Chic new clothes in saturnine colors and tricky new coiffures, twisted and spiraled within an inch of their lives, displayed from shop windows and by fashion magazines, greet the eyes, offering no compromise with russet skins and brittle, unmanageable hair with which they are to be worn.

EYES must look glamorous under softly shaded lights in spite of the fact that the ruddy skins which loom up beside them rob them of their pigmentation and leave them as colorless as an albino's. The same hands which have thumbed reels, held bridle reins and whipped fast balls over the nets must be brought indoors to grace tea carts and bridge tables, their dingy knuckles, calloused palms and roughened nails to the contrary.

Jessica Dragonette, radio's blonde thrush, whose light skin and fair tresses take a severe drubbing from sun, wind and salt water during the outdoor season, begins repairs long before her summer home on the Jersey shore closes its doors. Payment of the beauty toll which aquaplaning, fishing, boating, swimming and horseback riding have exacted is begun in August by this wise young star.

She warns, however, that once the step is taken to coax back a milky white skin with oil treatments, facial packs, massage, complexion patters and bleaching creams, there must be no looking back to plunges in the surf or brisk canters along bridle trails under the burning sun.

Her advice is to prevent further outdoor exposure; to arm one's self with rich, rejuvenating creams, which are to be slathered prodigally over face, neck, shoulders, back and arms; and to pamper the skin with friction mitts dipped in soothing lotions until cells uncurl their scorched edges, push off the dried outer skin and normal tonicity of muscle is restored. She first gives her face a good scrubbing with soap and water, using a soap which is not drying, but which has oily properties.

"You can help the skin-shedding process along," she suggests, "by routine use of bleaching creams, oily and free from drying-out acids, by massage and by the use of complexion patters, applied after the skin is well oiled, all of which help to break down the tough, resistant outer layers. But the most important aid in reconditioning your skin is oil, liberally applied to replenish the normal supply."

BECAUSE the sun, salt water and wind make menacing inroads into fine skin texture, often coarsening it and enlarging its pores, pore creams and oily astringents should be used routinely over a period of days and nights as aids in refining the new skin which burgeons through, Miss Dragonette points out.

Depletion of the natural oil supply to hair follicles is coped with by hot oil treatments taken twice a week, with the heat artificially applied to drive the oil forcibly into the hair cells. Miss Dragonette suggests a vaporizer, which fits her head like a doughboy's helmet, and which sends a spray of fragrant, steamy oils into her scalp. Its equivalent, used in the home, would be a steaming kettle or other water container, whose vapors are harnessed by means of a towel held over the oil-soaked scalp.

Nightly massages of the scalp, with the finger tips dipped sparingly into a good pomade, should be a routine practice during the reconditioning period. Shampoos should be soapless, and vinegar and lemon rinses, which dry out the hair, should be avoided during this period.

But more important than either of these practices, it is pointed out, is the brushing ritual. Nothing stimulates the normal function of the hair cells, causing them to release their own oil supply, like the use of a stiff-bristled hair brush, zealously applied night and morning, with no economizing on the number of strokes.

Hands respond more quickly than complexion or hair to beauty treatments, according to Miss Dragonette. She borrows some of her oily masque cream and smoothes it over her arms, elbows and hands, leaving it on while she goes about her duties at home. And she massages a mild bleaching cream over her hands at night before going to bed. A good hand lotion is used routinely each time she washes her hands. And she keeps cuticles and nails well soaked with olive oil, and leaves her polishes off for a few days at a time, until nails have lost their brittle surfaces.

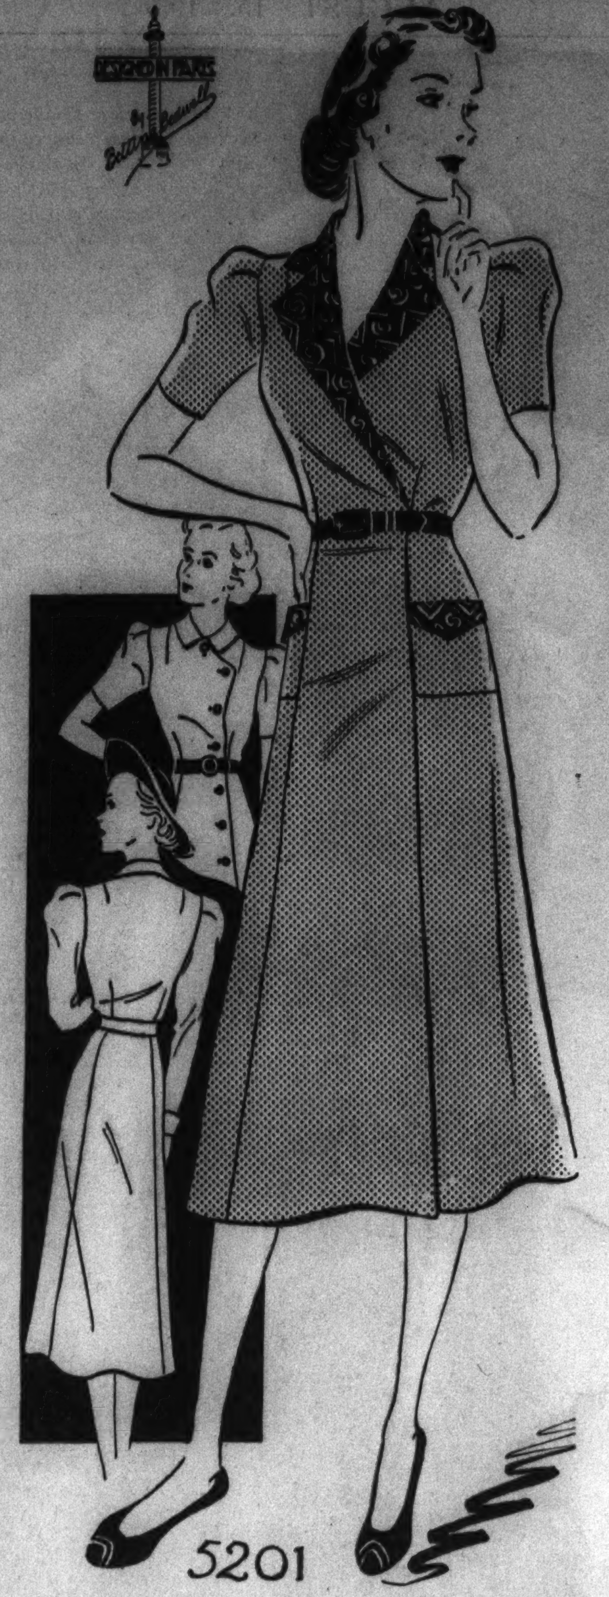
Paris "Don't Dress" Frock Will Go to College Parties



No. 5201—The Paris pattern for this frock is available in sizes 14, 16, 18, and 20.

By Bettina Bedwell.

PARIS.—[Special.]—Now is the time to accumulate a wardrobe for the girl who goes back to school or college in September and I have chosen this smart Paris model for her, to be made at home at a small cost.

This dress, pattern No. 5201, is one of the Paris "don't dress" party frocks, a style which is going to be big in the fall, and the college girl can wear it to a thousand and one doings when she goes to school. The original French model was made of rich, dark blue silk crêpe, with the pocket flaps and revers in the front embroidered in bright colors. A tiny skull cap of the dark blue, with a circular veil thrown over it, also was embroidered to match the dress.

You may embroider your own frock if you are clever at it, or you may choose a brocaded material in rich colors for the revers, the pocket flaps, and the veil.

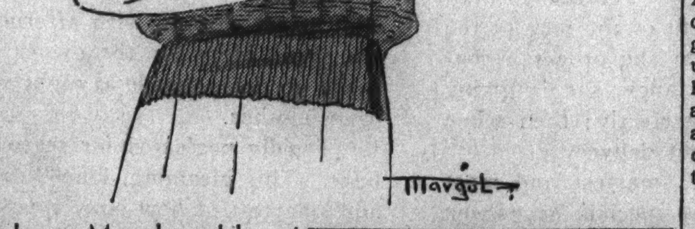
College Men Will Enjoy Wearing This Sweater



By Jean Macdonald.

COLLEGE men, whether they are sophomores or seniors, enthusiastic freshmen or optimistic juniors, all wear sweaters on the campus. Strange creatures these individuals. They may not know how to knit, but they are most definite in their likes and dislikes of styles and stitches. The stitches must be thoroughly masculine or they must be the simple stockinette stitch. Boys at this age are often more decided in their preference than girls of the same age, and they do not hesitate to tell one that they prefer sleeveless crew neck sweaters to long sleeved V necks or turtle necks rather than cardigans. The white sleeveless square necked sweater illustrated today is knitted in a rich scotch 3 ply fingering on a number four needle. The pattern of this sweater is a ranking choice among men and boys as a suitable stitch for their handmade sweaters. It is a triangular rib design, with ribbing of knit 2, purl 2 at the armhole and around the square neck. The average knitter who would like something to do for the few remaining weeks of vacation will find that she can knit this sleeveless number in one week without overexertion.

HOW TO ORDER

If you wish instructions for knitting the college boy's sweater in triangular pattern illustrated today, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to Jean Macdonald, CHICAGO TRIBUNE, Chicago. Be sure to send name and address with your letter.

Paris Fashion Seers Predict Fall Styles

By Bettina Bedwell.

"SHALL we see a revival of high waists, long slinging skirts, tall plumes waving above hair piled high on top of the head?" A great Paris style authority is asking this question about the coming styles, and hinting broadly that such may be the case.

It's open season for the style seers, and they're at it again; telling us what we will be wearing when the snow flies. These fashion fortune tellers get together on some points, but they are hundreds of years apart in predicting what past eras are going to influence the new styles for the coming autumn. Some shout "Directoire" as the opening quotation shows. Others are for 1900 influences, and still more want to see the pencil-traight silhouette stage a comeback.

Thousands of folks go every day to the stunning Pavilion de l'Elegance at the Exposition, where the big shots among the Paris dressmakers are showing models on the most modernistic plaster mannequins, with wormline silhouettes, heavy arms and blank heads. From these clothes they try to forecast what's coming to us women. The exposants, however, are not tipping their hands.

THE milliners are a lot more elucidating. They are showing fall hats to the foreign buyers and it looks as if these headlines of styles would start off the new season with both Directoire and 1900 influences at work on them. There are lots of very modified scoop-shovel hats, worn off the forehead, in great salons like Suzy and Agnes. Small turbans with towering ostrich plumes set above them are of the same epoch, and tricornes, and bicornes abound.

In the third, or caboose section of hat styles are Empress Eugenie hats, which may pull into fall at the front. Modernistic fez toques, soaring wide brims, and velvet draped toques are also shown a lot.

Furriers and dressmakers, working together give the seers a real tip on future fashions in the wool and fur ensembles now shown. Fur jackets, trimmed with wool and worn with wool skirts or dresses are coming, they say. Very straight, longish jackets that look new and exciting.

The flare-back coat for early fall, and maybe right through the season, seems a sure-fire bet in forecasting fashion. So does the collarless, knee-length coat made of tweed or other rough wool, with nicely bulky shoulder lines, already shown on this page.

That the summer fashion for vivid color and sober shades combined in one ensemble, and in one hat, will be chic in fall is a forecast that is just child's play to make. Brown, in a new, exquisite tone half-taupe half violet, looks like a comer amongst the sober autumn shades. It probably will be set off by pink, ashy or brazen, and by the intense purplish blue that has been an outstanding detail color this summer in Paris.

Mahogany, oxblood, and wine reds are coming in, and they will go with vivid blues from light to dark, if the seers are not fooling us. Rust, luggage tans, and nasturtium shades worn with black and dark blue are forecast. Vivid acid greens are being combined with black, brown, and dark blue.

WHATEVER color you pick amongst the bread-and-butter shades, you'll be setting it off with some rich or vivid color on both your hat and your ensemble. Paris likes bright, coats, with soot black dresses, or brown or darkest red or blue.

Mainbocher designs a full-back coat that is a hot favorite for next month and later. It is made of black smooth wool with a soft surface, omits any collar, and buttons it double breasted style on right buttons. Acid green scarf and gloves go with the model.

Mainbocher also designs a frock and turban for Princess Karam of Kapurthala. It is made of silver brocade, and a narrow skirt has an embroidered hem of emerald and silver spangled oak leaves, as has the long straight train that is slung over the right arm. The turban is green velvet and feathers. The Princess Karam wears a magnificent emerald necklace with this.

Suzy makes a Directoire hat for early fall, made of black felt and trimmed with black ribbon. It is worn way off the forehead. Note how it covers the back-hair.

I'M PROUD OF MY YOUNG LOOKING WIFE

Her Lovely Complexion, Velvety Skin and Sparkling Eyes Compel Admiration—Make Her Stand Out at any Social Affair.

AND SHE IS 42

I'm the husband of a girl—I say girl—because she looks more like 22 than her real age—42.

She was worried some years ago when her face broke out with unsightly eruptions but she didn't worry long.

She read in the paper that real or natural beauty doesn't come from cosmetic shops—but it does come from healthy functioning of internal organs.

Help nature the paper stated to help keep stomach, liver, gall gladder, kidneys and intestines to function as nature intended they should function and in return—

"Nature will help you to get rid of your pimples and blemishes—your coarse skin."

For my wife that was good helpful reading and seemed like sound common sense, but there was more to come—here it is.

"It's better to help your internal organs every day with a small dose of helpful correction than to try to help them with a big slambang dose every once in a while"—that sounded like good sense too.

But the newspaper didn't tell half of it—My wife bought a jar and took it faithfully—a little dose every day—she takes it yet—she says it makes her feel gloriously alive, active and ambitious.

Her skin cleared up, became more soft and silky and seemed to glow with health—she says she feels 10 years younger than she is—I know she looks it.

Kruschen is a blend of 6 separate salts and is sold the world over—millions of jars a year—there's a good reason.

Take one third teaspoonful in a glass of hot water first thing in the morning—do this for 4 weeks.

Then, if your skin hasn't shown a big improvement—if you don't feel more active and alive—just get your money back.

Music Lovers Will Gather for Luncheon

NOT a seat in the Silver Forest of the Drake hotel will be vacant Friday when music lovers gather from all over the central west for the first Chicagoland Music festival luncheon. Alexander Gray, singing star of the stage, screen, and radio, who now is appearing in the Empire room of the Palmer house, is the latest addition to the festival luncheon program. A friend of Charles Wakefield Cadman, the eminent American composer, who will be the principal speaker at the luncheon, Mr. Gray will sing "One Alone," the air he made famous while appearing in "Desert Song."

"SOME MUSICAL CROWS TO PICK" is the title Mr. Cadman has chosen for the ten minute address to be delivered by him. The talk will be broadcast over a nationwide hookup, together with a song by Margery Maxwell, opera star, and a brief speech by Philip Maxwell. Mr. Maxwell, who is director of the Chicagoland Music festival taking place Saturday evening in Soldiers field, will preside at the luncheon.

Henry Weber, musical director of the festival and musical director of station W-G-N, also will speak briefly. John Burdette, Negro baritone, will sing "Ol' Man River," the song he has presented at four Chicagoland Music festivals, and Julian Stripe, young Waukegan tenor, who was first place winner in the festival of 1933, also will sing.

All walks of life will be represented in the throng that will attend the festival luncheon. Among those who have made reservations are René Weiller, French consul general; Chauncey McCormick, Mrs. Samuel V. Robuck, music chairman of the Chicago Woman's club and president of the Chicago Musical Arts club; John P. Harding, hotel and restaurant owner; Letcher Lusby, president of the Junior Association of Commerce; Joseph Triner, chairman of the Illinois state athletic commission; Thomas B. Patterns by Clotilde

By Clotilde.

THE darling of the early autumn mode is sleek rayon or silk jersey. All the smart women are wearing it, and it flatters every type, no matter what her silhouette, age or coloring. Black is the topnotch favorite. Black always has been smart, and this season as never before. It's distinctive on brunettes, dashing on blondes, and sophisticated on redheads.

No matter what your calendar age, you'll feel young and look like a debutante in this sculptured model. It has a high neckline with a distinguished cut and no collar. A broad shoulder yoke lends weight to the top of the silhouette, making the waistline and hips seem slim by contrast. Tucks under the yoke give soft fullness to the bodice and similar tucks make the sleeves puff. Paneling does double duty. It lends a long line to the dress and gives it most of its styling. Sleeves may be either long or below-the-elbow style. A zipper forms the closing in the bodice and a contrasting sash marks the waistline.

Prints also make up effectively in this pattern, as do plain silks. Chiffon velvet is another fabric to keep in mind. In another couple of weeks velvet will come into its own again when the calendar marks the advent of autumn fashion.

Style No. 2605 is designed for sizes 14, 16, 18, and 20 years, and 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, and 44 inches bust measurement. Size 36 requires 4 yards of 39 inch material, with ⅝ yard of 35 inch contrasting for the sash.

RISING SUN.

By Nancy Cabot.

"RISING SUN" is an intricate pattern, but not so difficult as to daunt the quiltmaker who aspires to a coverlet in such an unusual and lovely design. The name of this block has been changed several times to "Wheel of Fortune," "Cogwheel," and "Rolling Wheel," all of which are fitting, but "Rising Sun" was the original title bestowed upon the block in 1778 and has clung to it through the ages. The twelve inch appliqué blocks are set together in an alternate arrangement with plain blocks and surrounded by a five inch border bound in a contrasting color.

Patterns of this design are 5 cents, stamps or coin. Address Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street or Tribune Tower.

A 'Thank You' Note Can Be Easy to Write

When and how should you introduce persons in public places? The rules governing the custom of introductions are set out in the leaflet, "The Etiquet of Introductions," by Helen Bartlett, Tribune etiquet editor. On sale at the Tribune Public Service Offices, 1 South Dearborn and Tribune Tower. Price 2 cents. Postpaid 3 cents.

By Helen Bartlett.

THIS editor has had her vacation and I'm sure that many of you readers have regretfully returned from yours—or will within a week or two. It is the prospect of vacationing a week or two away from the regular daily routine that makes us wish there were two summer seasons in every year. Of course, it doesn't hold that if there were two summers there would be two vacations, but it's a happy thought. However, whether it has been a long extended vacation or just a pleasant holiday as a guest at the home of friends in the country, there is a little duty in the way of conforming to one of the rules of etiquet which we urge you not to forget. That is writing the bread and butter letter.

THERE was a time when letter writing was considered one of the arts. And there are many examples of letters that are literary gems. However, your bread and butter letter doesn't have to be a literary masterpiece so don't let it cause you too much worry. Be casual and natural and sincere. Just don't be negligent about writing it. People who have gone to a great deal of trouble to entertain you and make your visit a pleasant one appreciate getting such notes of gratitude and having a few complimentary remarks said about their home and their hospitality. Generally speaking we Americans are much too hesitant in saying the pretty, flattering things. I'm not campaigning for a nation of insincere flatterers. But if we were half as prone to be complimentary as we are to be critical, we could make things seem a good deal brighter.

SO sit right down and write that letter. It really should be mailed within four days after your return. You don't have to chew your pen holder over a long wordy message. Just say what you feel. We'll try to give you a sample though, as you know, there can't be a form letter that will be suitable for all purposes and fill all requirements. Nor is it possible for someone else to put your personality into a letter—and personality is important. My example might have my personality, but not yours—and that isn't what's needed.

Dear Margaret: It's a blue Monday, all right. I'm back on the job but haven't yet recaptured the trick of fitting into this routine. And that love for your work that you hear so much about seems just a little remote.

Thank you much for the pleasant week-end. You're an artist when it comes to arranging entertainment for the "tired business woman." And at last we had that fine long visit that we've both been looking forward to for so long.

My very best wishes to all.

Sincerely yours,
Mary.

Perhaps this sample letter will offer at least a suggestion to you or will serve as a skeleton around which you can build your own message.

Will Observe Anniversary of Educator

By Betty Browning.

CHICAGO, where Col. Francis W. Parker's greatest work as an educator was accomplished, will celebrate the 100th anniversary of his birth on Oct. 28, 29, and 30. The man who has been conceded the title of "Father of Progressive Education" by such authorities as John Dewey will receive the tribute of leading educators from all parts of the country at a three day regional conference of the Progressive Education association at the Palmer house.

The Francis W. Parker school, founded by Col. Parker, and the Chicago Association of Child Study and Parent Education are coöperating in arranging the conference program, "Where Is Education Going?" President Robert M. Hutchins of the University of Chicago, whose school of education Col. Parker organized, will be a speaker, and among others will be William H. Kilpatrick, Miss Flora J. Cooke, Carson Ryan, Charles E. Merriam and State Senator T. V. Smith.

IT was during the years when he headed the Chicago Normal college, then the Cook County Normal school, that Col. Parker fought hardest in behalf of his liberal theories of education. He introduced freedom and informality into the classroom, eliminating the rigid discipline then traditional in schools. Col. Parker also was responsible for such innovations as science in the curriculum, and he was among the first to realize the importance of close coöperation between home and school.

Col. Parker was already famous for his new ideas and methods when he came to Chicago in 1883. A teacher since the age of 16, he had been superintendent of schools at Quincy, Mass., and was a supervisor of schools in Boston before receiving his appointment as principal of the Cook County Normal school.

Col. Parker's early education was of the sketchiest. Born in New Hampshire Oct. 9, 1837, he was 6 years old when his father died, and he was bound out to a farmer. He attended district school only eight weeks each winter, and he later recalled that his contact with nature on the farm and his reading of the Bible and "Pilgrim's Progress" were the foundation of his education.

AFTER teaching in New Hampshire and Illinois he enlisted and fought in the civil war, was wounded, and achieved the rank of lieutenant colonel. Resuming his teaching in New Hampshire after several years, he became head of the normal school in Dayton, O., and here began experimenting with new methods. After the death of his wife and only child he went to Germany to study for three years before becoming superintendent of schools in Quincy.

In 1899, following stormy years at the Cook County Normal school, Col. Parker was given an opportunity through the interest of Mrs. Emmons Blaine to establish his own school, the Francis W. Parker school.

Miss Flora J. Cooke, who will speak at the centennial conference, was selected by Col. Parker as principal of the school. Her successor, Raymond W. Osborne, is chairman of the conference.

In 1901 Col. Parker became first director of the school of education at the University of Chicago. He died in March, 1902.

Distinguished graduates of the Francis W. Parker school are to speak at a conference dinner meeting Friday, Oct. 29, on the theme, "Where Is Education Going—Col. Parker's Principles and Their Application to Living Today and Tomorrow."

Perry Dunlap Smith, headmaster of the North Shore Country Day school; Katharine Taylor, headmistress of the Shady Hill school of Cambridge, Mass.; Ethel Dummer Mintzer, director of the Francis W. Parker school of San Diego, Cal.; and Roger Edgeberg, Harry G. Zander, and Allan Healy will speak at this meeting, and Mr. Osborne will preside.

SOME 900 crippled children will picnic Wednesday in Lincoln park as guests of the Dorothy Kahn Club for Crippled Children. This annual event offers the children such distractions as a program by clowns, musicians and entertainers, with a box luncheon, ice cream, and candy.

Mrs. Alvin Oppenheimer, Kenwood 4300, as chairman, is issuing an appeal for cars to be used in transporting the children to the park. Mrs. R. David Katz heads the club.

Mrs. Catharine Waugh McCulloch will describe Russia as she saw the country on her trip there in May and June at a meeting of the Chicago Woman's club at 11 o'clock Wednesday morning. Luncheon and cards will follow this program sponsored by the summer activities committee. Mrs. McCulloch, an attorney, has been a member of the club since 1892.

The Catholic Woman's league will celebrate ladies' day tomorrow. Mass and holy communion at Old St. Mary's church at 9:30 o'clock will precede a breakfast at the Blackstone hotel, when the Rev. John H. Sullivan, pastor of Old St. Mary's, will speak on "Mary, the Ideal of Catholic Womanhood." The Rt. Rev. Msgr. John F. Ryan, spiritual director, will give the invocation, and Miss Marie Lynch will give a violin solo.

An initiation of candidates will be held under the auspices of Chicago chapter, No. 43, Women of the Moose, next Friday evening in Moose hall, 327 Plymouth court. Mrs. Frieda Aff and Mrs. Clara Schmitke will be in charge, and Fern Stover, national chairman of homemaking, will be a special guest.

YOUTH and its problems will be the hub around which will revolve activities of the Illinois Federation of Women's clubs during the coming year. In the yearbook to be issued to the 75,000 members of the federation Sept. 1 Mrs. Edward J. Lehman, president, announces that the federation will continue to advance the "youth measure" first taken up last year.

It will be the task of each district and each department to study the needs of youth in its respective community, whether educational, recreational or physical, and to concentrate on remedying local deficiencies. This program is to harmonize with "Education for Living," theme of the General Federation of Women's Clubs for the year.

Important dates already set for approaching season include the first meeting of the board of directors Sept. 14 and 15 at federation headquarters, 30 West Washington street, and subsequent meetings Dec. 7 and 8 and March 1 and 2.

The annual convention of the federation will be held May 3, 4, and 5 at the Hotel Sherman, with Mrs. Harry S. Gradle, chairman of the local convention board. The annual Fund festival will be held Feb. 3, also at the Sherman hotel, with Mrs. George Hanly Nippert in charge. The triennial convention of the General Federation of Women's Clubs will be held May 10 to 18 at Kansas City, Mo.

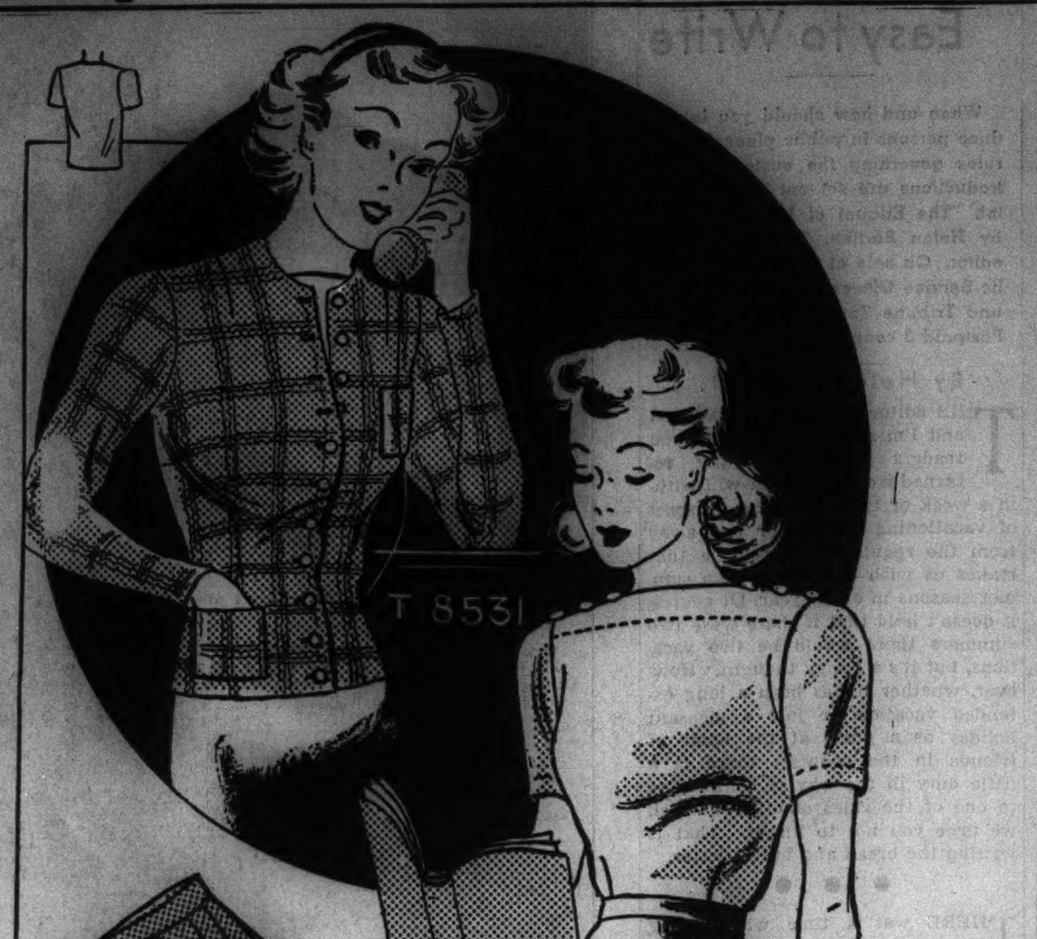
FOR the first time the Illinois federation is conducting a reception room at the state fair this week in Springfield, Ill. Hostesses are provided to supply information to visitors at the federation's quarters in the Food Show building.

In a letter to Senators James Hamilton Lewis and William H. Dietrich last week the Illinois League of Women Voters protested the senators' vote for the amendment to the hour wage bill requiring senatorial approval of all appointees receiving a salary of $4,000 or more. Mrs. George G. Bogert, president, writing in the league's behalf, said:

"More and more the government is taking over services formerly rendered either privately or not at all. . . . If [government] employés are chosen on a basis of merit after qualifying in competitive examinations we taxpayers can more readily feel that we are getting our money's worth when we pay increased tax bills, but with government employment as extensive and highly specialized as it is today we cannot but regard as wasteful the casualness of the political appointments."

The Illinois society, Daughters of 1812, will place a wreath on the Fort Dearborn plaque at the Michigan avenue bridge at 2 o'clock this afternoon. The exercises will be conducted by the Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Campus Modes by a Co-ed



JUST to show you how anxious I am to get you started on your campus and business wardrobes, now that autumn is close upon us, I'm offering you two smart patterns today. At least, I think they're smart! I've always had a passion for extremely tailored things, and nothing could be lovelier for school and office wear, now don't you agree with me?

One of the patterns is for a blouse, two versions of which are illustrated. The second pattern is for the "second mate," a plaited skirt.

The blouse illustrated at the upper left is a cardigan model which buttons right up to the neckline, just like the sweaters from which it is copied. This model fits the figure like a glove. It has tight sleeves, no collar, and two pockets, one at the bustline, high at the left, and the other near the hemline of the garment, on the right. All types of woolen and flannel, especially plaits and stripes, are effective.

The other blouse is a type which imitates the slip-on sweater. It has a bateau neckline and clever short sleeves. Buttons decorate the neckline. It's a tuck-in model which looks extremely young and college-girlish with a trim skirt. Make it of any soft woolen, light shades preferred.

Now to the skirt! It is plaited, as are so many of the new fall models, but its plaits are created to hug the figure at the hipline. No unsightly bulges for trim campus figures! Of course, you'll make the skirt of woolen, and it's best to make it in a shade to harmonize with both of the blouses.

Style No. T-8531, the blouse, is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18 and 20 years.

Sally Will Entertain at 'The Firefly'

By Sally Joy Brown.

[Activities of the Sally Joy Brown department are sponsored by Tribune Charities, Inc.]

I HAVE an extra special treat for you boys and girls today, and I could hardly keep the news!

When they have an especially fine production the best movie studios in Hollywood have what is called a "road show." They present the picture to the public only at special performances, such as they have at legitimate shows, at higher prices than average, and they sell reserved seats.

"The Firefly" is just such a movie, and is now being shown at the Erlanger. It's a splendid film, featuring Jeanette MacDonald, Allan Jones, and a number of other splendid actors and actresses. It has beautiful music by Rudolph Friml, and some of the settings are the loveliest I have seen.

It's a perfect picture for boys and girls, and I'm delighted to tell you that 100 seats have been reserved for my guests on Aug. 26. You won't have another opportunity to see this film for many months to come, so if you'd like to come to my party, here's how to go about it:

I want as my guests boys and girls who will truly appreciate such a treat, and if you think you qualify write and tell me why you think you'd enjoy seeing "The Firefly." The only requirements are that you write your letter all by yourself, tell me your full name, address, and age, and have your letter on my desk by next Thursday morning at the latest.

There are lots of interesting things I want to tell you about the movie we're going to see, but that must wait till tomorrow, although if you read film reviews you'll know that all the critics liked it immensely.

You don't have to be a star pupil in English composition to win an invitation; just prove to me by your letter that you'd have a good time if you were selected as one of my guests. Please don't ask for invitations for other youngsters—tell them to write their own letters—and don't forget those three little items you positively must include in your letter—who you are and where you live, and your age.

The address is just Sally Joy Brown, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, Chicago.

EVERY boy and girl who finds his or her name in the following list will have every reason to be happy, because they've been invited to our party next Thursday, Aug. 19, and they'll see a funny little musical comedy called "The King's Sneezes," presented especially for them by the talented young Jack and Jill players, under the direction of Marie Agnes Foley.

Watch for the mailman, kids—he'll be along soon with a personal invitation from me!

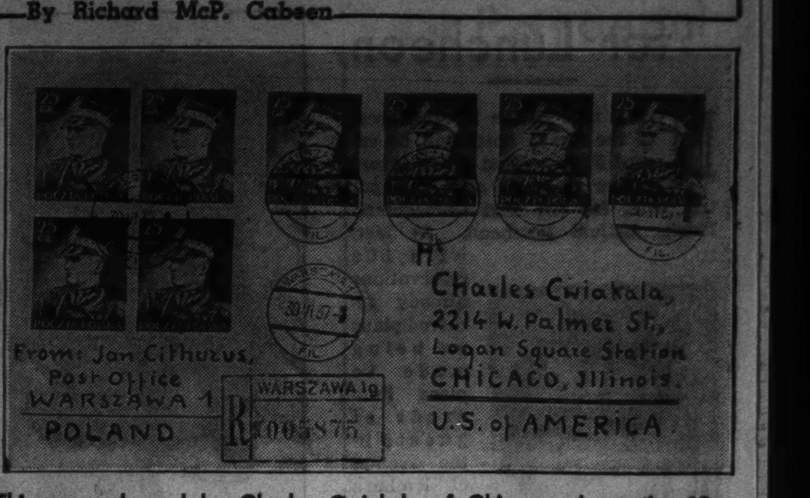
AMONG the 80,000 British veterans of the world war to march past King George VI. and Queen Elizabeth in the largest parade ever held in Hyde Park, 600 of them were women.

The Stamp Collector

By Richard McP. Cabeen

Mr. Cabeen will answer questions about stamps, except concerning value. Do not ask where stamps may be sold, as the Postage Stamps and Coin advertising section adjoining contains offers to buy and sell. Enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope for reply.



This cover, loaned by Charles Cwiakala of Chicago, shows the 25gr. stamp issued on June 30 to honor Marshal Rydz-Smigly, "The Strong Man of Poland," who succeeded the late First Marshal Josef Pilsudski.

THE souvenir sheet which will be placed on sale Aug. 26, 1937, in connection with the 43d annual convention of the Society of Philatelic Americans, will show a reprinting of the 10 cent Smoky Mountain stamp of the National Parks issue of 1934.

In this case the stamp will be printed in a green shade and the single copy on the souvenir sheet will be imperforate. Since the color has been changed for this occasion there will be no confusion between this stamp and the imperforate Parks stamps issued as a part of the Farley Favors, in 1935.

The sheet will be gummed and will measure 2.7 inches wide by 3.1 inches high, and will bear an inscription around the four sides of the stamp reading, "Printed by the Treasury Department, Bureau of Engraving and Printing—Under the Authority of James A. Farley, Postmaster General—In Compliment to the 43d Annual Convention of the Society of Philatelic Americans—Asheville, N. C., Aug. 26-28, 1937," and the plate number. Plates 21695 and 21696, will be used on flat plate presses for this stamp. Previous official announcements stated that the plate would be numbered 26195, but this error was due to a transposition of the figures.

The actual sale of the sheets will be handled at a special postal station in the convention quarters at the Battery Park hotel, Asheville, N. C. Collectors desiring first day cancelations on this sheet may send not to exceed ten self addressed envelopes to the postmaster at Asheville, prior to Aug. 23, together with a cash or money order remittance to cover the exact cost of stamps to be affixed, at 10 cents per sheet. Postage stamps will not be accepted in payment.

When placing name and address upon envelopes, collectors should make allowance for the large size of the sheet. Unused sheets cannot be ordered from the postmaster at Asheville, but may be obtained through the philatelic agency of the postoffice department, Washington, D. C., where they will be placed on sale on Aug. 27. The sheets will not be placed on sale at any postoffice except for the first day sale. The original order was for 2,000,000 sheets, and it is thought this number will prove ample, as the high face value will curtail use for ordinary domestic postage.

The original design of the Smoky Mountain stamp was by Esther A. Richards, and the engraving was by L. S. Schofield, for the portrait, and E. H. Helmuth, for the lettering. The marginal lettering on the souvenir sheet has been engraved by Charles A. Smith. This is the third value of the National Parks series to be issued in souvenir sheet form, the others being the 3 cent, which was issued for the American Philatelic society convention at Atlantic City on Aug. 28, 1934, and the 1 cent, which was issued in connection with the Trans-Mississippi Philatelic exhibition and convention, at Omaha, Neb., on Oct. 10, 1934. These early sheets were in the colors of the regular issue and contained blocks of six imperforate stamps.

The square 5 cent Virginia Dare stamps were printed on flat plate presses in panes of 48 stamps. The picture was designed by William A. Roach, and the lettering and frame by William K. Schrage, and these elements of the design were engraved by Carl T. Arlt and Edward M. Weeks, respectively. Twenty million stamps were included in the first order.

New official information on the 3 cent constitution stamp which is to be placed on first day sale at Philadelphia, Pa., on Sept. 17, states that the vignette will show the "Signing of the Constitution," after a painting by Junius Brutus Stearns. The bi-colored idea has been abandoned, and the stamp will be printed in purple on the rotary presses. The original order is for 75,000,000 copies.

The 3 cent Hawaiian commemorative stamp which will be issued at some undisclosed date in the future, will show a portrait of Kamehameha I. [the Great], who was the first of five kings of that name who ruled the Sandwich Islands, or Hawaii. Further announcements will be made as details are released.

Club Notes.

The great interest in miniature sheets issued in connection with philatelic exhibitions and conventions and for various charitable reasons, has led a group of prominent collectors to organize the Souvenir Issues association. This association will furnish detailed information to the members regarding the validity of the issues, etc. In addition the association will collect and distribute philatelic data, such as methods of printing, designer's names and quantities issued. The field covered by the souvenir sheets group includes souvenir sheets, post cards, booklet panes, and miniature sheets. The secretary is R. L. Cullom, 26 Hamilton road, Glen Ridge, N. J.

The Austin Philatelic club announces a picnic on Sunday, Aug. 22, at Wing park, Elgin, Ill. All collectors wishing to attend are asked to assemble at Austin Town hall, Central avenue at Lake street, at 9:30 a. m. that day.

Cachets and Covers.

Edward E. Bryan, Box 304, Albany, Ore., will sponsor a cachet in connection with the dedication in September, of the Shrine of the Sun, on Cheyenne mountain. This shrine has been built by Spencer Penrose in memory of Will Rogers. Send covers ready to go with 1 cent additional per cover for forwarding.

Metallic Colors Are Being Used in Lampshades

"METALLIC" colors in cellulose acetate plastic are now being introduced in lampshades to complement the swing toward metals in modern furniture and decorations, according to Howard Ketcham well known color engineer.

Following a study of translucency, tone values, and current decorative themes, Mr. Ketcham designed five new colors in lampshades which were introduced recently at the lampshade show in New York City. They are: "Sun of India Copper," "Golden Beige," "Tea Rose," "Cloth of Ireland Green," and "Lilac."

"Sun of India Copper," advocated as ideal for studio, office, or living room, is achieved by giving the plastic a metal mesh finish. Other finishes which enable this plastic material to control glare by texture are a dull, mat surface, a linen texture, and a variety of other weave effects. The plastic is thus said to diffuse light softly. A practical consideration is the fact that lampshades of this material may easily be cleaned with a damp cloth.

According to Mr. Ketcham, the growing preference for plain lampshades with simple bindings and little or no border decoration has turned the spotlight toward new ideas in the color, texture, and shape of the shade. Fresh ideas for room decoration, he says, may be found in applying lampshades of plastic in the new colors to the tonal schemes found in rooms at the Williamsburg restoration.

To complement the masculine red and yellow of the governor's office, Mr. Ketcham suggests a lampshade of "Sun of India Copper." Raleigh Tavern, in peach and apple green, would claim shades of "Tea Rose" and "Cloth of Ireland Green." Delicate contrast with the ochre walls of his lordship's bedchamber would be provided by a lampshade of linen finish plastic in "Lilac." A shade in "Golden Beige" or "Tea Rose" would lend warmth to another bedchamber the walls of which are slate gray, he points out.

Teach Child How to Handle Independence

DO you ever look at pink, downy peaches; at dull jewel-like, slightly frosted raspberries; at rich red strawberries with their bright green leafy hulls, and think how really beautiful they are?

To me fruit has a special beauty; lots of familiar things have, if you look for it. Oddly enough, sometimes it is the picture of a thing which makes you see it as you never have before. One of those beautiful old "still lifes" may do it for you, or possibly a design on one of those lovely 18th century chintzes which are still being printed for us to hang at our 20th century windows.

Did you ever look at a more commonplace fruit, like an apple, with a seeing eye? You hold one up; well, a red apple is a red apple. But is it? You turn it around and there, near the stem or down its other cheek, may be the shape of a leaf printed in fresh green, a leaf which lay over the apple so the sun could not ripen that spot. On a winter day as you pile up the apples in the fruit dish you can almost see the warm sunny orchard where they grew.

You can't see all of an apple at first glance. You have to turn it this way and that.

The same thing is true with so many of the subjects that we talk about in this column. Even in a short daily article I usually try to turn the subject around and consider it from all angles; but it isn't always possible to do it satisfactorily, especially if I want to go into detail.

The consequence is that when I have made a number of statements one day, true though they may be, the next I often feel the need of turning the subject around and presenting the other side of it. There is always a "but" or an "except" or an "also" that helps to make things clearer. I like to answer, too, the follow-up questions that I know flock to parents' minds as they read.

LAST Sunday I wrote about our boys and girls in their teens, and how necessary it is for parents to put some restrictions upon them, where they may go, and with whom, and how late they may come home at night. That these restrictions should be carefully thought out and "sold" to one's young son or daughter; that parents should show a little backbone in the matter—this and a number of other points were covered, which we won't try to go into again.

What I want to elaborate on today, the other side of the apple, is the one sentence I tucked in but which I'm afraid some parents might have overlooked, a fact which might be hard on their girls and boys who are no longer children. That sentence was: "And if you've been good friends with your sons and daughters, if you've kept open house for their friends, if you're fair and have given them all the independence you possibly can [because you know they should have it], you'll be able, then, to gain their compliance without arousing antagonism. The vital thing, really, is to have built up a good friendship and feel a mutual respect." It's the independence point I want to stress today.

HANDLING young people wisely is no easy task. And by handling them wisely I don't mean just being able to put over your ideas for their good, by which you mean practical aim of getting them to do some things and not to do others.

Handling young people wisely consists not only of doing that, but of doing it in such a way that they think of you as something other than an obstruction to their desired freedom of action.

Of course the restrictions you must impose may be the cause of occasional argument and rebellion, but if those restrictions get to be a bone of constant contention then you have not been doing this part of your job very wisely.

Now I've been doing a lot of thinking, a lot of observing, and a lot of acting on this subject, so I'm not indulging in theory. And I know that your restrictions would be accepted more gracefully if we would let our sons and daughters, who are growing up so fast, have all the independence we possibly could in those matters that aren't vital. Try treating Madge and Bill in general as if they were grownup, and "lay off" the dozens of trifling dos and don'ts you now indulge in, and see if there isn't a big difference for, much as you may deplore it, with a little heartache, they are growing up.

I can imagine how they feel sometimes, as if they were in a net of strings [not even ropes], and couldn't move without being caught back of one of them.

Have you ever visited some older but lovingly solicitous relative who always suggested a sweater when you drove on a cool summer night, or another chair when you sat in a breezy spot on the porch in a thin sleeveless dress; who thought the water too cold for you to go swimming or who feared it would rain before you got back; who thought you shouldn't spend money because of the future, or who fretted because of what people mgiht think if you did this or that? I have, and though I loved them I'd find myself feeling rective and a little irritated at being hedged about by what seemed to me such unnecessary restrictions. So even when I have to cramp my young people's style I am very conscious of their inner reactions—I can almost see them give a sort of mental wiggle of impatience.

THESE young boy and girls who crave independence should crave it, they should have it. Yet parents instinctively fight the idea—they've formed the habit of being protective and it's hard to change.

Certainly we must continue to be protective about some things; though even in big issues there comes a time when we can do no more, when a girl or a youth must at last be left to make his own decisions and "live his, or her, own life."

But before that time comes or even during it we could give them more freedom than we do. For instance:

There are many of the lesser things in which we can give them their head.

There are many of the bigger things, in regard to which they are capable of more independence than we think.

And we can, back in their childhood, start earlier than many of us do to let them try their wings and to become self-reliant, making it a gradual process of education for freedom.

"Understanding the Adolescent" is the name of a booklet which is sent out on receipt of a 3-cent stamped, self-addressed envelope. Address Mrs. Bevans, The Chicago Tribune, Chicago, Ill.

There will be one more article on this tomorrow.

THE SUMMER MOON

By Eleanor Jewett.

[Copyright: 1937: By The Chicago Tribune.]

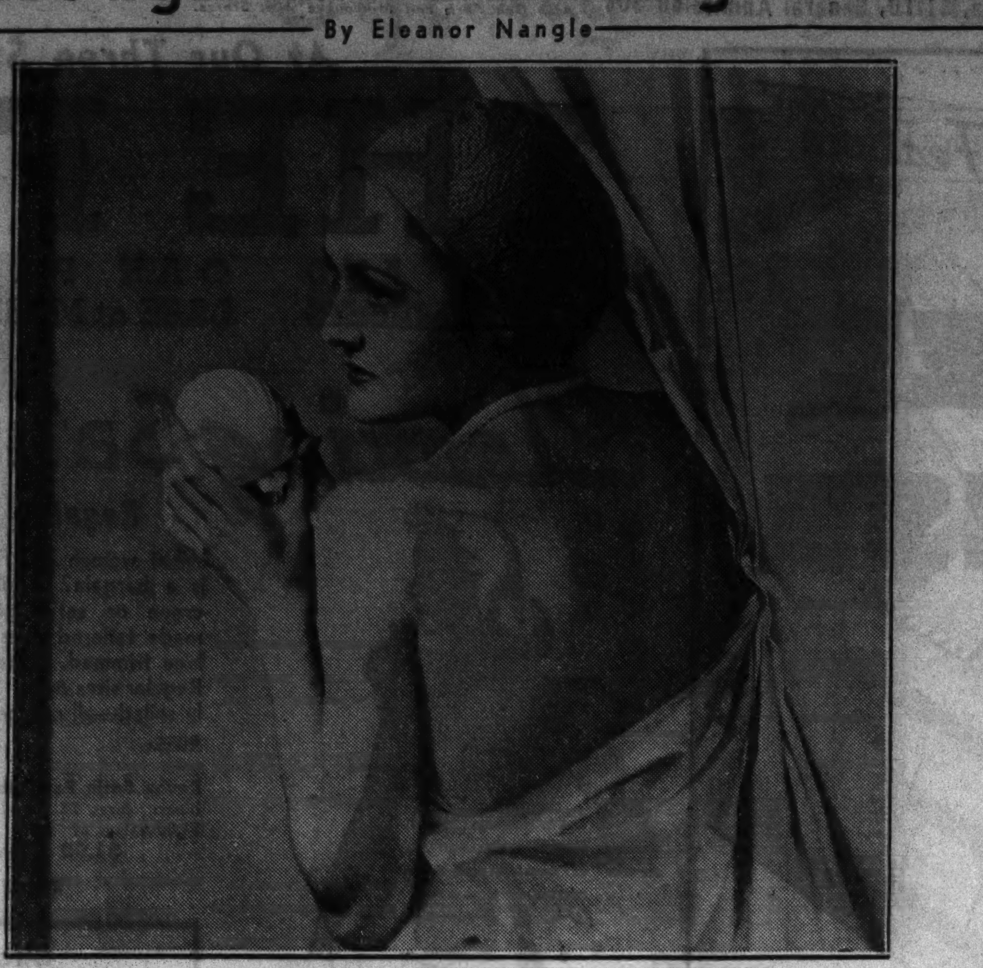
Sometimes the moon is big and round
Like a great lamp from which the light
Pours in a steady, shining stream
To whiten every inch of night.

Sometimes the moon is just a thread
And hangs so tiny in the sky
You'd almost think she'd be afraid,
Alone and little, up so high.

The moon is never twice the same,
Night after night I watch her rise
And every night when I see her
She's playing me a new surprise!

Through the Looking Glass

By Eleanor Nangle



[TRIBUNE Studio Photos.]

No more groping for the elusive cake of soap as you take your shower. A fine lanolated soap is now made in shells and balls suspended on a cord that you sling around your neck. It's excellent soap.

THE ladies who languish in baths get most of the breaks where luxurious bath glorifiers are concerned. The beauty world is full of a number of things for them — perfumed oils, bath crystals, "bubblifiers," and fat and fancy cakes of soap. We brisker sisters, who like to duck under a shower, are denied the use of these. But we needn't stick strictly to plain soap and water. There are little luxury tricks for us too.

The shower shells, for instance. Have you seen them? They're plump shells made of fine lonolated soap suspended on a white cord which you wear around your neck to put an end to groping for the slippery soap cake. We're quite partial to the two we found on a cosmetic counter recently. The soap lathers beautifully and has a delicate almond scent, which always gives us an appetite for breakfast and the day's work. These come two to a box—and aren't a bit expensive. Incidentally, they're a perfect thought for a gift for your weekend hostess.

CHILDREN adore them because they make taking a shower seem a bit more fun. And if you do spend week-ends or a vacation in a place where all bathing is in the lake rather than porcelain tubs you simply sling the soap shell round your neck and scrub as you swim, secure in the knowledge that the cake of soap can't slither out of reach.

These have a companion piece in a round, very fat ball of the same soap. The one we have is in a delicate floral bouquet fragrance, pleasant and clean. It just about lasts forever, too.

THE house that makes these has still another contribution to the shower fans, in a talc kit, that should win some kind of an award. The kit consists of a plascon jar, with four refills of fine talcum. Stick your refill into the jar, which has a shaker top that can be covered so moisture won't get at the powder. It's a pretty little container, and a sensible one for a bath preparation. Wet fingers can't hurt it. The talc is in four fragrances, carnation, lilac, gardenia, and a simple, old fashioned-gardenish bouquet.

These are knockout bath trimmings for the girl who likes to bathe quickly, but daintily.

Eleanor Nangle "through her looking glass" sees everything that is new in the fascinating realm of beauty aids, and tells you about them daily in The Chicago Tribune.

Thomas J. Watson Gives Dinner in Honor of M. Labbe

By May Birkhead.

PARIS

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. Watson gave a dinner the other night in honor of M. Edmond Labbe, the head commissioner of the Paris exposition, and their guests included a number of the American delegates to the battlefield monuments celebrations such as Ambassador Josephus Daniels, Ambassador William C. Bullitt, Congressman and Mrs. Lister Hill of Alabama, Lieut. Col. Al Ragor, chief of staf of the Disabled American Veterans of the World War; Congressman Charles A. Eaton of New Jersey, and many others.

The Watsons and their good friends the Pierre Cartiers are now on their way to Bad Gastein to take the cure and to be within easy reach of the music festival at Salzburg, which is attracting so many sojourners from Paris.

Mr. and Mrs. Myron Taylor, who have recently been in Salzburg and whose guest has been Mrs. James Roosevelt, the President's mother, are back at their villa in Florence, noted for its beauty, and will soon be again in Paris.

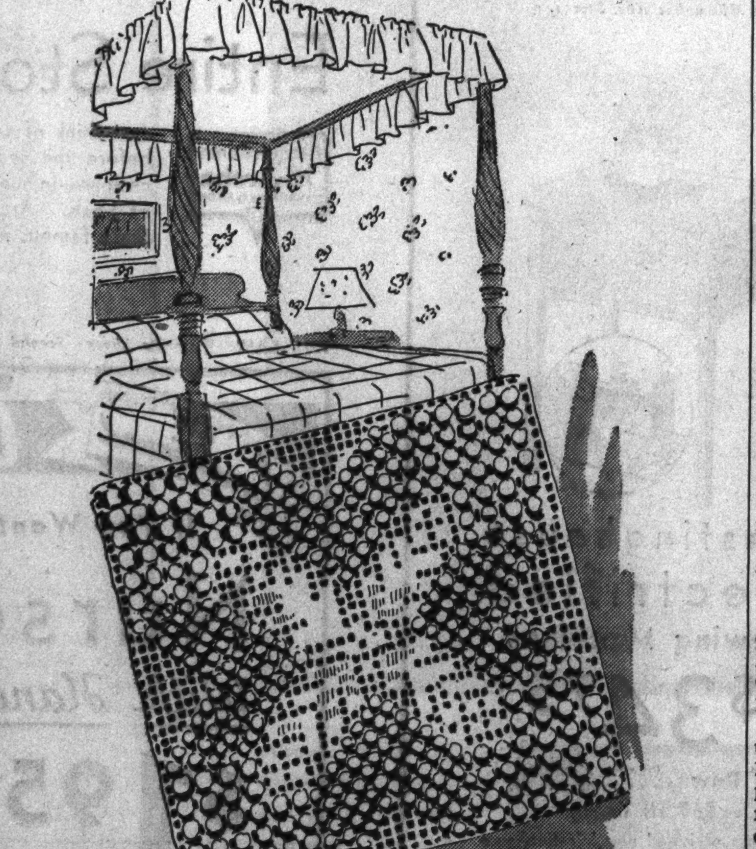
Crocheted Bedspread Is Popular English Pattern



By Ellen Bruce.

CLASSIFYING the crocheted patterns of the various European countries and the United States, one is amazed to discover the diversity of designs for bedspreads. It is unfortunate that we cannot gather together all the lovely old and unusual patterns in existence today and publish them in book form. All these pieces would provide a veritable treasure chest for avid crochet workers. There are numerous patterns which are international in their appeal, but the history of these pieces is as impossible to trace as their ages. The crocheted tufted square used for a bedspread, and illustrated today, is one of the popular English patterns.

It is not an easy square to crochet, but after the first three or four pieces are accomplished the remaining number are just a matter of routine and time. Each square measures about nine inches when completed and a finished bedspread crocheted in this tufted pattern measures approximately 90 by 108 inches.

If you wish instructions for crocheting the tufted bedspread square illustrated today, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to Ellen Bruce, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower lobby.

Many Beliefs About Foods Are Fallacies

By Mary Meade.

DO you believe that fish and milk shouldn't be eaten at the same meal? Do you think that acid foods will be poisoned if they are cooked in aluminum, that canned goods are contaminated when left standing in the open can? Do you suspect that the eating of meat has something to do with kidney trouble?

If you cling to any of these moldy superstitions you might just as well subscribe to that old theory about tomatoes causing cancer. You might just as well believe that lettuce is "brain food," and that carrots will make your hair curl.

None of these suppositions has any foundation, though many of them at one time or another had some basis to give them credence. As an example: Veal was for many years under suspicion as being indigestible. There were even laws in many states forbidding its sale. Veal spoils easily, and before the days of efficient refrigeration it was sometimes used in an unfresh, even infected, condition, which explains how this idea was developed.

In spite of the pooh poohs of physicians and nutritionists, many persons still avoid eating fish and milk in the same meal. Any harm which seems to result from the combination is only figmentary. If this belief were a truth, then oyster stew, creamed fish, and other such dishes which are made with milk would be banished from our tables.

ONE of the most widespread of food superstitions has to do with meat, which, it is thought, causes kidney trouble. Dozens of experiments have been performed to prove this untrue. Persons who lived for several years on a diet composed almost solely of meat were found to have kidneys in as good condition as persons who ate a mixed diet. The Eskimos, who are a carnivorous race, have no predisposition to kidney trouble.

Almost every type of food has, at one time or another, been subject to beliefs of this type. Vegetables and fruits in the raw state have been supposed to cause acidosis and digestive troubles. This false conclusion probably was the result of some one's jumping at conclusions at a slight disturbance which followed the eating of raw vegetables or fruits, but which was in no way connected with the food itself.

True, there are the genuine allergies for food. But authorities say that only one person in ten thousand has an allergy. Most of the food idiosyncrasies which prevail so widely are imaginary, perhaps due to some psychological influence. Many persons have carried the belief for years that they were allergic to eggs, for instance, only to have it demonstrated to them by a physician that this was not true, and that they were depriving themselves of valuable nutritional elements contained in eggs.

A GENUINE allergy produces violent effects such as nausea, vomiting, or a rash, and unless these are present, physicians say that the idiosyncrasy probably does not exist. "Billious" attacks and indigestion which supposedly follow the consumption of various suspected foods, are often entirely imaginary.

There are food faddists who cry out against bread, declaring that it is "not the staf of life, but the club of death." There are others who warn that the use of condiments will cause all manner of distressing ills. Regarding this, it is generally agreed among dietitians that condiments are valuable because they increase the appetizability of food and consequently augment its enjoyment. Overweight persons should probably avoid highly seasoned food for that reason, since they will be induced to overeat. My own chief complaint against condiments is that when used to excess they spoil the natural bland flavor of foods in which they are used.

AS for foods cooked in aluminum and those left standing in open cans, no harm can come to either. The fact that aluminum utensils are brighter after tomatoes and other acid foods have been cooked in them does not mean that the acidic food has absorbed the metal. It has merely removed mineral salts which were deposited on the utensil when some other food was cooked in it. The result is harmless. Even if it were possible for food to remove or absorb any appreciable amount of aluminum from the pan in which it was cooked, the effect would not be harmful, since aluminum is a constituent of many of our natural foods.

A clean aluminum coffee pot won't affect the flavor of coffee, as some persons insist, though the mineral content of the water used in making the coffee may do so.

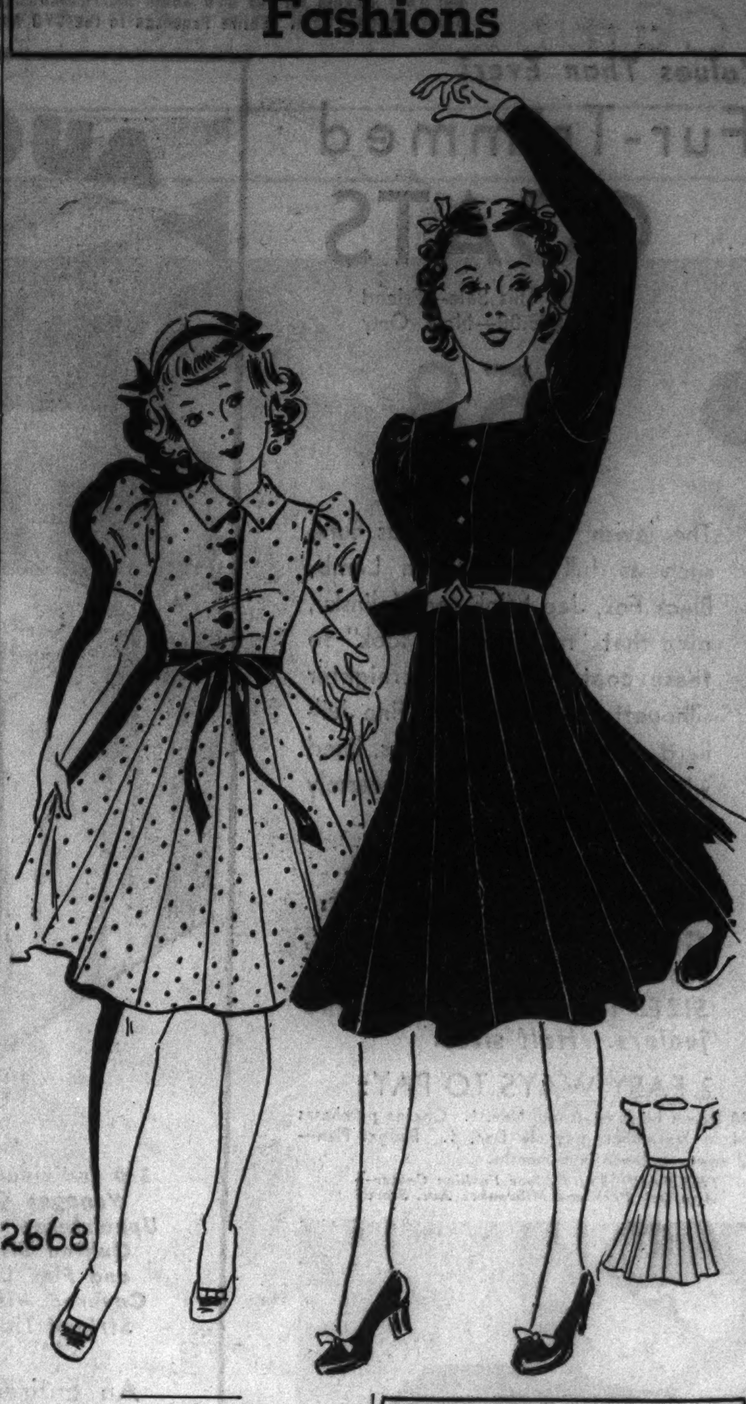
And there is absolutely no reason to believe that food will spoil when left in the can, provided the same precautions are taken as are taken for any food left in an open utensil of any sort.

Hattie Caraway Has Five "Firsts" to Her Credit

MRS. HATTIE W. CARAWAY, member of the United States senate, has five "firsts" to her credit. She was the first woman elected to the senate by popular vote, the first to be chairman of a committee, the first to conduct a senate hearing, the first to preside over the senate, and the first woman ever to serve any state as its senior senator. The senate has had only three women members.

The number of girls and women ten years of age and over in classified employment in the United States in 1880 was 2,647,157. Today the number is about 12,000,000.

Clotilde Children's Fashions



YOU can't put anything over on the juniors! They know a good number when they see one, and the ballerina mode has captured their fancy. It's a style ideally suited to the figures of growing girls who are inclined to go through a "gawky" and angular stage. The wide skirt lends fullness to their slender hips and gives them grace.

The top of this frock with the wide skirt is a fitted bodice with a shirtwaist collar and high puffed sleeves. Buttons march down the front. If your young daughter likes a collarless style and looks well in it, this pattern provides for a stunning square neckline. It may be edged with lace or ruffling, too, should you and your youngster decide on such trimming.

The original of this pretty dress, which is practical for every day wear and dressy enough for parties, is created in lawn print in white and powder blue. The buttons and the ribbon belt are of a darker shade of blue.

Flowered dimity, dotted swiss, and pastel organdy are grand for dressy occasions. For practical wear there are dotted percale, tissue plaid gingham, and broadcloth from which to choose. Made of dark silk or lightweight woolen, this design also is a good bet for the return-to-school wardrobe this autumn.

Style No. 2668 is designed for sizes 8, 10, 12, and 14 years. Size 8 requires 2½ yards of 35 inch material, with ¼ yard of 35 inch contrasting for the belt, or one may use ribbon.

A FRIEND IN NEED

If you are in need, perhaps I can help you. If you have household articles or clothing you no longer use, please let me place them with needy families. Address correspondence to Sally Joy Brown, the Chicago Tribune, Chicago. Activities of this department are sponsored by the Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc.

By Sally Joy Brown.

PAIN and sickness are hard for all to bear, but the lack of small comforts makes invalidism especially trying for the needy.

A medical social worker from a clinic recently sent the following request for a patient:

"My Dear Miss Brown: It has occurred to me that some of your readers who are going away for the summer might have a small radio which could be given to a 40 year old woman who is confined to her bed in a plaster cast because of a severely crippling bone disease. Although she is a very intelligent, resourceful person, and reads a good deal, time is hanging heavily on her hands, as she is too disabled to do much handcraft work. The radio, which we would be glad to receive for future use in similar cases, would have to be small enough to be placed on a bedside table.

"We have often been able to bring comfort to our needy families through the generous assistance of your readers and we shall very much appreciate any help you may be able to give us in this case. E. H."

The clinic is located on the south side of the city.

Another huge hospital which is clearing house for all the poverty stricken, ailing people of the city referred two rather urgent cases to this department. They have hundreds of them, of course, but workers make a special effort to assist the small children in needy families.

Mrs. H. C. is the mother of a 12 month old child who was recently a patient in the hospital. The diagnosis was cleft palate and malnutrition. The child has always slept in a buggy, since the mother was unable to afford a bed for her. In view of the baby's physical condition, this is not at all satisfactory, and if some reader living on the south side can provide a large size crib the infant would rest more comfortably.

Another child, 10 months old, was recently discharged from the hospital after being treated for pneumonia. There are eight children in the home. The father, Mr. L., earns $18 a week. They are scarcely able to get along on this income, but have managed so far to care for their children without asking assistance from a relief agency. This woman is not able to secure a bed for the child and it has been necessary for her to sleep with her parents. This address is also on the south side of the city.

We have a rather unusual request from Mrs. G., but it is one which I am sure can be filled.

"Dear Miss Brown: Our electric fixture in the living room had a white bowl which was suspended from three chains. It fell about a year ago and broke into a million pieces. My husband has been unemployed most of the time in the last year and we have been unable to replace the bowl. It makes the living room look untidy to see the chains without the bowl and I wondered if through your column I could obtain one. Maybe people who have remodeled their homes and installed new fixtures have saved one of these old style bowls. I would appreciate obtaining one of these and will be glad to call for it. We have six in the family, and, as I am sure you can understand, have all we can do to feed them."

Mrs. Florence Kendall Observes 87th Birthday

FLORENCE KENDALL, who won honors in France driving her own ambulance over that shell torn country during the world war, recently observed her 87th birthday anniversary at her home in Stamford, Conn. At the age of 66 she bought an ambulance, went to France, and for her work at the front she became known to soldiers as "Lady Florence."

Wood Is Good Combined with Gay Pottery

By Claire Winslow.

PROBABLY more pottery to the square inch is seen and used in California than in any other state in the Union. On a recent visit there we marveled at the many varieties, colors, sizes, and shapes. Almost all were made, too, of native clays, and they seemed especially appropriate to the surroundings in which they were used—the open-to-the-sky dining porches, patios, and simple white plastered rooms of Spanish origin.

It's new and interesting now to combine wood with the gay hues of pottery or Mexican glassware. Wooden plates, for instance, are stunning when used with green or blue water glasses, or with berry bowls of red orange.

Instead of serving coffee in cups, keep it hot a long time on the outdoor table by pouring it into tall pottery tumblers. And iced tea will remain cold longer, too, if it's served in one of those artistic pottery jugs.

IF the table service is to be entirely of pottery, then as contrast use a huge wooden bowl for the salad, and in the center of the table arrange a row of candles in wooden containers that come complete with glass hurricane shades. The bowls are most reasonably priced, ranging from $1.50 to $5 and $7.50. For $5 one store is showing a handsome one in light wood, the outer sides being ridged in a graceful swirl effect. Wooden salad fork and spoon, which you buy separately, are 85 cents, $1, and more.

The hurricane candle lamps start at $1.25 in one store and are available in a charming turquoise blue, as well as in the light, natural wood.

Wooden plates, stainproof and acidproof, are really beautiful. Small ones are $1.25 each, and larger ones dinner size, are $1.75. If you wish, you can also have wooden cups and saucers, berry bowls, bread and butter plates, ash trays, and salt and pepper shakers.

One Chicago store is making a specialty of Mexican handicraft wares, and there you can find handwoven tablecloths in pastel colors as well as more vivid tones. Each one is a work of art.

Candelabra of silverlike tin, made by the natives of Taxco and native to that district, are also sold in the Mexican corner of this Chicago store and are perfect accessories with either pottery or wood.

AUGUST 15. 1937.

Alice Faye, who a few short years ago was starting out on a singing career, is now one of screendom's leading feminine stars. Her current film is "You Can't Have Everything," and you can see it this week at the Chicago theater. Don Ameche plays her leading man.

This happy looking pair are Jeanette MacDonald and Allan Jones. They're cast together for the first time in "The Firefly." Miss MacDonald plays the title role, with Mr. Jones as the swashbuckling Don Diego de Lara. (Erlanger.)

Left: Clark Gable, who, as you probably know, plays the leading masculine role in "Saratoga," now being shown at the Apollo theater. The late Jean Harlow is cast opposite him.

May we present Miss Ann Sheridan, who's cast opposite Pat O'Brien and Humphrey Bogart in "San Quentin"? The film's unreeling on the screen at the Oriental.

Mr. Mantle Finds Tourists Encamped in Provincetown

Fears Town Will Suffer from Invasion

Dress and Camaraderie Still Have Definite Portuguese Touch.

By Burns Mantle.

PROVINCETOWN, Mass.—[Special.]—We have been a long time getting to the tip of Cape Cod and the Eugene O'Neill shrine. So long that practically all the O'Neill atmosphere has disappeared, though the tradition lingers on. Provincetown is suffering the fate of most Bohemias in America. The tourists have found it and will eventually smother and commercialize it, as they have New York's Greenwich Village.

There is a good bit of the old Provincetown left, however. Enough, I'd say, to last another five years. There is still a definite Portuguese touch to the costuming and the camaraderie of the town. Natives and summer guests alike try to look as much like gypsies as gay colors and freak getups permit. The outlandish has become the conventional and the conventional appears outlandish. Boleros and bandannas, beer coats, and shorts, slacks and handkerchief bathing suits are common street costumes. The town's main business thoroughfare is a Midway plaisance. It is, quite reasonably, called Commercial street, and its merchants do what they can to make the four months from June to October take care of the eight months that bring them little in the way of either tourists or income.

Commercial street has been made a one way street for the first time this summer. It is probably twenty feet wide from house line to house line, and cars are permitted to park on one side. Through the single lane remaining tourists' cars inch their way. High seated chariots of ancient vintage, piloted by laughing natives who delight in scaring the daylights out of both their fares and the pedestrians they miss by eyebrow fractions, reel past at quarter hour intervals. A ride in one of these carryalls is much more exciting than any dip-the-dip that I have ever ridden. Up Commercial street they reel, seeming to carom off parked cars, telegraph poles, and parading shoppers as they go. It is a test of nerve to ride one, and a lot of fun. Five cents up Commercial street. Five cents down Bradford street, and they are ready to start all over.

Old Artists' Colony Active Feature in the Town.

The drinking starts early in the open houses, public and private, which takes in both the odd and the even sides of the street. But it is a reasonably restrained and friendly salute to fair weather and a pleasant visit. The old artists' colony, started, Mary Bicknell tells me [the wife of W. H. W. Bicknell, the Boston etcher], by the Paint and Clay club of Boston a matter of 50 years ago, is still an active feature of the town. They were giving their annual Beachcombers' ball in the town hall the night I arrived, and the revels of the Quatz Arts in Paris are no more colorful.

The house in which Playwright O'Neill occupied an apartment is still pointed out to those who may be interested. It is near the location of the original Wharf theater, where "Jig" Cook, Susan Glaspell, Mary Heaton Vorse, Harry Kemp, and the rest of the original Provincetown Player group first introduced the O'Neill sea plays. The theater burned down some years back, and its early patrons have long since transferred their theatrical interests, such as they are, to New York.

But there is still a Wharf theater at the other end of Commercial street. It is being run this year by two young enthusiasts, Neil McFee Skinner and Jean Paul King. Mr. Skinner, out of the University of Michigan and Northwestern, took to acting, and Mr. King, leaving the University of Washington and Miami university in Ohio, took to radio and became an announcer.

They have taken over the present Wharf theater, which was revived by Mrs. Bicknell some years ago and maintained with a semi-professional group for several seasons, following the departure of the original Wharfites, and done a bit of rebuilding. They have also started a student class, with twenty-five young hopefuls paying $125 for a summer's tuition, plus their board at the Theater restaurant and their rooms in the nearby cottages. The students learn a lot about eurythmics, stage speech and deportment, and are privileged to act from time to time. After which, I assume, they go job hunting. While I was there the acting company was playing something called "Stork on Skis." It seemed vaguely familiar, but I suspect that was because it was made up of tried and familiar situations. An actor named Acton wrote it and was playing the chief comedy rôle.

Cape Playhouse at Dennis Interesting Theater Camp.

The most interesting of the summer theater camps on the cape is Raymond Moore's Cape playhouse at Dennis. This young man, both enthusiast and idealist, has had eleven seasons in which to build up his enterprise, and has profited notably by his experiences. Now he boasts an estate of thirty-six acres with eleven buildings. The entire plant is devoted mostly to the conduct of a legitimate theater and a cinema theater.

The legitimate theater is as well equipped in the matter of stage space and facilities as a Broadway theater, has audience room for some four or five hundred patrons, and is conducted with both the flare and the efficiency of a New York production house

The cinema theater, however, is physically the gem of the collection, with murals and lobby decorations painted by Rockwell Kent. Having plenty of space to play with, Mr. Moore, knowing that two or three hours in a picture theater can be pretty trying on the back as well as the mind, has filled the auditorium with wide arm chairs which give it the appearance of a huge and comfortable living room. He has also done tricks with the lighting which soften and perfect this feature and otherwise set the place apart as perhaps the most attractive picture playhouse in at least forty of our forty-eight states.

Mr. Moore's Interest in His Playhouse, Gardens.

Mr. Moore's chief personal interests, however, are in his playhouse proper and his gardens. Moore left Stanford university, after having majored in English and botany, and after having taught botany as a member of the faculty for several years, with his mind centered on becoming a florist and landscape gardener. His love of flowers he has expressed in two old-fashioned gardens, one surrounding his home and another adjoining the theaters. There are literally acres of hollyhocks and roses, petunias and rhododendrons, flocks and flags and dozens of other varieties. These are attended by a force of seven gardeners. So famous are the gardens becoming that bus companies are now routing their vacation patrons through Dennis that they may have a view of them.

The theater companies at Dennis are outstanding and their performances excellent. I saw a revival of Sherwood's "The Petrified Forest" at the Cape, with young Philips Holmes, Taylor Holmes' son, playing the Leslie Howard part and giving a performance that was intelligent and impressively honest. Philip Huston was the Duke Mantee and a little lady of unusual promise, Martha Scott, also from Michigan university, played the girl.

Mr. Moore has not gone in for apprentice groups, but he is a little proud of the fact that many a beginner has graduated from his theater and gone places in theaterland almost immediately thereafter. Bette Davis of Hollywood was, in 1928, an usher at the Cape. And that season, or the one following, two young men who played small parts and proved themselves ready for big ones were the gangling and now popular Henry Fonda and the handsome and successful Robert Montgomery

Miss Davis gave up ushering to play a part in "Mr. Pim Passes By" and the cinema scouts picked her up the following season after she had conducted herself most creditably in a series of ingénue rôles. This season's leading man, Philip Huston, another Cape playhouse alumnus, is next season to play opposite Gertrude Lawrence in "Susan and God," and a leading lady of a few seasons back, Flora Campbell, was this season's lead in the Broadway "Excursion.' Which, I think, gives Mr. Moore good excuse for boasting.

Mary Young Revives "The Children's Hour."

I dashed over to another Cape Cod location, which would be Centreville, to see what Mary Young was doing with a revival of "The Children's Hour." Truth to tell, Mary was not doing much. She showed courage in presenting this controversial drama after it had been foolishly banned by Boston, but unhappily "The Children's Hour" demands a more intelligent and careful casting to type than she was able to give it with the players available.

Being a stanch defender of the Lillian Hellman drama, which I believe to be one of the strongest and most vital social dramas of our day, I was pleased to see that some part of it came through even an inadequate playing.

Miss Young has turned an old town hall into a presentable summer playhouse. Her son, John Craig Jr., is helping her with the management.

W. J. King Music Editor.

The recent death of W. J. Henderson, veteran New York music reviewer, has brought about new appointments in the music department of the New York Sun. William J. King becomes music editor; Oscar Thompson, music critic, and Irving Kolodin, assistant music critic. Mr. Kolodin is the author of the book, "The Metropolitan Opera."

Dancer Dies

MRS. CHARLOTTE MARKHAM KANELLOS, dancer and lecturer on the dances of ancient and modern Greece, died Tuesday, July 27, of a streptococcus infection at Manitowoc, Wis. She was the wife of Vassos Kanellos, Greek dancer. Mrs. Kanellos, whose stage name was "Tanagra," was a former instructor in the Art Institute. She later became a professor of the History of Art at the Milwaukee Downer college and then was made director of the Art School of the Milwaukee Art Institute. She always maintained a studio there. Under the auspices of the Greek government she and her husband together produced the Delphic Festival in 1927. They were then commissioned to organize and direct the ancient classic outdoor theaters of Greece.

Parents Urged to Ask Good School System

Told They Must Think of Education in Terms of General Principles.

By the Rev. John Evans.

IF PARENTS would think of education in terms of general principles, rather than in terms of little Johnny's experience with teachers, they would better serve the school's interest, in the opinion of William C. Reavis, professor of education at the University of Chicago. Furthermore, if these same parents wish a good educational system they must be willing to fight for it.

"The most discouraging feature of my work as chairman of the Chicago citizens' school committee was the diffidence and indifference of the parents," said Mr. Reavis. "They are willing to stand by until the damage is almost irreparable before they will get warmed up to fight."

He pointed out that a parent cannot understand the educational system of today in the light of his own school days, and that before a parent can serve the school he must understand that libraries, auditoriums, and gymnasiums are as essential to education as the "Three R's." Also that parents must show a willingness to attack and solve problems which retard the schools from functioning successfully.

"It is essential that a parent who wants to serve the schools should think in terms of principles rather than personalities," Mr. Reavis continued. "The community is entitled to as good an educational service as money will buy. That means that if a local applicant for educational position is not as good as an outsider, the better man should be chosen. He will be, too, if personalities are eliminated from thinking about education and the prinple substituted that the first interest is the education of the child."

Parents who shirked their responsibility by merely sending their children to school, troubling themselves no whit further, were especially condemned by Mr. Reavis because they failed to recognize the fact that education of children goes on outside the school no less than inside.

"But parents by thinking in terms of principles rather than personalities," Mr. Reavis concluded, "can do a better job of coöperating in the complete education of their children. They can give them a normal social life in the home and in the community. The effective parent may even have to see to it that the community be improved, if they really want to coöperate in their childrens' education."

CLARENCE S. YOAKUM, vice president of the University of Michigan in charge of educational investigations, has announced that 166 young men and women, products of the preparatory schools of his state, have been designated scholarship holders for the coming school year.

Seventy-five of those so designated will be freshmen. Heretofore the number of freshmen holders of Michigan alumni undergraduate scholarships, for any school, has been limited to fifty, but the number was increased last month at a meeting of the board of regents.

Since the holder of one of these scholarships is entitled to a remission of all semester fees at the university, it is worth more than $100. In terms of these fees the scholarships thus granted total a grant approximately of $19,000, the largest sum ever allowed for the Michigan alumni undergraduate scholarships in the seven years since their establishment.

LUCIUS N. LITTAUER, who recently gave $2,000,000 to establish a graduate school of public administration at Harvard university, has offered ten scholarships to deserving students to further their talents in the field of art at the New York School of Applied Design for Women in New York City.

Mrs. Dunlap Hopkins, founder of the school, in announcing this gift, explained that Mr. Littauer, as a patron of art, expressed his desire to help young women who do not have the advantages of professional art training in their home towns, because of schools' lack of funds.

This school, established forty-six years ago, was the pioneer in training women for these professional fields. It has given more than 25,000 students a technical education in textile design, interior decorating, mural decoration, and fashion illustration. These scholarships will be given on the basis of ability, and designs in any form applicable to practical art should be submitted before Aug. 29, at 160 Lexington avenue, New York City.

JOSEPH BREWER, president of Olivet college, Michigan, has announced that Ford Madox Ford will be a member of the faculty during the coming college year. Mr. Ford, who is now engaged in writing a history of world literature, is best known for published "Collected Poems" and his "Portraits from Life," which are memories and criticisms of those of his literary friends who were contemporaries of Henry James and Joseph Conrad.

August 21 Day of Eighth Chicagoland Music Festival

Gives View of Democracy of American Art

Three Hour Performance Includes All Types of Entertainment.

By Cecil M. Smith.

SATURDAY evening at 7 o'clock "on the nose," as they say in radio studios, a massed corps of drummers and buglers will march into Soldiers' field, and the eighth annual Chicagoland Music Festival will begin its spectacular three hour course. Upward of 100,000 onlookers and auditors, taxing the great stadium to the bulging point, will witness the largest and most resourceful musical panorama any one has yet devised. Down below in the field and on the stage 4625 amateur and professional participants will join their talents in a democratic demonstration of the possibilities of music as a form of mass entertainment. This huge concourse of singers and players will represent 197 cities in twenty-one states and the Dominion of Canada.

The mere magnitude of the Chicagoland Music Festival is, of course, an impressive thing to contemplate. Yet, if the festival were big but not good, a large audience might have attended the first year, but how many people would have cared to come back in these seven subsequent years? In that event, the sponsors of the festival would have had ample opportunity to learn the truth of Lincoln's overquoted statement, "You can't fool all of the people all of the time."

Thesis Is That New Talent May Be Discovered.

A part of the success of the Chicagoland Music Festival is based upon a thesis which would make the festival a large scale enterprise, even if it were desirable to give it in a drawing room. This thesis is the assumption—magnificently borne out in the experience of the last seven years—that a tremendous amount of vital musical talent is possessed by people who, for one reason or another, have not found a way to bring their art before the public.

Each year, therefore, a public invitation is issued to all singers, choruses, violinists, bands, and other musical performers, singly and in groups, to enter upon a round of competitions for the privilege of appearing before the festival audience. The number of eager contestants is so great that many local and sectional preliminary competitions take place in order to eliminate all but the most competent musicians from the final decision. Since the competitions have always been utterly fair, with no backstage wire pulling and no special privilege or favoritism, they have met with an enthusiastic response all over the middle west. It can truly be said that no contestant ever failed to win a place in the Chicagoland Music Festival for any reason except that the judges held that some one else was better qualified.

Results of Contest Made Public Saturday Night.

Saturday night, and not until then, the results of the vast 1937 contest will be known. At one time or another the evening will bring forth a singer, a violinist, a mixed chorus, a women's chorus, a male chorus, an adult band, a juvenile band, a cornetist, and a harmonica player. Each individual or group will have won an appearance through a contest as sportsmanlike as any championship tennis or golf match.

The winning singer will sing something of his own choosing, and in addition will sing "At Dawning," under the direction of the composer, Charles Wakefield Cadman. Each of the winning choruses and bands will perform its own special selection. The massed bands all together will play stirring marches, and the massed chorus will sing the "Hallelujah" chorus from Handel's "Messiah."

At exactly 8:17 it is expected that the great audience will feel an uncontrolable urge to make some music of its own. At that precise instant, therefore, and again at 9:21 a few minutes of community singing will engage every one's attention as the assemblage is galvanized into song under the direction of Homer Rodeheaver, who has had years of success leading inspirational singing.

All-Chicago High School Included on Program.

It would be a mistake to overlook the important rôle the public schools are now playing in giving musical training to our young people. For this reason the All-Chicago High School band is included in the program, playing Granville English's "Chicago March," under the baton of Capt. Howard Stube and thirty-three public school bandmasters, and Ferde Grofe's "Mardi Gras," under the direction of Oscar Anderson.

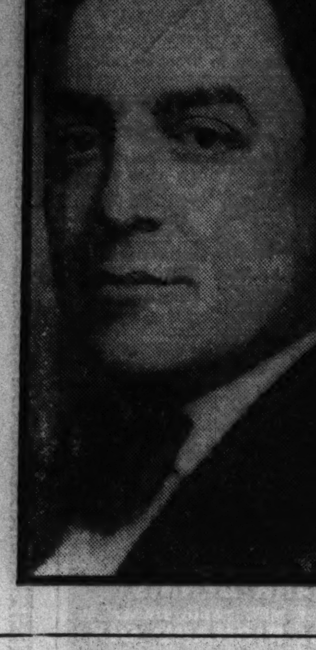
From time to time the program will be enriched by the contributions of outstanding professional musicians. Henry Weber, noted musical director of radio station W-G-N, is the musical generalissimo of the festival. The festival orchestra will play several times under his direction. A notable moment will be a tribute to the late George Gershwin.

The presence of Charles Wakefield Cadman, popular ballad and opera composer, has already been mentioned. Another famous star who is to appear is the beguiling Marion Claire. She has chosen to sing the feature song of her new motion picture, "Make a Wish." And then, if the applause for Miss Claire can be quieted, Dave Rubinoff will appear with that celebrated appendage, his violin, first to play his "Dance of the Russian Peasants," and then to direct the festival orchestra.

Do not get the impression that the festival appeals exclusively to the ear. There will be many features to delight the eye, too—a Negro cotton picking pageant, enlisting the participation of 1,000 Negroes, under the direction of J. Wesley Jones; a Chicago Girl Scout pageant, directed by Miss Olga Carlson of New York, assisted by Miss Mayblossom Macdonald, Mrs. Ernie Schultz, and Miss Betty Jones; a demonstration of flag throwing by the Swiss specialist, Franz Hug, and a final celebration of fireworks.

When the last strains of "The Star Spangled Banner" have died away at the close of the festival the satisfied audience will leave the stadium with a sense of having seen a more complete summary of the democratic musical life of America than any other single occasion in the country can provide.

WILL BE GUEST SOLOIST



Tito Schipa, celebrated lyric tenor, is to be guest soloist at the free outdoor concert in Grant park tomorrow evening. He will sing favorite opera arias, accompanied by Jerzy Bojanowski and the Chicago Civic Opera orchestra.

Play Contest.

The Cedar Rapids, Ia., Community Players announce their sixth annual play writing contest. A prize of $50 will be given for the best original three act play. The contest will close Dec. 1, 1937. Mrs. Douglas Kirk, 402 25th street, S. E., Cedar Rapids, is manager of the contest.

You Can Enjoy Music Without Being a Master

It's an Art, Not a Science, and Appeals Directly to Sense of Beauty.

By Edward Barry.

HOW much must a person know about music before he can enjoy and appreciate it?

Really nothing at all. Music is an art, not a learned science, and art appeals directly to that dimly understood faculty called the sense of beauty.

But what of the so-called laws of harmony, the ability to name instruments by sound or sight, the canons of musical form, the significance of such terms as "theme," "major," "minor," "development," "recapitulation"? The answer is simply that all of this is comparatively unimportant and should be regarded more as a scholarly ornament than as a necessary preparation for intelligent listening.

Hold still, now! This is not going to hurt one bit, and it will all be over in a single paragraph.

Art Not Constructed on a Set of Rules.

Art is not constructed on a set of rules nor made from blueprints whose various sides and angles bear certain well established names. On the contrary, the rules and the blueprints are derived from art. Scholars have decided that it is convenient to have names and descriptions for certain things, things which already exist and which are independent of the names. In brief, such words as "phrase," "resolution," "pianissimo" and "coda" represent artistic realities [processes or effects] which are quite capable of making their own impression without the help of any nomenclature whatsoever. It is handy sometimes to know the accepted names for these processes and effects, but such knowledge is not absolutely essential to intelligent listening.

Here are two examples, one drawn from music, the other from a sister art. If you play the chord D-F-G-B on the piano, the sound of it simply shouts for the chord C-E-G-C to follow. That the first is unfinished and that the second brings repose and fulfilment is perfectly apparent even to a person who never has opened a textbook in his life. The succession of chords achieves its own musical effect.

Technical Knowledge Not Important in Appreciation.

If the listener is curious enough to look the matter up in a treatise on harmony he will find that the first chord is called a dominant seventh and that it classifies as a dissonance. The book goes on to explain that all dissonances demand a resolution and that, in this case, the chord C-E-G-C offers an ideal resolution. All of this does not change the listener's original reaction in the last. It simply rationalizes and codifies something which he knew instinctively all the time.

Suppose a man is moved by the quiet beauty of fluted columns topped by simple capitals. Will it help him any or increase his appreciation in the least to know that this style is called "Doric"? What if it were called "Joe" instead? The artistic reality represented by Doric columns would not be affected. Remember that the man who conceived the original idea did not know that the name "Doric" was to be applied to it.

It is theoretically possible for a sensitive person to acquire a profound appreciation of music without knowing a single technical term nor understanding a solitary "law" of the art. The point is that he comes in the course of ceaseless listening to recognize tone colorings, harmonic progressions, and the like, but not to recognize them by the names which scholars have selected. The colorings, progressions, etc., make their own direct impression on the listener and convey for him the emotional and psychological content of the music. After years of careful listening the reaction of such a person to a work as great as the Beethoven Fifth symphony will be fully as intelligent as if he had been studying musical textbooks right along.

True Lovers of Music Want to Learn About It.

Mind that I said a situation of the sort is theoretically possible. In actual practice no one who is so sensitive to music would be able to resist the temptation to try to "learn" something about it. Mere curiosity would come to the rescue.

Sooner or later he will open a textbook and learn that the first theme of the symphony mentioned above is in C minor and the second in E flat major. Interesting, perhaps, but not important, for he has always felt the magical beauty of this contrast even though the words "minor" and "major" were strange to his vocabulary. Similarly, he understood long ago the significance of what now turns out to be the "development" section. The relation of this to the original themes, the gradual intensification of content—these are not strange matters. Only the term "development" is strange.

Artistic Realities in Music Are the Important Items.

Also, the essential rightness of the return of the first ideas is not affected one way or the other by the news that this device is called "recapitulation." Suppose it were called "jabberwocky"? One cannot stress too strongly the fact that these names are not important. It is the artistic realities represented by them which are important!

The same with history and biography. Such things are worth knowing and add immensely to the extra-musical pleasures of music. However, they are not absolutely necessary to an intelligent appreciation of the actual music. Our friend of a paragraph ago may find in the course of his tardily begun studies that Beethoven is the culmination of the "classical" period, that he was born in Bonn in 1770, that he had some Flemish blood in his veins. There is a perfect answer to all this, an answer which may reflect unfairly on the interest of such information, but which contains, nevertheless, a large globule of essential truth. It is simply: "So what?"

Notes of Music and Musicians

The free outdoor concerts of the Illinois Symphony orchestra at the Wilmette bowl Wednesday at 8:15 and at Hutchinson court on the University of Chicago campus Thursday at 8:30 will be given this week under the capable leadership of Robert S. Whitney. These will be Mr. Whitney's farewell appearances in Chicago for some time to come. He has recently resigned his post as Chicago supervisor of the Federal Music project in order to become permanent conductor of the Louisville Symphony orchestra.

In addition to his excellent work as director of the useful and popular composers' forums, Mr. Whitney has gained favorable recognition as both pianist and composer. The Whitney ensemble, in which Mr. Whitney has played with his four sisters, is a well known chamber group. His Concerto Grosso for orchestra was played by Dr. Stock and the Chicago Symphony orchestra in 1934.

The finale from Mr. Whitney's Symphony in E minor will be an interesting feature of both of this week's concerts. In addition both programs will include Handel's "Water Music," arranged by Sir Hamilton Harty; Schubert's C major symphony, and the Polovtzian dances from Borodin's "Prince Igor."

Serge Prokofieff, Russian composer and pianist, has been spending the summer in a rural spot near Moscow, completing a new cantata. Mr. Prokofieff is booked for a tour of Europe during the first part of next season. He will make a month long visit to the United States in February, 1938.

On Wednesday at Wilmette Lolita Bertling, soprano, a resident of Wilmette, will sing Mozart's "Alleluia" and the Ballatella from "Pagliacci." Marie Sidenius Zendt, soprano, will be soloist at the University of Chicago Thursday, singing "Depuis le jour" from Charpentier's "Louise," Grieg's "Solvejg's Song," and Thrane's "Norwegian Echo Song."

The prize offered by the Chicago Council of Teachers of Singing for the best solo voice setting of Sidney Lanier's "Evening Song" has been awarded to Edward E. Menges of St. Louis, Mo.

By Anna Nangle.

THE cash registers should jingle merrily wherever this opus is booked, because it's lots of fun and has all kinds of popular celebrities to offer.

Of greatest news value perhaps is the fact that, all kivered up with clothes and another name, we find none other than Gypsy Rose Lee of undressing fame, and quite handsome she is too. Her rôle as Lulu Riley does not require a great deal more than some swishing in beautiful gowns and a bit of temperamental storming, and she's good at both.

The film is a musical comedy, and the fact that the music was written by Gordon and Revel should reassure you as to the quality of the tunes. "The Loveliness of You" I thought particularly nice.

THE cast is studded with competent people, led by capable Charlie Winninger. There is some superb dancing by Tip, Tap, and Toe, and singing is provided by Alice Faye, Don Ameche, and Tony Martin, who is quite good looking and has a swell voice.

The love story is handed to Miss Faye and Mr. Ameche. They're both able performers and Miss Faye's looks have improved so much! She's lost that hollow eyed, awfully painted look she used to have, and good eye and mouth makeup have transformed her into a much prettier and healthier looking girl. Mr. Ameche sports a mustache and looks a bit like Ronald Colman at times. Their voices blend pleasantly.

One of the biggest factors in this film's probable box office success is the presence of the Ritz Brothers. They work like fiends and produce plenty of laughs. The dialog is smart and sophisticated, with numerous fast ones tossed in here and there. I thought their scrub lady act particularly funny.

There are so many first rate performers in this film that people like Arthur Treacher, and Phyllis Brooks, a very pretty newcomer, are more or less lost in the crowd.

RUBINOFF and his fiddle appear here and there, but if you're expecting long interludes of soulful music from him, you're apt to be disappointed. I wasn't.

The plot is a light one, but not, as is usually the trouble with material furnished to string together singing and dancing pieces, so loose that you lose track of who's in love with who.

There are, of course, minor discrepancies in the film, but there's no point in being literal minded about musicals, so if you get a kick out of noticing that Miss Faye sings a song announced as fresh from the publishers and does it with fervor and variations without even looking at the notes, go ahead and have your fun.

This is a pleasing medley of modern entertainment of all kinds, and I think you'll find it amusing diversion.

Plays for Larrimore.

Francine Larrimore has returned from abroad with manuscripts of new plays by Rebecca West, a Finnish author, Hella Wulijoki. These will be held in reserve while she confers with Norman Bel Geddes concerning Victor Wolfson's play, "Lower Than Angels."

New Operetta.

Victor Herbert's extravaganza, "Babes in Toyland," will be given this week by the Municipal Opera company of St. Louis. The season will close with the American première of Robert Stolz's operetta, "Wild Violets," beginning Aug. 23.

New Managers

ORSON WELLES and John Houseman have secured financial backing for a season of classical revivals at a popular scale in a small Broadway theater, beginning in October. The first play will be "The Merchant of Venice," given as a comedy of manners. Shaw's "Heartbreak House" may follow, and there will be a change of bill at monthly intervals. This venture will not interfere with Welles' appearance for Arthur Hopkins in "King Lear," due in New York about Christmas time.

Welles and Houseman have been connected with the Federal Theater Project's productions of "Macbeth" and "Dr. Faustus" in New York.

"TALK OF THE DEVIL"

The pensive lady in the smart house coat is none other than our own Sally Eilers, who's been overseas working in a British production. Its title is "Talk of the Devil."

Lindblom Choir Will Continue Musical Work

Former A Capella Group Bands Together as Chicago Alumni Unit.

ANXIOUS to continue an association which won them so many musical honors of a remarkable kind, the graduate members of the famous 1936 edition of the Lindblom High school a cappella choir have banded themselves together to form a professional choral group to be known as the Chicago Alumni choir. David Nyvall Jr., under whose direction the Lindblom choir rose to regional and even national fame, is the conductor of the new organization.

Among the signal honors which came the way of the 1936 Lindblom group was that of appearing in New York before the annual conference of national music supervisors and at the White House and capitol in Washington.

Chicago knows the organization chiefly through its work at the University of Chicago, with the Chicago Symphony orchestra, at services of the Sunday Evening club, and before the Chicago Woman's club.

The Chicago Alumni choir sings a varied and imposing repertoire which ranges from sixteenth century polyphony to the works of living American and English composers. A concert schedule for the season of 1937-'38 is now being planned. The group will not confine itself strictly to one-time members of the Lindblom a cappella choir. Outstanding voices, particularly altos and tenors, may be auditioned in the early fall. Applications for such audition should be addressed to the business manager, Joseph Gale, at 6612 S. Sacramento avenue.

Berlin Opera.

Among the unusual operas to be staged next season by the Berlin State opera are Gluck's "Armide," Von Schillings' "Ingwelde," Glinka's "A Life for the Tsar," Siegfried Wagner's "Der Schmied von Marienburg," and Nicolai's "The Merry Wives of Windsor." Premières of two ballets will be given, Wagner-Regeney's "Der Zerbrochene Krug," and Stravinsky's "Le Baiser de la Fée."

Stage Season Opens in New York with 'Virginia,' Operetta

ACTS IN FIRST PLAY OF SEASON

Colonial Era Theme of New Lyric Frolic

Three Drama Producers Take Vows of No More Broadway Adventures.

By Charles Collins.

THE first important opening of the new theatrical season in New York will be a large scale operetta production at the Center theater in Rockefeller Center to carry on the tradition of "The Great Waltz" and "White Horse Inn." Its title will be "Virginia"; the première is scheduled for Aug. 31. The composer is Arthur Schwartz, remembered for his songs in "The Little Show," "The Band Wagon," and "Revenge with Music." The librettists are Laurence Stallings and Owen Davis. The locale is Williamsburg, Va., in 1774; the story deals with the adventures of a troupe of actors from the Drury Lane theater of London.

The company will contain Dennis Hoey, who was Katharine Hepburn's leading man in the stage production of "Jane Eyre" in Chicago and on tour last season. Other principals will be Anne Booth, an English prima donna; Nigel Bruce, Bertha Belmore, Charles Romano [the elder Strauss in "The Great Waltz"]; Gene Lockhart, Mona Barrie, Valia Valentinoff, Ronald Graham, Lansing Hatfield, Patricia Bowman, Buck and Bubbles [remembered from "Porgy and Bess"] and Avis Andrews. A ballet of 32 girls and a Negro choir will also contribute to the performance.

Three occasional producers or backers of plays for the Broadway stage have recently announced their intention to abandon the drama, probably forever. They are John Hay Whitney, J. J. Vincent, and James R. Ullman.

Mr. Whitney, sportsman and capitalist, now president of Pioneer Pictures and chairman of the board of Selznick-International pictures, invested large sums of money last season in four stage productions in New York—"Johnny Johnson," acted by the Group Theater company; "Tide Rising," "200 Were Chosen," and "Babes in Arms." His activity annoyed the other film producers who were under a vow to withhold their support of the stage until its dramatists, in professional guild assembled, became more grateful and less avaricious. Mr. Whitney has sworn off without giving a reason, but his subsidization of the spectacle called "Jumbo" is regarded by the Broadway gossips as sufficient cause for reformation.

J. J. Vincent is recalled chiefly by a production of a drama called "Kultur" several years ago.

James R. Ullman was associated in the production of "Men in White," a Pulitzer prize winner and rousing box-office success. His later ventures in the drama have discouraged him.

Alex Yokel, former Chicago reporter who became a flourishing Broadway impresario with "Three Men on a Horse," thinks well of a play in manuscript called "Beauty." He contemplates duplicate productions for New York and Chicago, opening on the same night. Irene Rich, ex-movie star, may be the leading woman of the Chicago cast, while Miss Billie Burke, Florenz Ziegfeld's widow, has an idea of returning to the stage in the New York company.

Maxwell Anderson, the most active dramatist of the American stage during the past two or three years, has finished a new play which Guthrie McClintic will produce as the first item on his schedule for the new season. The première has been fixed for Sept. 29 at the Empire theater, New York. The title of the work is "The Star-Wagon," and unlike Anderson's recent pieces—"Winterset," "The Wingless Victory," "The Masque of Kings," "High Tor"—it will be in prose instead of a medley of free and blank verse.

Frances Farmer and Jean Muir, pretty young movie stars, are brushing up their acting technique in rural theaters this summer. The former recently appeared in "At Mrs. Beam's" in the Country Playhouse, Westport, Conn. The latter has ornamented the cast of "Pride and Prejudice" at Suffern, N. Y.

"Tovarich" ended its New York run last night with a record of 356 performances. Its tour, which will include a Chicago engagement, will begin in Montreal on Sept. 13. This closing cuts the list of Broadway playbills down to eight.

Philip Merivale and Gladys Cooper, co-stars for the past two years on the American stage, will return to London audiences next fall in a drama by Jean Girardoux, French author, called "No War in Troy." Robert E. Sherwood may make the translation or adaptation.

SWEET SIXTEEN IN FLOOR SHOW

Draper and Skelton Bill Opens Thursday; Silver Forest Changes Acts.

THE long and prosperous stay of Helen Morgan and Lou Holtz, with associate entertainers, at Chez Paree will end next Thursday night and a new program will be launched on the following evening. "Red" Skelton, a comedian who calls himself "the Clown Prince," will make his Chicago cabaret debut as a "discovery" of the Chez Paree management. He appeared on the stage program of the Palace theater with his sister for five weeks last spring.

Paul Draper, who has lifted tap dancing to artistic status, will be the headliner of the new bill. Other contributors will be Terry Lawlor, vaudeville partner of George Jessel last year; the Readinger Twins, ballet dancers, held over from the Morgan-Holtz bill, and the Chez Paree ballet in new dances and costumes. Henry Busse's orchestra will continue, with Maurie Stein's band for relief.

- A new program of cabaret entertainment was launched in the Silver Forest, summer dinner-and-supper room at the Drake hotel, last Wednesday night. Jack Denny's orchestra remains, with Bob Pace as tenor soloist, but the ice skating exhibition has been succeeded by a typical cabaret bill. Gloria Grafton, a little prima donna who made a reputation in the New York stage production called "Jumbo," gives a repertory of songs. Sunnie O'Dea, tap dancer, comes from a year's run in Dorchester House, London. She has had movie experience in "Strike Me Pink" and "Showboat." Walter Nielsen entertains with tricks on the unicycle; Paul Regan impersonates celebrities; the Muriel Kretlow girls appear in ballet numbers, and Pierre André does the introducing.

- Lydia and Jorescu, ballroom dancers who have become popular in Chicago, joined the College Inn's revue last Wednesday night. He is a Dalmatian by birth; she comes from the Argentine republic, but her parents were Russians. Frankie Masters' band continues, with Jackie Heller as vocalist. Other entertainers are the eight Frances Allis dancers; Charles Carrer, juggler; Myrus, mind reader; Coleman Clark and William Price, ping-pong experts, and Donna Dae, dancer and singer.

- The 10 o'clock "little show" has been dropped from the Empire room's programs because encores for the dancing De Marcos and Alexander Gray, baritone, have prolonged the dinner and supper bills. Thus the specialty dancing of Amy McKay, Alvera Walker, and Melba Cordes, trio of Abbott ballet girls, has disappeared. Dick Gasparre's orchestra, now in its first Chicago engagement, play for public dancing and the floor shows, and are occasionally relieved for breathing spells by the Four Aristocrats.

- A Japanese dancer named Sakura, appearing in modern American dances, is a new entertainer at Harry's New York cabaret. Others on the bill are Nelle Nelson, singer; Mary Stone, singer of Mexican songs; Theo Troy, control dancers, and Jack Irving, comedian and master of ceremonies. Charles Engles' orchestra continues.

- Roger Pryor's orchestra begins its second week in the Beach walk shows at the Edgewater Beach hotel. He is a former stage and movie actor, son of Arthur Pryor, band master, who returned to his father's profession two years ago, and appeared at the College Inn for many months. This week's program includes Frederick Sylvester and his three performing midgets; Sarita and Tito Velasco, Spanish dancers; Jack Gregory and company, equilibrists and jugglers; Gloria Sutter, ballet dancer, and Harriet Smith's choristers.

- Villa Venice, where Albert Bouché stages cabaret revues with originality, taste and daring, is famous for its horticultural environment. The landscape gardening of this suburban café northwest of Chicago surpasses the environment of the Café de Madrid and the Cascades, in the Bois de Boulogne, near Paris. Bouché's show this season is among the best in his long career as a producer of floor entertainment. Dolly Arden, danseuse; Grisha and Bona, exotic and pantomimic dancing girls; the Orchid trio; the Moscow trio and the Orchid trio are prominent among the unusual entertainers. Negotiations are in progress which may bring a Bouché show into the former French casino and Terrace Garden of the Morrison hotel next fall.

- The Continental room of the Stevens hotel continues the floor show which started last week, with Carlos Molina's orchestra. Martinez and Marion Randall are the ballroom dancers. Other entertainers are Carmen Marin, singer from Barcelona; Miss Jo Andrews, a tap dancer of "gamine" type; Antonio del Val, Spanish baritone, and the Four Andalusians, Spanish dancing girls. Extra acts are given in the "Continental Fiesta" held every Wednesday night in carnival atmosphere.

- Paul Sabin, orchestra leader in the Blue Fountain room of the La Salle hotel, continues to lead community singing. Three of his musicians entertain as the Royal Jesters. Louise Powell has joined the band as vocal soloist.

- Joe Sanders, dance band leader at the Blackhawk restaurant, has added a number called "Daniel Boone" to his repertory of swing numbers. It is played by request about a dozen times every night. In the floor show, Ronald and Roberta, ballroom dancers; Jane Kayne, vocalist; June Glory, tap dancer, and Pete the Newsboy continue.

- L'Aiglon, the North Michigan avenue café, seldom changes its bill of entertainment, but it now has a group of new performers. Edgar Rice and Bob Mahar, called the Deauville duo, are singing and strolling instrumentalists. Pamela Payton sings with George Bay's orchestra.

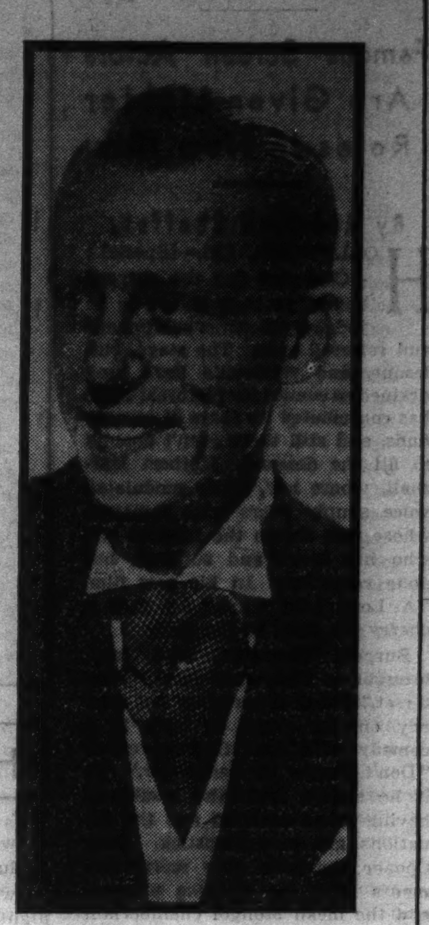
- Jack Little's dance orchestra began a week's engagement at the Trianon ballroom last night. Dick Jurgen's musicians will remain at the Aragon ballroom for another week. On next Saturday night Little's organization will move to the Aragon for a two weeks' stay and Jurgen's group will take a change of venue to the Trianon for five days.

- Riverview Park designates Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays as children's days, and offers many bargain prices among its concessions which appeal to juveniles. Tuesday and Thursday evenings are called family nights, and also supply amusement at cut rates.

- The Rose Bowl, a new night club on Rush street, offers as entertainers Lillian Bernard and Flo Henrie, singers of original songs; "Dixie" Painter; the Gondoliers, strolling entertainers, and Billy Scott's dance band.

- The Mural room of the Brevoort hotel offers entertainment by Earl Smith, pianist; the Commodore duo, musicians and vocalists, and Dorothy Duval, accordionist.

- The Club Alabam offers Corliss and Palmer, in songs; Art Williams, master of ceremonies; Mickey Dunn, dancer; Cheri Wray, soubrette, and Effie Burton, prima donna. Three dance bands.



NEW STAR FOR CHEZ PAREE BILL

Comedies Are Current Box Office Rage

By Rosalind Shaffer.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal.—[Special.]—Comedies are the current box office rage if one is to judge by pictures being made and released here. The stage, burlesque, and vaudeville have been drained of comics for pictures; radio has contributed its share of comedy finds, and still there aren't enough to fill the demand. Herbert Marshall, whose low, softly modulated voice simply purrs with romance, whose face shows the lines of one who has loved and suffered, has gone comedian. In his new film, "A Love Like That," he gets a cherry pie right in the phiz.

Burgess Meredith, who was brought to Hollywood from "Winterset," which is certainly not comedy on the stage, is busy in a comedy with Ann Sothern called "Don't Forget to Remember." In it he suffers from the results of having faked amnesia and the situations are pure slapstick. Gary Cooper has some very merry moments with the Chinese princess and the mean Mongol chamberlain in "Marco Polo."

Greta Garbo Hopes to Do a Comedy Role.

Now comes Garbo all full of life and unexpected pep; she tells friends she hopes to do a comedy rôle; she is tired of heavy things. And, incidentally, all this comment in the press about the chumminess between Garbo and Leopold Stokowski was first reported, if you recall, several weeks ago by your Hollywood reporter, and in these columns.

Arabs playing extra in "Ali Baba Goes to Town" have their own outlook on life and it has caused no end of trouble for David Butler, the director, and Eddie Cantor, the star.

It started when Butler singled out several sons of the desert. He was preparing for a scene about the forty thieves. "You are a thief, and you, and you," Butler said.

The Arabs glowered. Cries arose and they demanded to see Jamiel Hassan, who is sheik of the Arabs around Hollywood and attends to the mass hiring of his countrymen and such Syrians, Bedouins, and Egyptians as may be desired for film purposes.

After their huddle with Jamiel broke up, that worthy, who has played rôles in many films, including "Under Two Flags," "Fazil," "Two Arabian Knights," and "Behind That Curtain," told Butler "some of your thieves are from the 'Amara.' The 'Amara' comprise high class families in Arab countries. They think it's not right for them to play thieves. Besides, some of their relatives at home might see the picture and their families would feel dishonored."

"Okay," agreed Butler, "we'll make them merchants instead."

Then the group of merchants rebelled. A few in their group were commoners, or low caste Arabs, and the others wanted them expelled.

While Butler was groping for words to express his state of mind some in the chattering mob began calling him "effendi." "They'll have to cut out calling names," the director growled to Hassan. "But that's a title," said that suave personage. "They are calling you 'Lord Butler.' They are honoring you."

"Well, why don't they call me 'effendi?'" demanded Eddie Cantor, who had been enjoying it up to this moment. Hassan turned a dignified glance at the little comedian. "Because you play a very low Arab in this film," he informed Cantor. "They have no respect for you.' Hassan's real name is Jamiel Ben Khyatt. He was born in Damascus, and has acted as technical director for many movies.

Eleanor Prentiss Is a Swimming Bathing Beauty.

There's one bathing beauty in films who can really swim, strange as that may be. Eleanor Prentiss is her name, and she is a Chicago girl, who, in 1935, wearing the colors of the Lake Shore Athletic club, won the fifty yard dash in the Central A. A. U. swimming championships for women. Last year she came to Hollywood and won a beauty contest sponsored by a local paper in which McClelland Barclay picked her as the prettiest. She is working as a bathing beauty at Grand National in "Something to Sing About," starring James Cagney.

They are telling about town the story of Groucho Marx at the spiritualist meeting. Groucho had sat through quite a spell of floating trumpets, dear friends, and things, and when the medium, impressed by his serious mien, asked Groucho if there wasn't something he wanted to know, Groucho popped, "Yes, indeed — what is the capital of North Dakota?"

Ed Durling, a Los Angeles columnist, nominates for Rhett Butler in "Gone With the Wind," Freddie Bartholomew, who, he says, will be about ready for the rôle by the time the film gets into production.

If you don't think Gracie Allen is a glamor girl, just reflect on the fact that she got twenty-four bottles of perfume for her birthday last week.

Honolulu Stage

IF Katharine Cornell makes her world tour and appears in Honolulu, her performances there will be given on alternate nights. It has been several years since an important theatrical company visited Honolulu. The Community Theater of Honolulu, a nonprofit organization, is desirous of sponsoring Miss Cornell's appearances.

Forty Women Act Together Without Rows

THE forty women in the cast of "The Women," the successful comedy by Clare Boothe, hold no terrors for the company's male stage manager, Karl Nielsen: "I have found no group of actors easier to handle than the women in this play," he asserts. "Peace and tranquility have been the order of the day since the play went into rehersal.

"Neither jealousies nor quarrels have thus far reared their insidious tongues and heads. Working with an exclusively female cast has given me a new insight on women generally. I have found them not only coöperative so far as the play is concerned but coöperative with each other as well. Not a single actress has been tardy throughout the run, and not once has any of them failed to answer a cue in time. The same holds true for rehersal calls.

"Another source of gratification is to find so many of them with ambition. All want to be great artists and spend every available hour in study."

Nielsen was once an actor and director himself. His ambition is to organize a repertory company to tour the United States with a program of classic dramas. He believes there is a public for plays which have stood the test of time.

Barter Theater

THE Barter theater, at Abingdon, Va., is approaching the close of its fifth season. During its five year history many plays have been presented, and have drawn their quota of beans, cabbages, and roasting ears at the box-office.

The Barter theater was founded by Robert Porterfield as a depression measure. A native Virginian, he had an idea that the people in his home state, while unable to attend the theater on a Broadway scale of prices, would welcome the opportunity to trade their surplus victuals for an evening of entertainment. Four years ago last June he arrived in Abingdon with 21 actors, a dollar in cash, and his idea.

The Barter theater now has its own playhouse on the campus of the vacant Stonewall Jackson college, where performances are given every Thursday, Friday, and Saturday evening throughout the months of June, July, and August.

Famous N. Y. Models Adorn Wanger Movie

Most Photographed Girls in America Are on 'Vogues of 1938' Set.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal.—[Special.]—America's most photographed girls are working out at United Artists studio on the set of "Vogues of 1938" for Walter Wanger productions. No, they aren't picture stars; in fact, none has ever been in front of the moving picture cameras before. They are a group of highly paid advertising models from New York, where their faces are photographed constantly as those wonder girls who cheer you with slogans for cigarets, soups, hats, auto tires, perfumes, or any commercial product the owners of which can afford their expensive services.

Nearly every one of these girls comes from a home of refinement and has had finishing school training. Many are studying art, dress designing, sculpture and writing. Ruth Martin, for instance, is 20 years old, a globe trotter since the age of 7, and a graduate of Flatbush Private school and Packer Institute for Girls. She makes a hobby of needlepoint and has won prizes for some of her original work in that line.

Martha Heverin of Chicago is 24. She attended the Academy of Our Lady and De Paul university.

Katharine Aldridge spends most of her salary in the upkeep of her family estate in Virginia, known as Bladensfield. She is only 19 and is said to possess the perfect oval face.

Olive Cawley's Field Is Color Photography.

Olive Cawley is a society debutante, educated in the Girl's school, Montclair, N. J. Olive goes to bed at 9 every night to keep the face and coloring that have made her the most highly paid color photography model for magazine covers at 18.

Betty Douglas, born in Atlanta, Ga., has lived in Florida, London, Paris, and New York. She is a fur model. She informed us that she has modeled about $15,000,000 worth of furs in her short career. Her hobby is dry point etching.

Ida Vollmer has classic features, is 20, has never been in a night club, is an active member of the Young Woman's Christian association, and studies fashion designing in her spare time. These girls are typical of the whole dozen.

Of the group only three are blondes. The others are brunettes. The "composite" girl they make is 20 years old, a brunette, and weighs 116 pounds. She is 5 feet 8 inches tall and wears a size 6 shoe.

Wanger, the producer of the film, is so convinced that some of the girls may have screen talent, he has instituted a talent school for them under the direction of Harold Clurman of the noted New York Group theater. A special classroom has been put up on the set and the girls are drilled in the rudiments of acting and screen technique. All are under contract to Wanger.

"Sweet Charity" Provides Many an Elaborate Film Set.

Yachts of the most luxurious description, elaborate homes and gardens, exclusive country clubs, all of which never would be available on a strictly cash basis, are made so for use in motion pictures through sweet charity.

The Assistance league of Hollywood, a women's organization composed of society women and the wives of motion picture executives and actors, operates a location bureau which receives the patronage of every studio in Hollywood. Owners of desirable homes and estates and yachts, through the league, rent their properties for use in films, with the agreement that half the rental goes to the league and its charities and half to the pet charity of the owner.

If it were not for this film location bureau studios would be obliged to erect many expensive sets. For instance, the elaborate garden scenes of "It Happened One Night" were made in the Busch gardens of Pasadena.

Following the use of the property, a cleanup crew is turned loose which, in the case of the aforementioned set, come with a hand-size vacuum cleaner to remove the confetti from the garden beds. "Not a hairpin is left awry when our crews finish cleaning up" is the boast of the little lady in charge of this end of the project.

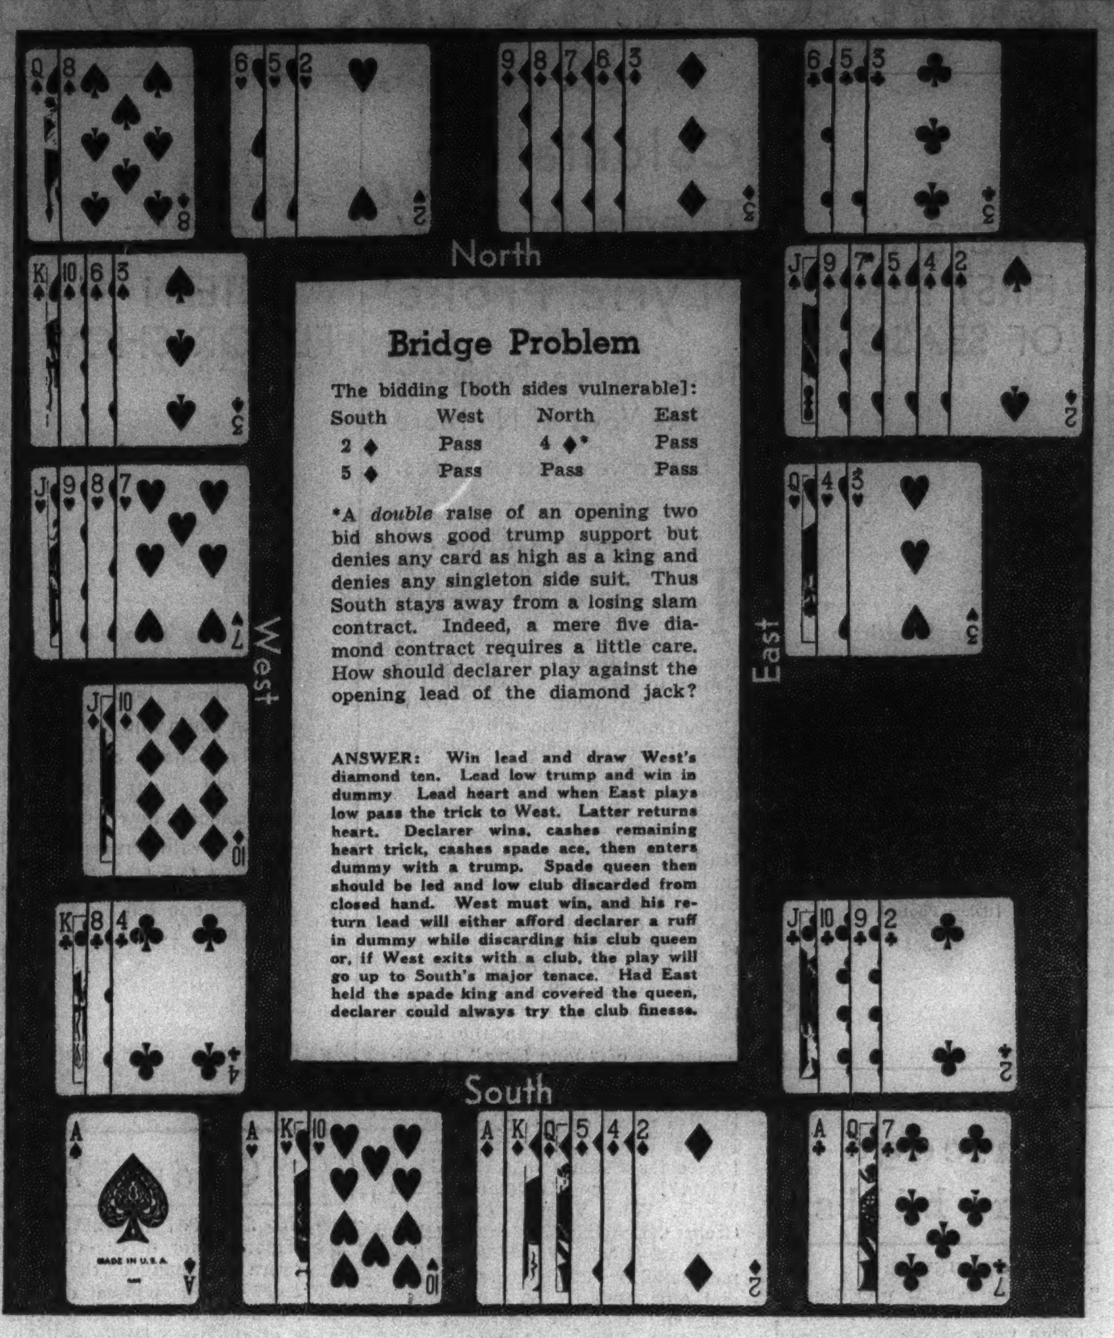
Number of Locations Available Has Increased.

Last year, due to the mutual satisfaction of every one with this splendid way of raising money for Hollywood charities, the number of locations available jumped from 1,500 to 2,000, including homes of every type of architecture, gardens of all kinds, churches, parks, yachts, polo fields, race tracks, beach clubs, golf and shooting clubs, dude ranches, and skyscrapers.

Many "still" photographs, taken from every possible angle, are kept on each location and are carefully filed and classified, so that a director can tell quickly whether the spot is the right one for his particular needs. This is an enormous time saver.

The league operates a day nursery and a girls' club, and does family welware work in Hollywood. An employment bureau, in which many former film stars gain assistance; a used clothing shop, where extras get wardrobes cheaply for film use, and many other allied motion picture assistance ventures are all part of the league's work.

Contract and Jo-Jotte by Culbertson



Bridge Problem

The bidding [both sides vulnerable]:

South	West	North	East
2 ♦	Pass	4 ♦*	Pass
5 ♦	Pass	Pass	Pass

*A double raise of an opening two bid shows good trump support but denies any card as high as a king and denies any singleton side suit. Thus South stays away from a losing slam contract. Indeed, a mere five diamond contract requires a little care. How should declarer play against the opening lead of the diamond jack?

ANSWER: Win lead and draw West's diamond ten. Lead low trump and win in dummy. Lead heart and when East plays low pass the trick to West. Latter returns heart. Declarer wins, cashes remaining heart trick, cashes spade ace, then enters dummy with a trump. Spade queen then should be led and low club discarded from closed hand. West must win, and his return lead will either afford declarer a ruff in dummy while discarding his club queen or, if West exits with a club, the play will go up to South's major tenace. Had East held the spade king and covered the queen, declarer could always try the club finesse.

More No Trump Responses

By Ely Culbertson

(Copyright: 1937: By Ely Culbertson.)

[This is a continuation of the subject discussed last Sunday.]

FROM time immemorial, or, to be less poetical but more specific, for the ten years that contract has been with us, players of all grades, classes, and conditions have wandered disconsolately through the labyrinth of responses to an opening no trump bid. Even in auction days the fiercest arguments raged over the question of whether Wilbur should have taken out Helen's no trump to two spades or whether he should have passed and let her suffer. In contract this question not only grew to mammoth proportions but actually multiplied itself like an ameba—not only was the first response, or lack of response, the subject of bitter wrangling, but fresh problems arose when the bidding went in this fashion:

North	South
2 no trump	?

Of course, poor South was always caught with such a hand as: ♠ K J 7 4 2 ♥ K 4 3 ♦ 8 5 4 2 ♣ 4 Sometimes—perhaps it depended on what he had had for dinner—he would take a bold leap from a mental springboard and chirp, "Three no trump!" in a voice that belied his inner trepidation [he hoped]. Other times—perhaps only as the result of an overdone roast—he would pass in a tone that clearly conveyed, "I warned you once; now you can stew in your own juice." Still other times he would attempt to straddle the proposition by a somewhat subdued "Three spades."

Thus along mathematical lines the poor responder had about one chance in three of hitting the bull's eye. It followed that 66⅔ per cent of the time he was on the receiving end of a verbal barrage from a partner who did not admire his marksmanship.

So it was more in the spirit of an apostle of peace than in that of a bridge professor that I took the no trump bid and its family of responses into my laboratory and subjected them to the most searching analysis. The result was a happy one.

Today no trump bids and their responses, rebids, and further responses have been codified to the point where any player who will take the slight pains to follow these articles, or to read my Gold Book, will be in no doubt as to his proper procedure. In two previous Sunday articles I covered the pass to an opening no trump, the direct raise, the simple takeout, and the forcing takeout. Now let us consider two more types of responses.

THE SIGN-OFF. There exist a number of hands which have no honor strength whatever, or a plus at the most, but which contain a six-card suit. At no trump the suit is practically worthless. At a trump bid it will produce three or four winners. When that suit is bid the first time partner naturally does not know that the hand is blank and may rebid his no trump. The responder would now be in a worse situation than before if it were not for a special convention provided just for this type of hand.

The special convention brought in at this point is called the "sign-off bid." The sign-off is restricted to six-card or longer suits and to bidding situations where the responding hand, having made a suit bid at the level of two, rebids the same suit at the level of three. For example, the following is a sign-off:

Opener	Responder
1 no trump	2 ♠
2 no trump	3 ♠ [sign-off]

After partner's one no trump the responder, if holding any six-card suit, must bid two in that suit. If partner rebids his no trump the responder now signs off with a bid of three in the same suit. I said worthless hand because if the opener rebids and the responder holds a six-card suit headed by a half honor trick there should be a game.

Thus bid two spades over partner's one no trump with ♠ Q J 7 6 3 2 ♥ 4 ♦ 5 3 ♣ 10 9 6 4, and if partner rebids two no trump, bid four spades.

THE JUMP TO GAME. Some hands containing long major suits with six or more cards are too weak in honor tricks for a forcing suit takeout, which may tempt the opener to make a disastrous slam try. Yet a very long suit will develop so many winners that game at a major is probable and the responder cannot take a chance of making the weak response of two in a suit and having the opener pass him out.

The responder should jump to game immediately in his major suit holding:

At least a six-card major suit.

About 1-plus honor trick, but no more than 1½ honor tricks. With more than 1½ honor tricks a forcing takeout could be made.

Unbalanced distribution, unless the suit has at least seven cards.

With a seven-card suit the responder may jump to game with a half honor trick, and with an eight-card suit he needs no honor trick at all. This response is quite a logical one when the count of winners is considered.

♠ Q J 10 9 7 4 3 ♥ 9 ♦ 6 4 2 ♣ 8 5

The spade suit will develop five sure winners, and the opening no trump bid has shown about five winners in the opener's hand. The total is ten, and four spades should be bid at once.

The jump to four in a minor suit should never be made with less than a seven-card suit and usually requires an eight-card minor suit. Even with no outside strength a slam is by no means out of the question if the minor suit is something like A K Q 8 6 5 3 2. Therefore with a suit containing the tops the forcing takeout is preferable to an immediate game bid.

FISHING FOR A REBID. In some cases the responder has no biddable suit, and yet his strength is so delicately balanced that he is placed between two evils—he is not quite strong enough to bid two no trump and yet is too strong to pass one no trump. In such situations the way out is to bid two in an unbiddable four-card minor suit, or, in a pinch, in a major. For example, bid two diamonds over partner's one no trump with ♠ 10 7 3 ♥ J 10 8 ♦ K 10 3 2 ♣ Q 10 7.

Jo-Jotte Pointer

EITHER the declarer or the defender may adopt one of two types of game — the waiting game or the force game.

The waiting game is usually employed by the declarer, because it consists in giving away what losing tricks you have early and waiting until the closing tricks to take in your winning cards. This method of play is designed to give you the last trick and the 10 points that go with it. The declarer uses this type of game because he usually has either the longer or the stronger holding in the trump suit, and if he can wait long enough he will wind up with nothing but winning cards in his hand.

The force game consists in leading a long suit. The opponent will usually have only one or two cards in that suit and must soon begin to use his trumps when it is led. The defender must by force of circumstances use this style of play in most cases, because he begins the hand with inferior trump length and cannot hope to win the last trick unless he can force the declarer to ruff repeatedly early in the play of the hand, thereby evening up the lengths of the opposing trump suits. In addition to these principal styles of play either player is likely to use the throw-in game, which consists in cashing all available high cards and then leading a losing card. This is a method usually valuable when holding a hand which is on the whole weak but contains two or three isolated high cards.

Each Monday in The Daily Tribune Mr. Culbertson writes a bridge article especially for beginners. Articles for more advanced players on other days.

Today's Questions

Question: I opened the bidding with one heart. There was no bidding by opponents. My partner responded with two hearts. What is my correct rebid with ♠ 9 6 3 ♥ A K Q 7 ♦ K J 6 4 ♣ K 6?

Answer: Three diamonds.

Question: Declarer opened the bidding with one heart. What is my correct bid as second hand with ♠ 8 6 4 ♥ 9 5 4 ♦ A K 8 ♣ A Q J 7?

Answer: If vulnerable, pass; if not vulnerable, bid two clubs.

Expert Says Movies Can't Make Actors

THE difference between the art of acting on the stage and the trade of acting for the movies is described by Theresa Helburn, executive director of the Theater Guild, in an article in the North American Review, as follows:

"The art of acting, as we know it in the legitimate theater, cannot be taught or kept alive in pictures. Pictures are a mechanical medium, and acting in pictures is a totally different thing from acting in the theater. I do not mean that there are not great artists in the pictures; that Garbo, for example, is not only a great personality, but a master in her particular craft. Whether she could sustain a performance in the theater is a question that no one could answer except perhaps Garbo herself.

"The difference between acting in the pictures and acting in the theater is like the difference between the making of small pieces of mosaics and the sculpturing of a whole statue. The picture actor is called upon spontaneously to create small fragments as perfectly as possible. A picture is not shot in continuity. Tiny scenes, in an order chosen for practical reasons, are taken separately and registered once and for all. It may be that all the scenes taking place in a single set are shot together, regardless of whether they occur in the beginning or at the end of the story.

"Moreover, each tiny scene is shot many times, developed, and then often the best seconds of each shooting cut and put together to create the illusion of a continuous performance. Should an actor fail at any particular moment, it is easy to continue his voice and focus the camera on his vis-a-vis, or jump to a long shot, or use any number of mechanical devices at the disposal of the director.

"For the pictures are the director's medium, and the camera man's. The creative theater actor is inevitably frustrated in them. There is no chance to build a characterization slowly from the ground up, to round and perfect oneself in the part, to learn the art of projection from the audience for whom you are working. A real artist's performance is never finished. Even through their longest run Lunt and Fontanne are constantly changing and developing their performance. That is why its freshness and spontaneity are always sustained.

"When George M. Cohan was playing with the Guild in "Ah, Wilderness," he frequently did not return to his dressing room even though the wait was a long one. Asked about this, he admitted that he stayed in the wings to gauge the audience, each audience being for him a different entity and requiring a different attack.

The Fortune of Bridget Malone

THE STORY TO DATE

● Bridget Malone, orphaned American heiress, arrives in Paris, fresh from a convent. Mrs. O'Donnell, owner of a mortgaged Irish castle, is Bridget's appointed guardian. Mrs. O'Donnell is renewing a youthful romance with Col. Shane Desmond. Kevin, her nephew, nurses a broken heart. Mrs. O'Donnell has as paying guests two selfish English girls, Violet and Doris Bennett. Near by the Imperator hotel, where Mrs. O'Donnell resides, Madame Bonnechance, the possessor of a fortune in jewels, has her marriage bureau. It is her custom to arrange a successful marriage for her young lovers when she is done with them. She plans to marry off her latest, the doubtful prince, Ivan Bolonsky, to Bridget Malone, and arranges to have the hotel recommend a Mrs. Thompson as chaperon for Bridget. Mrs. Thompson and her husband, a valet at the hotel, are unfortunate hirelings of Madame Bonnechance. Mrs. Thompson unwillingly helps to further a secret romance between Bridget and the prince, for she grows fond of Bridget. She confides in her husband, who gets the police to order a search of the prince's room. Then Mrs. Thompson tips the prince off. In terror he flees to Madame Bonnechance, robs her of her jewels, and strangles her.

Strange Suspicions Stir Kevin O'Donnell as He Listens to the Words of a French Police Official

INSTALMENT IX.

(Copyright: 1937: By Mrs. Belloc Lowndes.)

THREE hours later, in the center of the Empress apartment of the Imperator hotel, stood a round table laid for lunch for five. The Bennetts' smart looking luggage had already been taken down to the courtyard, and they were due to leave by a quarter to one.

Bridget and Kevin were the first to come into the room and, "I feel quite hungry," he exclaimed. "So do I," cried Bridget gayly.

And then Mrs. O'Donnell appeared. She went across to the door of the girls' apartment, which consisted of two bedrooms and a bathroom. "Are you nearly ready?" she called out.

"We won't be more than a few minutes; do begin lunch without us!"

Kevin took up the Paris edition of the Daily Mail and glanced over it, and then suddenly Doris Bennett came into the room, just in time to hear the young man exclaim: "A fearful murder was committed close here last night, and the murderer may have spent the rest of the night here in this hotel!"

Doris cried gayly, "A murder? How exciting!"

She snatched up the paper, "Why it happened in the street behind this very hotel. And O, Kevin! Do you see the murdered woman who had all those marvelous jewels ran a marriage bureau? They say here that she actually arranged a royal alliance—that between a grandson of the late kaiser and the South American girl who is said to have six million pounds."

She went on reading a few lines to herself. "Why, the woman's half-brother may have committed the murder. What horrible people the French are; they have no natural feelings at all."

Bridget said quietly, "I've had quite as much lunch as I want, so may I go upstairs again? I've written a lot of letters this morning for tonight's mail. But all the envelopes are not yet addressed."

"We ought to be off in about twenty minutes; will that give you time, my dear?" asked Mrs. O'Donnell.

"Of course it will—heaps of time."

AS BRIDGET was going across the room to where she had left the letters she had written that morning, she noticed that everything on her dressing table, her brush and comb, two bottles of scent, and various pretty trifles she had bought since her arrival in Paris, were now all placed stiffly in a row.

She walked quickly up to the table and then she felt overwhelmed with a sensation of sharp dismay, for the jewel case in which she kept Prince Bolonsky's letters had disappeared.

She gazed at the spot where it had always stood, hardly believing her eyes, for everything else that had been there when she had left the room at 12 o'clock was still there, though set out in a curious unnatural way. Alone the jewel case was missing.

Turning around, she ran to the door giving on to the corridor, which she had been warned to keep always locked. It was locked now, and as she stood, feeling dismayed and bewildered, there came a knock on the door. Quickly she unlocked it, and Mrs. Thompson walked in, looking mortally ill and pale.

"My husband suddenly feels much better, my dear, so I thought I had better come after all," and she stood looking about her, as if uncertain what to do or say next.

Bridget gazed at her with concern. "You don't look at all well yourself," and after the Englishwoman, trying to smile, answered: "O, I'm all right!" the girl exclaimed. "Something so odd and queer has happened, and I don't quite know what to do about it."

And then it was as if Mrs. Thompson fell into a chair. Everything had turned dark about her, and she thought she was about to faint.

"What is it that has happened?" she murmured.

"My jewel case has disappeared, and I suppose I ought to report it to the hotel people. But I don't want to get the floor maid into trouble. There wasn't anything of real value in it."

Henry Thompson had gone away early, though he was far from being fit for work, and so he had actually been present at the perquisition in the room which had been occupied by the so-called Prince Bolonsky. He had also learned the horrible details of the murder of Madame Bonnechance, and had managed, at about half past ten, to telephone to his wife everything which had happened. This included the grave fact that certain letters, written by a young lady guest of the hotel, had been found among the effects of the man who it was believed by the French police had undoubtedly murdered Madame Bonnechance.

Bridget said eagerly, "If you really feel all right, I'll run down and tell Mrs. O'Donnell that you've come, and that of course I don't now want to go to the Aviation Ground."

The room below was empty, but she knocked on her guardian's bedroom door, and was bidden to come in.

"Mrs. Thompson has just come in to say that her husband is well again, but I fear she has tired herself out nursing him, for she looks awfully ill. I want to take her home and help her this afternoon, for she hasn't got a maid. Surely Doris and Violet won't be offended at my not seeing them off?"

She was looking, as she spoke, anxiously at Mrs. O'Donnell.

The latter smiled broadly. "Of course not; only don't tire yourself out playing maid to that good lady, before your expedition tonight, dear child!"

On her way back to her room she knocked on the door of the girls' apartment. "Good-by," she called out, "and bon voyage!"

Doris called back. "I say, Bridget! If you see the smallest, tiniest chance of our being asked, even for one week, to Castle Mount Clare, mind you chip in and say you'd like to see us again!"

Before she could answer came Kevin's warning voice, "We shall miss your plane if you don't hurry, Doris."

And as Bridget turned around he exclaimed, "Will you be ready by half-past seven this evening? We must have plenty of time for a good dinner before the show, for I noticed you ate very little lunch."

"I had quite enough," and she smiled, showing her pretty white teeth as she did so.

Almost as if she were an automaton and not a living woman, Mrs. Thompson allowed Bridget Malone to take her down through the hotel, and into their taxi. And when they reached the little apartment the unhappy Englishwoman allowed herself to be put to bed.

There she lay, wide awake, pretending to be asleep, while Bridget bustled about, sweeping, dusting, tidying, and about 5 o'clock preparing a dainty tea with which to tempt her weary friend's appetite. It was such a quiet, peaceful and apparently happy afternoon.

That same afternoon was spent in a pleasant fashion by Kevin O'Donnell. After he had seen the girls off, and escorted his aunt back to where Col. Desmond was waiting for her, he made straight for the sports club, and by 6 o'clock he had won six consecutive games of tennis!

He and his partner felt in a high good humor. As the Frenchman's big car raced down the Champs Elysées, he suddenly observed, "I suppose you have read an account of the frightful murder that took place close to the Imperator last night or early this morning?

"One of my cousins has to do with the surete, and he telephoned to me at lunch time, and gave me some interesting details concerning the affair. The poor woman seems to have possessed a king's ransom in the way of jewels; indeed, some people declare she had at least three million francs' worth of diamonds alone! Her half-brother, the man who was at first suspected, declares she had a good deal of money, as well, in her apartment. If he is right, the murderer took that, too.

"And that isn't all. You know she was a famous marriage broker? Well. It appears she had been busy lately trying to find this very man a rich wife, and in the person of a really charming girl. What's more, she nearly succeeded, but my cousin says the girl's name is being kept absolutely secret, as she is a foreigner, and belongs to the aristocracy of her country. So the affair bristles with mystery, and if one may call an arranged marriage of the kind a romance, it bristles with romance."

They were now drawing up in front of the Imperator. "Good-by, old chap. What time may I call for you tomorrow?" he asked.

"I'd better telephone when I know my aunt's plans."

As he was passing through the spacious hall of the hotel, a man came forward from the desk. "The manager would be much obliged if you would spare him a few moments, sir."

The young Irishman felt a touch of annoyance, for he had only just left himself time to have his bath and dress before Bridget, who he had already learned, unlike most women, was very punctual, would be waiting for him. However, he couldn't disregard such a request.

Quickly he was taken along a short passage and shown into a private room, where the manager and a younger Frenchman appeared to be waiting for him.

The manager smiled nervously. "This gentleman has a little business he wishes to transact with you, Mr. O'Donnell," and without waiting for an answer, he left the room.

THE young Frenchman bowed. Then he handed Kevin his card. On the card was written Andre St. Arnauld, and under the name, in French, Secretary of the Prefect of Police.

And then, spoken in excellent English, came the words: "I do not know whether you are yet aware of the painful business which has brought me to this hotel, and compelled me, sir, to ask for your presence."

Kevin O'Donnell stared at him.

"I hope to God that nothing has happened to Mrs. O'Donnell!" he exclaimed, half starting from his chair.

"Calm yourself, sir; your aunt is in perfect health, and so is your cousin."

"My cousin? Whom do you mean?"

"I mean the young lady to whom, we understand, Mrs. O'Donnel is guardian.

Kevin remained silent. He saw no reason to go into the complicated question of Bridget Malone.

"No doubt you are aware that a murder was committed last night close to this hotel, and that the victim, Madame Bonnechance, was a famous marriage broker?"

Kevin bent his head. Of course he was aware of the murder of which all Paris was apparently talking.

"We think we have practically traced the murder to a man who called himself Prince Bolonsky," went on the other. "As a matter of fact, he is a brigand of the worst type, and had already been expelled from this country as a very young man, after he had organized a clever gang of blackmailers during the peace conference. We have yet to discover under whose auspices he came back; however, he certainly attracted the fancy of this unfortunate woman, Lisette Bonnechance. And, further, as was apparently her strange custom, after she had grown weary of him, she busied herself in obtaining for him a rich wife."

The Frenchman went on, speaking very quickly: "That being so, why did he kill her? We can only suppose that she foolishly showed him her collection of jewels, and that overcome by the sight of so much potential wealth, he strangled the poor creature, stole her jewels, a considerable sum of ready money in notes, and then made a clever getaway."

He waited a moment, then said deliberately, "The man must have had extraordinary charm, for he took in every one he came near, including, as you are aware, yourself."

"Myself?"

Kevin leapt up from his chair, and so did the other man.

"I had never even heard of this Prince What's-his-name before you mentioned him! You are making an extraordinary mistake, Monsieur St. Arnauld. I felt sure that this was the case from the moment you handed me your card."

Andre St. Arnauld shook his head, and there came over his face a grim expression. "It's no use denying that you knew that man under the name of Prince Bolonsky, Mr. O'Donnell. We know that you are acquainted with him, and—we are aware of something else of which you may still be in ignorance."

Kevin stared at the Frenchman with a mixture of astonishment and anger. He had always heard that the Paris surete was the most brilliant and successful of the police forces in Europe, and yet now they were making an absurd and most offensive mistake connected with himself.

"I can only repeat that you people are on the wrong track altogether, unless——"

"Yes?" exclaimed the other eagerly.

"Unless this man was a member of the Seine Sports club. I have been out there most days, and I know many of the members to speak to."

"Bolonsky belonged to no club but he lived in this hotel, and it is a fact that one of the young ladies who has been staying with your aunt, Mrs. O'Donnell, was on terms of close friendship with him. Surely you must have come to know him? In fact the half-brother of Madame Bonnechance asserts that Bolonsky and you had become well acquainted."

There shot across Kevin a feeling of acute dismay. Violet and Doris Bennett were the sort of girls who would no doubt have made friends with any attractive stranger. But they always, as they put it, hunted in couples. Also they never rose till close on lunch time, for they liked being out late at night.

True, there were their afternoons to be accounted for. But since they had met some English people they knew, they had been out with them every day. So, scarcely aware of what he was doing he shook his head, and that gesture angered Andre St. Arnauld.

"I beg you to be frank with me! Believe me, it will be better in the long run for the young lady in question. Not only do we possess the letters she wrote to this man, but we managed to make a short search in her bedroom while she was at lunch this morning, and we found that man's letters to her at once, though she had secreted them in a jewel case."

Kevin stared at the speaker, and he even asked himself whether the man before him were sane? After all, though they are for the most part kept out of sight, there are many lunatics in the world.

"As you already know so much," he said quietly, "you are of course aware that the young lady in question left for England today by air?"

Andre St. Arnauld broke into a short laugh. "The two Miss Bennetts left for England early this afternoon, but the young lady who was expecting to become Princess Bolonsky," he allowed a jeering note to come into his voice, "is still in Paris. In fact she entered this hotel half an hour ago."

"Do you mean—can you mean ——?"

Kevin's face had altered; and all at once the Frenchman felt deeply sorry for him. He realized that this young Irishman in very truth had probably never come across Bolonsky, and so was quite unaware of all that had been going on.

"Yes, I regret to tell you that I do mean that the young lady in question is the American heiress, Miss Bridget Malone."

Kevin remained silent. He was overwhelmed with amazement, and yes—vicarious shame.

"Does Mrs. O'Donnell yet know anything of this affair?" he muttered.

"No indeed—and, maybe, never will. Pray do not look like that, Mr. O'Donnell! The young girl in question is very young, only eighteen, I believe, and let me assure you that her letters, as well as his, prove that she had never been with that brigand alone, excepting maybe once, when they seem to have spent a quarter of an hour on the top platform of the Eiffel Tower."

"The Eiffel Tower!"

There rose before Kevin a vivid memory of that unexpected meeting with Mrs. Thompson, Bridget, and a tall, good looking man he had naturally supposed to be a friend of the Englishwoman.

NOW, like most men, he had often heard that most women were double-dealers, and could not be trusted. Yet he had never believed it till his own most unhappy love affair had ended in the disastrous way it had. But now there rose in his heart a feeling of loathing and of horror for Bridget Malone.

No wonder his mind hardly registered what the Frenchman next said. Yet what Andre St. Arnauld told him was plain enough.

"There seems no doubt, from what the half-brother of the marriage broker has admitted, that this Madame Bonnechance made all the arrangements connected with her ex-lover and this American heiress. Also, there is an Englishwoman mixed up in the affair, a woman called Thompson."

Kevin made a restless movement. Why, he had actually liked the look of Mrs. Thompson, and had thought the better of Bridget for being so nice to her!

"Apparently your aunt, without making any serious inquiries about this person, engaged her to chaperon Miss Malone during her stay in Paris. It was with the connivance of this Mrs. Thompson, who was of course the paid creature of Madame Bonnechance, that Bolonsky was able to meet the girl almost every day. If the marriage had taken place, Lisette Bonnechance would have netted a big sum, that is, five per cent on the bride's vast fortune."

"Have you any idea how Miss Malone came in touch with the marriage broker?"

"Well, no, for the half-brother either does not know, or won't tell us. We haven't yet found any note of the date when the girl first called at the marriage bureau. But it must have been very soon after her arrival in Paris."

"But—but how extraordinary! Miss Malone came practically straight from her convent school in America to Paris."

"Madame Bonnechance inserted advertisments at various times in those American newspapers which will take that kind of thing, and it is more than probable that Miss Malone read one of these advertisments and told herself she would like to be a princess! Also, fortunately, no doubt, from the young girl's point of view, the marriage broker's office was close to this hotel. Why, she could have walked there from here in less than five minutes."

"Is that so?" said Kevin dully.

He was visualizing the girl he had seen coming into the sitting room, looking so shy and so young, some three short weeks ago. No doubt she had gone to the marriage bureau the only time she had been left to do a little sight-seeing by herself in the picture galleries of the Louvre. Vaguely he remembered his aunt laughing at Bridget's idea of spending her first afternoon in Paris; and a wave of rage engulfed him, as he remembered how "the child," as Mrs. O'Donnell was fond of calling her, had taken them all in.

"I accept your assurance, Mr. O'Donnell, that you never came across Prince Bolonsky. As a matter of fact, he was staying in the hotel, but I realize now that he was telling a gross lie if he said he had become intimate with yourself through the medium of Mrs. Thompson, who pretended he was a friend of hers. So far we have had to rely entirely on information supplied by the dead woman's brother. Do you suppose your aunt may have met him?"

"I think I can answer for my aunt, as I can for myself, that she has never even heard the name Bolonsky."

"Then Miss Malone never mentioned him to you at all?"

"Never," replied the other, and then he shut his lips tightly together.

THERE came a knock on the door, and a bell boy appeared. He addressed Andre St. Arnauld. "You are wanted, sir, on the telephone."

"May I ask you to wait a few minutes, Mr. O'Donnell? I am certain that my chief wishes to know the result of my talk with you, I shall not be many moments."

Kevin, left alone, felt increasingly full of anxiety, as well as of bewilderment and anger. Though he knew nothing of the French law, it seemed to him certain that unhappy Bridget Malone would be called as a witness, when the man who had strangled Madame Bonnechance was brought to trial. His aunt was not the kind of woman to abandon a girl in distress, however shameless that girl had shown herself to be; and the O'Donnell name would be dragged through the mud in Ireland, America, and France.

He found himself dwelling again and again on the relations between the American heiress and such a woman as he supposed Madame Bonnechance to have been. Then he sighed heavily. He knew very little about girls, but he dimly realized that in spite of all he had now learned, there had been something simple and innocent in this unfortunate girl. He told himself that some vulgar school friend in America, maybe the young married woman she had stayed with in New York for a few days, must have given her the crazy idea of seeking out a woman who arranged grand marriages between foolish rich girls and shady noblemen.

The Frenchman came back into the room. He had been away about ten minutes, but they seemed like an hour to the unfortunate young man waiting for him.

"I've had a serious conversation with my chief, who happens, by the way, to be also my cousin. He wished to tell me that he had been making some inquiries concerning Miss Bridget Malone, and he has apparently been in touch with a distinguished member of our Irish colony in Paris."

"You mean Col. Desmond?"

"Yes, I mean Col. Desmond. And, as a result, the prefect of police has quite made up his mind to save this unfortunate and misguided young girl from the consequences of her mad act in having approached Madame Bonnechance."

"That is very good of him, but I can't see how her name can be kept out of the affair, if the man is ever found and brought to trial."

The other smiled. "We French folk are more humane than are the British and the Americans, especially when a young girl is in question. Also, you do not appreciate, my dear sir, the immense powers of the prefect of police."

Kevin felt a sudden lightening of the spirit. "I am most grateful to your chief," he said in a low tone.

"I think Miss Malone will have reason to be grateful," said the other significantly, "for my cousin has not only authorized me to destroy that brute's letters to this young lady, but he is further willing that I hand to you the poor girl's letters to that monster. Indeed I would like you to glance over them, for they will show you how childish and simple she is, and how little she knows," he smiled, "of what may be called 'the art of love.'"

Kevin took, albeit reluctantly, the wallet Andre St. Arnauld handed to him.

"I would rather not read these letters," he muttered.

The young man looked at him, and his face softened. "I beg you to look at two of them."

As he spoke he took two letters out of their envelopes and handed them to the Irishman. The first ran:

> Dear Prince Bolonsky,
> "It is very kind of you to say you will meet us at the foot of the Eiffel Tower and I will tell Mrs. Thompson that you have asked us to lunch.
> "Yours sincerely,
> "Bridget Malone."

The other letter was dated only the day before:

> "Dear Prince Bolonsky,
> "I am sorry that I cannot do what you wish. I am sure Mrs. O'Donnell would not like me to meet a gentleman alone. We must hope that Mr. Thompson will be better tomorrow.
> "Yours sincerely,
> "Bridget Malone."

In silence he handed back the two letters to the Frenchman. It was true that they were artless productions, and that by no stretch of the imagination could they be described as love letters. And yet nothing, he felt, could ever make him forget that this simple girl had actually sought out a marriage broker in order that she might meet a European nobleman and make a grand marriage.

He came back with a start to hear the other exclaim: "And now, all that remains for me to say is to advise, nay, beg, you to take this young lady away from Paris tomorrow. I fear some of the hotel staf must suspect something of what happened, for both Bolonsky and our foolish young friend used the floor maid as a letter carrier."

It was such a quiet, peaceful, and apparently happy afternoon!

Danish Ways Astonish and Please Writer

By Cousin Eve.

DENMARK Mr. Stauning, prime minister of Denmark, is head of the Socialist government and extraordinarily capable. So I was highly flattered when he invited me to call at Government House and ask him some questions. The date set was July 21 at 11 a. m. Besides being properly pleased I was also a bit terrified, for Stauning is a giant, tall and wide, with an immense beard of which every one speaks. Then, too, there was a snag in the invitation—I must submit in writing beforehand the questions to be asked. There is no subject on earth on which I am so ignorant as Danish politics. So I had to flee suddenly to Sweden, promising to compose my questionnaire and return after a tour. And thus ended my stay at Solyst, with fond farewells to the historic house and its poetical allees of lindens, its rose gardens' scented with old box, and the crows who resented my visits to their cherry trees with angry caws.

In spite of being out of season, we were entertained at numerous smart parties by Danes who were still lingering in their charming houses, and greatly enjoyed their elegant dignity of manner and the beauty of their old tapestries and finely fashioned antique furnishings.

The quaint drinking customs of Denmark, the skaals with bowing and flirtatious eyefuls while toasting with a glass of wine, were ever present. It seemed to me I ate my way through the country. Even after the big dinner parties of many courses and half a dozen wines, there was always the stirrup cup when the entire company, reëntering the dining room at midnight, had sandwiches and cold drinks and heaps of magnificent fruits to choose from. This was served by cheerful butlers and maids who seemed alert and willing even at dawn.

A SMART establishment in the environs of Copenhagen was that of North Winship, counselor of the American legation and chargé d'affaires. Mr. Winship is from Macon, Ga., and is a first cousin of that old beau, Gen. Blanton Winship, now governor of Porto Rico. Mrs. North Winship is a Philadelphian, tall and willowy, with black eyes and ash blonde hair. We had tea with them one sunny afternoon, when big bright clouds frolicked across the sky and were mirrored in the glassy waters of the sound. Their house is a chic place of rose brick with a formal court in a circle of clipped trees and interesting bibelots from over the world. After tea, which we took sitting round the tea table, we spilled out upon the terrace, which, shrouded in tumbling draperies of summer roses, lay flush with the sea.

I like the Winships and hope to meet them again. They are natural, clever, and sophisticated. One night when he sat by me at dinner North Winship, being a Georgian, had much to say of "Gone with the Wind" and developed several ideas which I in chasing through the long book had never noticed. Like many other men, he had his theory, quite novel, as to the ultimate solution of Scarlett's problems.

Mr. Winship presented the new American minister to Denmark, Alvin M. Owsley, to the sovereigns, King Christian X. of Denmark and the queen, at a morning ceremonial. Both Americans donned the white tie and tails for the reception which took place at Amalienbury palace, the town residence of the king. This is a remarkable building divided into four separate parts, in the style of the early 17th century, and circling round a classic public square.

Mr. Owsley is expecting to make Solyst the American embassy, and a more charming place for it could not be.

COPENHAGEN is a sort of gay little Paris. Citizens dash round with a great air of being happy and festive, well dressed and well fed. One day I saw crossing our lawn a smart looking man in gray flannels, who bowed with courtly grace, and it turned out to be the head gardener.

The great restaurants of Copenhagen are marvelous. I went to them all, and each seemed to be more enchanting than the other. There is "Nym," and "Vivex," both of which give on Tivoli, the summer amusement park of Copenhagen. It is hard to describe an atmosphere of well being, especially a restaurant. But both are lovelier than anything in Paris. The food is perfection and it is served by young men who are gentlemen of flawless appearance and manner as well. The music is exceedingly well done, and the orchestra leader does not croon his love ditties, or posture, but plays up to his audience. When our party came in the music was stopped and a potpourri of American airs began at once.

After dinner we strolled out into Tivoli, the world's most gorgeous amusement park. Covering 150 acres, it is a permanent White City, with cafés for every purse, a symphony concert, an outdoor theater for a famous ballet, all outlined artistically in colored lights, and enjoyed for the one price of admission, 15 cents. Tivoli is set in a park of magnificent trees and made more beautiful by parterres of summer flowers. The crowds are orderly, and never does one hear a loud voice. Every young man has a pretty girl clasped under his arm, and there seems to be a lot of public kissing and petting of the decorous Nordic sort.

The audiences sit during the symphonic music in a regular theater, and come and go at will. But for the ballet and pantomime at the Peacock theater they stand, about two thousand strong, out in the open, in a cleared space among the trees. The scene was beautiful and interesting and I stood for an hour and a half, first on one foot, then on the other. Afterward I realized that the show had not been worth it.

Great singers are often heard in concert at Tivoli. The sensation, Erna Berger, sang while I was in Denmark and the world flocked. Younger members of the royal family go to Tivoli, just as the humblest Dane in neat clothes who has the price. There is a Coney Island sector, too, with side shows and scenic railways, also dance floors for every purse. I was terribly impressed with the beauty and style of Tivoli, as well as with good Danish manners. In Denmark nobody is any better than his behavior.

ANOTHER unique show took us a long drive to the outdoor Fruland museum at Lyngby. Such a panorama of rose draped paysage and gay, neat villages all the way! The museum covers a dozen acres and has perhaps a score of peasant cottages with thatched roofs, dating back four hundred years. Each cottage is perfect in its way, with furniture and utensils of its period. The earliest farmhouses had no windows, and light came in through the smoke hole of the roof. Some of the huts were roofed in sod, and goats and sheep grazed safely there in the pasture. The sixteenth century prosperous farmer had cows and horses under his roof, with rafters above the cattle where farm hands dozed. Examples of cottages are from North and South Jutland, Zealand, and Iceland. Householders slept in cupboards, snugly stowed between thick walls, with no ventilation whatever.

Denmark at one time owned England, Iceland, and Scandinavia, and Danish kings did themselves superbly in city palace and gorgeous country castles rising six stories and turreted with no end of battlements and pointed towers and steeply slanted copper roofs. In one of these we found the collection of Danish crown jewels. This is Christiansborg, built by Christian IV., who seems to have been quite a lad. The palace is in Copenhagen, behind high walls, a quaint brick building now used as a museum. This contains souvenirs no end of interesting personages, Dagmar, empress of Russia, and her sister, Alexandra, queen of England, and their forbears. The crown jewels hang in a round glass case and are overpoweringly glorious—santoirs of pearls large as pigeon eggs, rivers of diamonds the size of walnuts, and great parures of emeralds set in diamonds.

The present queen of Denmark, who was a princess of Wecklenburg, is a modest, retiring woman of large stature, who never will wear any of the royal regalia beyond a small string of pearls. But other queens have, and their portraits hang in this room, arrayed in the huge pearls and fabulous brilliants which make resplendent the presence of queens and kings.

SILVER furniture and cabinets of tortoise shell, very special porcelains, and gold and silver dinner services are found in this castle to make the eyes bulge. Really remarkable works of antique arts which, when strewn around the halls and apartments of royal residences, with backgrounds of oriental carpets and tapestries, would transform these immense barnlike palaces into charming homes. Huge porcelain stoves to the ceiling are a feature, too, in each room, some of them quite beautiful.

The Rasmussen family has lived a part of the last twenty years in Denmark, and raising horses in a big way was one of the late Gorm Rasmussen's hobbies. One day I motored over to the farms and stables with the chatelaine to see the prize animals, mostly now in two classes, race horses and Percherons. The trainers and manager of the stables ran the handsome creatures out to be admired, and I was hoping for a glimpse of Attila, the thoroughbred, which won the Swedish Derby by two lengths three days before my arrival.

This race will go down as a test case in the annals of horse racing because the jocky was weighed in after Attila had won, and found to have lost one and a half pounds. So he was disqualified and the second horse got the money. The jocky had run a steeplechase and another race before the Derby and had not been weighed in for the last event. This caused great excitement in Nordic horse circles and in the theaters, too, they had skits on it. One was that the way to win a race in Sweden was to run second. And another that jockies should hereafter take lunch along and eat during the race to prevent loss of calories. Mrs. Rasmussen showed good sportsmanship, thereby increasing her popularity, already wide, for she organized for the Chicago Century of Progress the entire Danish exhibit, which included the lace makers of Zealand and lovely Danish potteries.

I did not see Attila because he was racing that day and already at the track. One morning we left Solyst to visit a pair of famous castles, Fredericksborg and Kronborg, the latter being the home of Hamlet. To fortify ourselves for this stirring matter, we lunched at an old-fashioned country inn at the very gates of Fredericksborg and ate with one eye on white and black swans sailing in the moat which was heavily bordered with willows and aspens. This castle, enormously large, is surrounded by forests where Christian IX. and his courtiers hunted the stag, and by picturesque pieces of water.

WE could hardly tear ourselves away from the divine views from open windows long enough to inspect the acreage of royal portraits down the centuries. Up there in the great hall with its magnificent floor and ceiling, its red velvet thrones at the far end, were huge paintings of the Russian rulers, Alexander III. and Dagmar, the British rulers, Edward VII. and Alexandra, and the king of Greece, all with Danish affiliations.

Late in the afternoon we drove to the deer park and exchanged our two motor cars for two small victorias. Mine had a pair of tiny ponies which tossed their little manes and tails and were off on the loveliest drive ever. The deer park is a royal preserve five miles square, in the center of which is perched a kingly shooting box of the 16th century, two storied and richly contrived of stone and brick. The roads are narrow in the park and the age old trees are beech and oak, great of girth with glorious leafage.

In the grass, grazing among the ferns, are more than three thousand deer. Antlered elks stared placidly at us from the grass where they lay, and shy females turned to their calves which skipped along with the herds. Many Danes ride regularly in the deer park and pay a small fee, as at a riding school.

I met up with one or two Danish customs which were unusual. One day we had tea with a family at a château which had belonged to one of the kings of Greece. Among them was a young engaged couple who were about to start off to Switzerland without any sign of a chaperone. It seems that once a couple of youngsters become engaged the families encourage them to go traveling, and look upon the engagement as being practically a marriage. One naturally inquired "What if the engagement is broken?" "That would be just too bad," was the reply. Another "old Danish" custom is that a lady on entering a salon is taken solemnly around and introduced in turn to all the men. The men, also, are first to bow on the street.

On leaving Denmark, having merely touched the surface of this flowery, happy kingdom, one knew that one had been seeing something akin to the brotherhood of man. And with armfuls of red roses we turned our faces toward Sweden, openminded.

When Chicago Was Young

The Elegant Eighties

By Herma Clark

Letters from Martha Freeman Esmond to her friend Julia Boyd of New York.

Chicago, Nov. 4, 1888.

DEAR JULIA: It seems to me I can't wait for this campaign to be finished, so that our newspapers can print something besides diatribes directed at the two candidates. Aren't you tired of all the noise and recrimination?

Yesterday both great parties held their final rallies here. The Republicans marched in the afternoon, the Democrats in the evening. Will was anxious to compare the enthusiasm of the crowds, so we watched both parades. Will took a room at the Grand Pacific hotel for the afternoon, where in comfort we could see the adherents of Harrison and Morton as they passed in review. The streets were alive with spectators. Will thinks there were 200,000 people along the line of march.

The Board of Trade contingent excited cheers, as its members marched along, dressed in fine suits, silk hats and gloves, and carrying canes. Before this fine looking group a picture of Harrison was borne and a banner which said: "No Vote for England's Candidate," referring to the unfortunate letter of Lord Sackville-West.

The South Water street delegation had an unusual display. Two wagons were driven along. The first was beautifully decorated and was laden with turkeys, prairie chickens, eggs, cheese, and many other kinds of food. This was labeled, "Protection Bill of Fare." The second, which was, of course, the free trade menu, was drawn by a bony, rat tailed nag, and displayed sole lether and a couple of loaves of dry bread.

The surviving members of the first Illinois Tippecanoe club, organized in 1840, were received with marks of favor by the spectators. Of men who had voted for William Henry Harrison, there were 350 marching, I heard. Their gray beards wagged in time with the marching songs, as they shouted their determination to put Ben Harrison in the White House, as they had put his granddad in.

Then, in the evening, we sat on the steps of the William Blair home, on Michigan avenue near Harrison street, to see the Democrats march. We got a bit discouraged at the sight of more human beings, even, than we had seen in the afternoon. Miles and miles of marchers passed us, torches blazing, transparencies shrieking defiance of the Republicans. We heard the yell:

"No, no, no! Don't be afraid.
Tariff reform is not free trade."

And "Grover, Grover! He'll hold over."

Added to the glare of the calcium lights was the brilliance of the bold colored uniforms and bandannas. The Chicago Hussars, commanded by Thomas Lynch Jr., made a striking picture astride their proudly stepping horses. Democratic maidens must have had their heads turned, as they watched the fine figures in white uniforms bound with black, and wearing monstrous black shakos on their heads.

The Board of Trade Democrats chanted:

"A thousand and over
Are marching for Grover."

And we had thought the Board of Trade was quite Republican!

A picturesque group was the Railroad Men's club, carrying red lanterns. A Republican watcher shouted: "Red light for danger!" And a marcher retorted quickly, "Danger for Ben Harrison!" Another called: "No danger. It means the track is cleared for Grover."

The chaff was in the main good natured. I could almost wish President Cleveland might be reëlected when I think his defeat means that beautiful Mrs. Cleveland will retire from the position of first lady, which she has graced so well. The election will be close, Will says. Only a few days now and we shall know.

Lovingly yours,
MARTHA FREEMAN ESMOND.

FOOTNOTES.

Many letters have come to the column this week in answer to the query suggested by T. F. D.: "What apartment building stood at the northwest corner of Michigan avenue and Van Buren street in the eighties?" Owing to limited space we cannot even mention the names of all who answered correctly. Richard E. Schmidt, whose profession of architect brings him in touch with Chicago buildings, past and present, writes: "The apartment building that stood on the northwest corner of Michigan avenue and Van Buren street in the eighties was the Beaurivage. Access to the apartment house was had by way of the court, into which horse drawn vehicles were driven, over the Michigan avenue sidewalk. Now that three of the buildings that stood in that block, the Leland hotel, the Richelieu, and the Beaurivage, have been recalled in your column, permit me to add that the six story Masury apartment stood next the Beaurivage, and a two story brick building stood between the latter and the Richelieu. The first floor was occupied by the Chicago Bicycle club [organized 1878], and the Chicago Yacht club had quarters on the second floor."

T. F. D.'s other query concerned the site of the Auditorium. Many readers sent the correct answer to this question, too. A skating rink occupied this corner in the eighties. It had, say correspondents, an asphalt floor, leaving something to be desired in the way of pleasure for the skater. Smooth maple floors came in the nineties.

Who can answer this question, suggested by a reader: "What was the name of the large brownstone front house at the southwest corner of Michigan avenue and Harrison street, where lived many of the popular bachelors of the elegant eighties?"

We are glad to have suggestions for this series of queries. Address Herma Clark, care Chicago Tribune.

Garden Club Gives Exhibit at Littleton

WHITE MOUNTAINS, N. H. Outstanding at the annual flower show of the White Mountain Garden club, held at Littleton on Thursday in the barn on Harris A. Kahler's estate, were the exhibits of Mrs. John G. M. Glessner and her family, of the Ledges and the Rocks, Littleton. Mrs. Glessner's flowers, vegetables, and fruit are famous. Mrs. Glessner and members of her house party at the Ledges were among those attending the show, an affair at which only members of the club exhibited.

Mr. and Mrs. Max Oberndorfer of Chicago, who are guests at the Rocks of Mrs. Glessner Lee, gave a program on Monday evening called "Our Own Music," and arranged by Mrs. Oberndorfer. It was presented at the Boy and Girl Scout rooms in the Littleton community building. Mr. Oberndorfer played his own compositions, including "Bucking Broncho" and "Negro Dance," while his wife gave a talk on the development of music from earliest times to the present day, also giving reminiscences of famous artists. Many of the summer colonists attended.

ANOTHER event which engages the interest of summer visitors is the annual benefit for the Littleton hospital, this one arranged for Aug. 20 by the women's auxiliary board, of which Mrs. Glessner is a member.

Miss Cornelia Otis Skinner is giving a program of her famous monologs at the Opera house, Littleton, that evening and the proceeds, it is hoped, will be sufficient to electrify the elevator at the hospital, which serves a large outlying summer community. Miss Emily Glessner, who has lately been a patient there, is convalescing satisfactorily.

Robert W. Edge, who, with Mrs. Edge, is spending the summer at the Giessner estate, is assisting in arranging a tennis tournament to be held this week-end at the Profile Golf club. A buffet luncheon will be served at midday by a group of hostesses, Mrs. Edge among them.

Mrs. O. C. Harn of Chicago has returned for an annual visit to the Mountain View, Whitefield. On one of her visits there recently she gave a program of 18th century songs, dressed in a costume of that period.

MR. AND MRS. FLETCHER M. DURBIN of Chicago are at the Mount Washington hotel, Bretton Woods, scene of many social activities. The dedication by R. Foster Reynolds of the beautiful new outdoor swimming pool was attended by many Chicago visitors in the mountains. Mr. and Mrs. Chandler N. Roth of Chicago, with Mrs. F. M. Kosch and Miss Emily Kosch, and Mr. and Mrs. F. Thomas Morris of Winnetka are there.

Mrs. R. F. Dobbins and Miss Dobbins of Champaign are at Peckett's on Sugar hill for a few days. Several hundred congregated there Tuesday evening to see the only performance of the new Jitney Players of New York. The audience was seated in ancient sleighs, pungs, tallyho coaches and other old time vehicles to see the smashing melodrama, "Lady Audley's Secret." Miss Ethel Barrymore Colt played Alicia, and much interest in her appearance was shown because of her many friends in the cottage colony. Mr. and Mrs. Colin M. Tennant of Chicago had a theater party there. Mr. and Mrs. Ernest C. Poole also had guests.

AT a family reunion at the home of Prof. and Mrs. William James at Chocorua lake, are three sisters, the former Runnells girls of Chicago, Mrs. James, Mrs. Robert I. Jenks of New York, and Mrs. Albert A. Jackson of Philadelphia. Mr. Jackson also was present.

Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Brandt of Hinsdale are at Spalding inn, Whitefield, for a few weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Renee Mathey [Frances Glessner] of Paris, who are spending the summer with Mrs. J. G. M. Glessner, and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Edge, were members of a gathering at the Profile Golf club on Sunday, attending a tea at which Mrs. Ernest Poole was hostess.

Simplicity Is Characteristic of Watch Hill

By India Moffett.

WATCH HILL, R. I.

"Watch Hill and Palm Beach" are the five words that are seen constantly on the windows of the smart but simple shops in the Rhode Island resort which for more than sixty years has been a popular and fashionable Atlantic coast summer resort.

These five words give any one who has visited the Florida resort an idea of the sort of place, or rather, the kind of people who go to Watch Hill, for the two resorts are alike in their inhabitants. Not their native inhabitants, to be sure, but the ones who make these two resorts, and all others as a matter of fact, what they are.

Watch Hill has none of the outward evidences of wealth that Palm Beach has. There everything points to the fact that every one has money, and plenty of it, but in Watch Hill, although everything points to comfort, even luxurious comfort, the simplicity and ruggedness that characterize New England are apparent. There is nothing new except the Beach club, and life moves on today much as it did in the early part of this century, when the tempo of living was slower.

THERE are few new houses and all of those few, except one that is Spanish in style, are built to conform with the predominating style, not beautiful, but solid and substantial like the men who built them. Today those men's children or grandchildren are living in the big villas, or cottages, as their owners modestly call them, or there are new owners, new millionaires whose grandfathers were far from Watch Hill when it first became a fashionable resort.

Watch Hill hasn't always been fashionable, however, for the first summer visitors there boarded in the lighthouse. That was a century ago when there were only about a dozen houses there, those belonging to fishermen. After a while the government felt that the boarders interfered with the keeper's duties and an order was issued that there could be no more paying guests in lighthouses. So in 1840 a hotel was built, the Watch Hill house, a little, long, two story building that stood until a year ago, when it was razed.

Its last location was not its original one, however, for it had been moved in 1871 from the crest of a hill to a place near the chapel to make way for a big hotel that burned down in 1916. Capt. George M. Nash was the proprietor of that early hostelry and old residents still tell of the marvelous lobster dinner he served for twenty-five cents. He had a simple method of bookkeeping, for, with chalk, he marked on their doors how many days his guests stayed.

ONE by one other hotels were built and an old picture of the resort, taken about 1885, shows there were nearly a dozen large hotels on Watch Hill's sandy shore. Summer cottages did not come until later, although Gov. Julius Catlin of Hartford, Conn., had bought a farmhouse on the hill north of the Ocean house in 1872. The house still stands and still is called the Catlin cottage.

Gov. Catlin and another Connecticut governor, James L. Howard, were instrumental in starting the Union chapel, which is a model of Christian unity and which still is a center of Watch Hill life. Catholics and Protestants, white and black, worship there, and for the ten services each summer the trustees, of whom Frank Hibbard of Chicago is one, engage clergymen from several denominations.

Mr. Hibbard and his wife are two of the busiest members of the summer colony, active in all sorts of things. Mrs. Hibbard is chairman of the house committee of the new Beach club which just opened this summer and which was the setting recently for a large party given by two former Chicagoans, the Russell Forgans, who now live in New York. They have the Cedars at Watch Hill for the season. The William H. Mitchells of Lake Forest flew east for the party and then went on to Maine for a visit, returning via the Berkshires, where they visited the Kimball Salisburys in Pittsfield.

THREE of the Chicagoans who occupy prominent places in Watch Hill's summer life are not taking any active part in it this season, two because of illness and one because of absence. Mrs. George R. Nichols Jr. and her sons, Frank and George, were in their house, Sunnycroft, for a short time, but went to Honolulu early in July, planning to return to Watch Hill late in August. Mrs. William J. Chalmers has been ill at Dronley house ever since she and Mr. Chalmers came east, although she was improving when I talked to her last week.

Mrs. De Koven Phelps has been ill, too, most of the summer, and lately suffered a relapse. She is the resort's champion woman golfer and her son, Hubbard, is one of the best among the men, having been the Misquamicut Golf club champion two years ago. He also is one of those often victorious in the sailboat races. His Senorita usually finishes first in the Herreshoff class races.

The Oren E. Tafts have had a home at Watch Hill for years and the junior Edward A. Cudahys have rented The Knoll there for their second season.

TWO Chicago couples, the Robert Foote Halls and the Frank B. Mulfords, recently bought old houses in Mystic, Conn., which is about fourteen miles west of Watch Hill. Both couples plan to spend more and more time at their eastern homes, not giving up Chicago as a place of residence, but staying from early spring until late fall in their charming renovated and modernized old houses on Connecticut's picturesque and rocky shore.

The Mulfords' telephone number is a Mystic one, but their address is Stonington, for they really are in that neighboring village. Both Mystic and Stonington are very old, having been settled before 1650, so they have all the charm and quaintness that are associated with all of New England's old seacoast places. The Halls bought their house last year and so did the Mulfords; both had rented houses in Watch Hill and nearby places for several years before.

Prof. Percy Boynton of the English department of the University of Chicago has a beautiful, large farm in Old Mystic, up the river from Mystic on the sea. There he and Mrs. Boynton and their family spend long summers, Prof. Boynton writing daily in a studio that used to be a barn.

Wilmette Will Entertain Two Yacht Events

By Judith Cass.

YACHT racing fans will find the coming week of especial interest because of two yachting events. The Sheridan Shore Yacht club at Wilmette harbor is holding its annual race week starting today, and continuing through Saturday. The Inland Lakes Yachting association is holding its annual regatta at the Lake Geneva Yacht club starting tomorrow.

The Woman's auxiliary of the Sheridan Shore club has taken over the problem of providing entertainment for the many yachtsmen who will come from Illinois and neighboring states to take part in the daily races. Mrs. Thomas A. Waage is president of the auxiliary; Mrs. William V. Gathany is vice president, and Mrs. Harold H. Elliott is secretary and treasurer.

Mrs. Gordon M. Jones and Mrs. W. Burton Ellis are the heads of the committee that is in charge of the Saturday noon luncheons which are served in the attractive new club building overlooking the harbor. Mrs. William H. Noble and Mrs. Arthur W. Friskey have taken the responsibility of providing Sunday night suppers. Mrs. William Kix-Miller and Mrs. Maxwell Hayford are chairmen of the grounds committee, and Mrs. Clifford Bradbury, Mrs. Howard B. Jones, and Mrs. Samuel Goss are chairmen of the house committee. The house, with its big lounge, spacious porch and sundeck, has been decorated with cheery colors and modern style furniture, and looks quite completed. The grounds about the building are still being landscaped, however.

MORE than 100 yachts from fourteen yacht clubs have been entered in the Lake Geneva event, which will be a social highlight of the summer at the Wisconsin resort. The yachts' owners and crews will be guests of the Lake Geneva Yacht club in homes at the lake and at hotels.

For the entertainment of the visiting skippers, their friends, and the Lake Geneva Yacht club members there will be a dinner-dance Tuesday night at the Lake Geneva Country club. On Wednesday there will be a similar party at the Big Foot Country club.

Both country clubs will share in the Thursday night entertaining. There will be a dinner at the Lake Geneva club for yachtsmen, I. L. Y. A. officers, officials of member clubs, and judges, followed by a dance and presentation of trophies at the Big Foot club.

It is seldom that a midsummer wedding occurs in town, but one is scheduled for this week. Those Chicago friends of Mrs. Milan H. Hulbert and of the Frank Whipple Renwicks of Geneva who are not vacationing will attend the wedding reception next Saturday afternoon of Miss Ethel Hulbert and Frank W. Renwick Jr.

THE ceremony will take place at 2 o'clock in the afternoon at the home of the bride's mother, 555 Stratford place, with only the families present. The reception following at 3 o'clock will be a small one.

The bride will have her younger sister, Miss Adele Hulbert, for her only attendant. George Renwick, brother of the bridegroom, will be best man. Milan H. Hulbert will give his sister in marriage. Following a honeymoon in Bermuda, Mr. Renwick and his bride will be at home after Oct. 1 in North Dearborn parkway.

The approaching nuptials are providing a gay round of entertaining for Miss Hulbert and Mr. Renwick. Among the parties are those to be given by Mr. and Mrs. Phelps Wilder, who are entertaining on Tuesday, and the Edwin Whites, who will give a cocktail party on Thursday.

It is usual for a midsummer wedding to take place in a garden, and the gardens of the beautiful home at 80 Locust road, Winnetka, of Mr. and Mrs. James G. Kellogg will be the setting Wednesday for the marriage of Mrs. Kellogg's niece, Miss Adelaide Criswell, to Gordon Grant of Tampa, Fla.

The Rev. E. Ashley Gerhard of Christ church, Winnetka, will read the ceremony at noon. The bride's only attendant will be her cousin, Miss Paula Kellogg. Kenneth Grant, uncle of the bridegroom, will be best man.

After their wedding Mr. Grant, son of Bruce Grant of Evanston and Mrs. Blanche Grant of Chicago, and his bride will spend a week at the Kellogg summer home in Lakeside, Mich. They will live in Tampa.

Tennis Holds Attention at Harbor Point

HARBOR SPRINGS, MICH.

Tennis still held first place in every one's attention at Harbor Point this week where the Western tournament is being played at the Little Harbor club. Among the many hosts and hostesses who entertained were the LeRoy Kramers, the Howard Vincent O'Briens, the James R. Offields, the Robert W. Hymans, the Frank M. Gordons, the William Wallers, Dr. and Mrs. Frank Pierce, the Charles Renshaws and the William Renshaws, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Fitzmorris, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph E. Otis Jr., Mrs. Robert C. Wheeler, Mrs. Henry G. Barkhausen, Mrs. Robert M. Curtis of Chicago, Mrs. Samuel D. Rowe, and Mrs. George E. Van Hagan of Barrington, the W. C. Scudders of St. Louis and their daughters, Mrs. W. H. Coleman of Indianapolis, and Mrs. Earl Reynolds of Pasadena, the Ralph Rogans and the Cecil Gambles of Cincinnati, the Elmore Ouerbachers of Louisville and her sister, Mrs. T. A. Yawkey of New York, the C. K. Chapins of Grosse Pointe, Mich. and Mrs. Corbell Walbridge and Mrs. S. C. Walbridge of Toledo.

ON Thursday afternoon Mrs. Howard V. O'Brien, Mrs. Robert C. Wheeler, Mrs. Frank Gordon, and Mrs. S. C. Walbridge gave cocktail parties at their homes for the tournament players who later went to the dinner-dance given in their honor at the Little Harbor club. Upon one's arrival the club gave the impression of a scene out of fairyland, with myriads of colored lights in the trees. Gay Chinese lanterns strung everywhere made a picturesque setting for the diners seated at tables bordering the pool while the music wafted across the water from the orchestra inside enticed many dancers in that direction.

The exhibit from the Woman's Exchange of Chicago was held on Thursday and Friday at the home of Mrs. James R. Offield. No setting could be lovelier than this cottage situated on the edge of the bluff overlooking Little Traverse bay. This event is looked forward to eagerly each year by every one as a rendezvous for friends from nearby resorts.

MR. AND MRS. FRANK GORDON have their daughter and son-in-law, the Edmond M. Sullivans, with them, also Mr. and Mrs. John R. Hurley.

Mrs. William L. Hodgkins, who is spending the summer at Charlevoix, has been visiting Mrs. Robert C. Wheeler this week. Mrs. J. Morese Ely dined at the Little Harbor club Sunday, and Wednesday Dr. William Senn brought his guests to the keeno party at the club.

One of the lovely yachts in the harbor this week was the Geromi, whose owner, James S. Kemper was aboard. Mrs. John Stevenson and Mrs. Alfred E. Hamill motored from Charlevoix Monday to play bridge with Mrs. Nelson Barnes and Mrs. Newton I. Perry.

SEA CRUISE ROMANCE

Residents at Ephraim Enjoy Golf Matches

EPHRAIM, WIS.

Summer residents who prefer vacations filled with activity, and particularly those who favor golfing and horseback riding, have been in the limelight in Ephraim during the week.

More than seventy-five amateur golfers participated Monday in the qualifying rounds of the annual Door county championship golf tournament. All matches are being played on the eighteen hole Peninsula Park course. Of the many Chicagoans who qualified, only Bob Bush of Evanston, son of Mr. and Mrs. Chester Bush, reached the semi-finals in the championship class. His opponent, Johnny Brann, 16 year old high school student from Madison, Wis., was runner-up in the tournament of last year.

Chicago was represented in the semi-final flight A competition by Lawrence Wiborg, and in class B by James Weber Linn, who spends each season with Mrs. Linn at the Thorp hotel in Fish Creek.

The driving event, held on Wednesday, was won by young John Brann, second honors going to Dr. Harvey H. Mudd of St. Louis and Ephraim.

ALTHOUGH Miss Jessica Hambleton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Chalkley J. Hambleton of Chicago and Fish Creek, lost her early matches in the women's division of the tournament, she won first place for her driving ability.

Both children and grownups were given an opportunity to display their riding technique in the horse show held in Ephraim last Saturday.

The afternoon program began with exhibition riding by children under 6 years of age, who have already selected this as one of their favorite sports.

The junior class competitive group which followed included Diane Wiborg, young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Wiborg, and her cousin, Barbara Trowe, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert R. Trowe. Both Chicago families, with Herbert Trowe Jr., are spending their vacations with Mrs. Chris Clemenson of Chicago and Ephraim, mother of Mrs. Wiborg and Mrs. Trowe.

Miss Vernette Kehe of Des Plaines and Miss Mary Agnew of River Forest, both guests at Eagle inn, with their mounts won honors in the senior group. Mrs. George Niekamp, St. Louis equestrienne, received the applause of the spectators at the close of the show when she exhibited Tony, a five gaited horse.

A HIGHLIGHT in entertainment for the coming week will be a travelogue lecture at the Ephraim village hall on Wednesday evening by C. E. Haterius of St. Joseph, Mich., a former war correspondent. The travelogue is entitled "The Land of the Vikings," and depicts the life of today in the Scandinavian countries.

Mr. and Mrs. Haterius were recent guests of the official agencies of the Scandinavian governments while they studied the coöperative social and cultural methods of Norway and Sweden. The program will be presented as an actual trip abroad by the audience. Included in the 3,000 feet of plain and color film that will be shown is a complete movie of the royal wedding at Stockholm of the Danish Crown Prince Frederick and the Swedish Princess Ingrid. Another interesting episode in color film is the famed midsummer festival in Darlecarlia, Sweden. The entertainment is being sponsored by the Luther league organization of the Bethany Lutheran church in Ephraim.

Please give me a brief description of Grand Teton National park. D. S.

Approximately 150 square miles in area, the park lies south of Yellowstone and close to the western border of Wyoming. The greater part of the Teton mountains lies within this playground. Most travelers agree that the rugged beauty of the Tetons is not surpassed by that of any other mountain range in the world. The Grand Teton, 13,766 feet high, rises 7,000 feet above the surrounding country. The park itself was not created until 1929. It is open the year round, although heavy snows occasionally block the highways in the winter.

What is the minimum cost of a two weeks' tour by rail from Chicago to the Pacific coast and return, with both the southwest and the Canadian Rockies included? C. R. E.

About $165.

How long does the season at Charlevoix, Mich., last? W. B.

Until late in September.

Meaning "the gilded one," it was the name of a chief of the region on the shores of Lake Maracaibo, Venezuela, and not, as is generally supposed, the name of a country or part of a country.

GOING SOMEWHERE?

BETTERING by nearly two hours the record she established last March for the fastest eastbound crossing of the North Atlantic, the Normandie Sunday night passed Bishop's Rock after covering the 2,936 miles from Ambrose lightship in 3 days 22 hours 7 minutes. Her average speed was 31.20 knots. In setting the new mark the superliner became the first ship to have made both the eastbound and westbound voyages in less than four days.

An increase of 31.68 per cent in passenger trafic for the first six months over the corresponding period of 1936 was announced last week by Henri Morin de Linclays, French line general manager for the United States and Canada. On its June 30 sailing the Normandie carried 788 passengers in cabin class—an all-time record for the company, and a record for all lines since the beginning of the depression.

Great Lakes cruises over Labor day will be operated by all the lines, climaxing a highly successful summer season. A statement from one of the lines last week said: "Medical men relate that there is a peculiar sedative effect, followed by a rejuvenation, in being on the lakes. Nerve specialists say the green shore line and the blue sky and water relax the eye nerves and the mind, and the other taut nerves follow suit. They become unkinked, as it were, and well and normal again."

United Air Lines is organizing a flight to Denver for the dedication of the Will Rogers Shrine of the Sun. The ceremony will take place the first week in September on Cheyenne mountain.

Cunard-White Star line offices and agencies throughout the United States last week became the sales representatives for Imperial Airways, Ltd., in the new service between New York and Bermuda. The trip is made in five hours.

After opening the season early in the spring with four trips a day to Mackinaw City and St. Ignace, the Mackinac Island ferry service at present is being operated on a 15 minute schedule of arrivals and departures. Power cruisers and speed boats have augmented the service of the steamers Elva and Algomah.

The Acadian, morning airliner from Chicago to New Orleans, was christened the other day by Miss Dorothy Roy, daughter of the mayor of Lafayette, La., the center of the Acadians' original settlement. Preceding the ceremony, President Carleton Putnam of the Chicago and Southern Air Lines told, at a luncheon in New Orleans, how the name had been chosen in compliment to the people who, more than a century ago, migrated from Nova Scotia to what is now known as the Evangeline country.

Christening the Acadian.

Mr. Carleton announced yesterday that, for the first time in the development of air transportation in the Mississippi valley, three daily schedules would be run each way between Chicago and New Orleans. A new plane, the Rainbow, will be placed in service Sept. 1. It will leave this city at 4 p. m. and reach the southern city at 10:05 p. m. Northbound, it will hop off at 3:30 p. m. and reach here at 9:48. Thus an afternoon schedule will supplement those of the morning Acadian and the evening Cotton King.

Thursday and Friday of this week will see the Hiawatha pageant at Petoskey, Mich. The affair annually draws thousands of visitors. It is presented by a cast of Ottawa Indians.

Last month American Air Lines carried an average of 99 more passengers daily on its Chicago-Detroit-Buffalo-New York run than it averaged on its nation-wide system three years ago. This was announced yesterday by President C. R. Smith.

Jack Irmiter, whose job it is to tell the word about the Chicago and North Western railway, has put out an eight page booklet, "Life on the Challenger," depicting a typical trip on that train from this city to the Pacific coast.

The National Hotel Management company, of which Ralph Hitz is the head, has taken over the 800 room Montclair, at Lexington avenue and 49th street, in New York City, and has renamed it the Belmont Plaza. The company's string of hotels now includes the Congress in Chicago, the New Yorker in New York, the Netherland Plaza in Cincinnati, the Van Cleve in Dayton, the Book-Cadillac in Detroit, the Nicollet in Minneapolis, and the Adolphus in Dallas.

Europe in September is Europe without the crowd. Americans who do not have to be at home for the opening of the schools, says the Institute of Foreign Travel, in recent years have been making their trip in late August, so that they can journey from country to country over there with no uncertainty of getting accommodations at the hotels, and with rail travel in uncrowded trains.

Events this year are as plentiful in September as in August. Picturesquely costumed pilgrimages take place in Poland, and Podolian peasants have a two-week grape and wine festival. Horse races and pardons are held in France. National fairs are listed for England, Germany, and Austria. Medieval processions and open air fêtes are to be given in Italy, and Rome will open its Cæsar Augustus exposition, celebrating 2,000 years of empire. Highland games are to be featured in Scotland.

Elimination of extra fare charges on skysleeper and skyclub planes of Transcontinental and Western Air was announced Friday by John B. Walker, vice president in charge of trafic. "Heavy demand for seats on the new equipment when first introduced required an extra charge, but, with the de luxe type planes now in full operation, we have decided to go back to the regular fares," Mr. Walker explained. The saving on the transcontinental flights and on those between Chicago and New York will amount to about 3 per cent of the fare.

The first organized group of American travelers to visit Spain since the outbreak of the civil war embarked from New York last Wednesday on the Queen Mary for a five weeks' tour, three of which will be spent within the territory controled by the loyalist government.

Several thousand members of the American Legion are planning to sail for Europe following the close of their national convention in New York on Sept. 23 The French liner Champlain, leaving Sept. 25, has been designated the flagship of the "40 and 8." Cunard sailings will include the Laconia, Sept. 24; the Queen Mary, Oct. 6; the Berengaria, Sept. 29; the Samaria, Oct. 1; the Georgic, Oct. 2, and the Scythia, Oct. 9. Charles Kozminski, Chicago manager of the Arnold Bernstein-Red Star line, announced yesterday that a large group of Chicago legionnaires was being organized for a trip on the Konigstein, leaving Sept. 25. Archie M. Benson and Arthur G. Poorman will act as escorts. The return voyages will be on the Pennland, sailing from Antwerp Oct. 16, and the Gerolstein, embarking Oct. 23. The United States lines' American Farmer will sail Sept. 24, and the American Importer the following day.

The Black Hills of South Dakota, a rugged territory as large as New Jersey, contain some of the most enchanting scenery on the continent. Amazing Theft Occurs in the World of Art

By Eleanor Jewett.

IT IS perfectly astounding, the things that succeed in being stolen. Apparently practically nothing is safe. Claude Buck sends us word of a last amazing theft and it seems such an extraordinary affair that, making as it does a good story, it is worth passing on.

Mr. Buck writes: "As a warning to picture buyers who may otherwise be deceived by a fake Titian which probably will be some time soon on the market and that might cost them anywhere from $50,000 to $500,000, I would like to describe the copy of a Titian which I made in Munich and which has recently been stolen, presumably for the purpose of selling it as an original.

"The painting represents Proserpina bidding farewell to Ceres. In composition it is similar to the Titian now in the Art institute loaned by Mr. and Mrs. Worcester. There are two women, about life size, blonde as only Titian could paint blondes, partly draped; a cherub leans over the shoulder of one of the women and in the background is the figure of Pluto with a slave holding up a tray of grapes and other fruit. The nude figures of the women are stunning. The original of this is in the Altapinakothek, Munich.

"I considered my copy of this celebrated Titian one of my most valuable possessions as I spent an entire year in Europe looking for a perfect example of Titian to copy and spent three months in the actual work.

"Whoever took this particular canvas left several other paintings and some rather valuable silver, so I feel firmly convinced the thief either took this with the idea of selling it for an authentic Titian or to use it in the manufacture of other fake Titians. If a Titian should come on the market in the next months or years it may be as well to remember the one I have described, for it probably has been stolen with the intention of fooling some one badly."

THE Frederic Mizen Academy of Art, 75 East Wacker drive, reports that in a recent Chicago competition for a cover design Earl Kline and Irving Kriessberg, students in the school, won second and third prizes. The first prize went to Alvin Palmer of the Art institute school.

The directors of the American Academy of Arts and Letters announce with sorrow the death of the distinguished painter, Walter Gay, in Paris this last July. Mr. Gay was famous for his beautiful and delicate interiors. He could paint a room with infinite detail, filling each inch of it with the most exquisite charm. His color was entrancing and during the height of the modernist movement his paintings invariably commanded respect and, more practical, perhaps, high prices.

A remarkable collection of original cartoons drawn during the civil war period is on view this summer in the club woman's bureau, Mandel Brothers. The cartoons depict the current thoughts of the day on the subject of slavery and illustrate with barbed wit the political conditions that existed then. A large number of Currier & Ives prints are in the exhibit.

A companion exhibit to this in the club woman's bureau is that of dog portraits by Ole P. Larsen. Mr. Larsen grew up near Manistee, Mich., and was always fond of animals. He has owned and trained dogs and horses. For a time he was a riding instructor. His training as an artist was acquired at the Chicago Academy of Fine Arts and in the school of the Art institute. He paints both the western range pony and the gaited bridle path saddle horse with skill and decision.

An exhibition of water colors by Mrs. Marion Vest Fors, who recently completed a set of murals for Marshall college at Huntington, W. Va., has created a great deal of favorable discussion in Chicago university circles, where it was held the last of July. Mrs. Fors' husband, Juan C. Fors, is a graduate student in the romance language department of the university.

One of the best known exhibitors in the photographic salon at the Art institute is Dr. Max Thorek, whose beautiful "Helen of Troy" won the champion shield and the challenge cup at the New Zealand International Salon of Photography.

By the way, for those who enjoy "turf art" there are many stunning examples of it on the walls of the Post and Paddock club at Arlington Park. So says Magda West.

An exhibit of water colors by Charles G. Blake may be seen in the Tudor gallery, Chicago Woman's club, through August. Mr. Blake does not pretend to be a professional painter, but he comes very near to losing his amateur standing in several of these brisk, well designed and admirably handled water colors. The simplicity of his pattern comes as a repeated delight.

Carl Werntz, president of the Chicago Academy of Art, has an exhibit in the Charles Ratton Gallery of Primitive Art in Paris, lasting until Aug. 12. Mr. Werntz is showing portrait sketches of African chiefs and their subjects, sketches which were done in French Equatorial Africa, Ivory Coast, Belgian Congo, and Nigeria on a recent journey through that little known country.

Frances Foy is showing a group of portraits at the Art institute this summer. Although we have seen this attractive young hero before, the charm of his pose does not lessen through familiarity. Among Miss Foy's many attractive canvases, "Adventure" holds its own superlatively well.

Beverly Area Made Gay by Dances, Races

BEVERLY, MASS.

For Chicago sojourners on the North Shore the last week has been the gayest of the season with the usual rounds of luncheons, dinner parties, and dances, enlivened by sport attractions.

This has been race week at Marblehead and with wonderful weather most of the time. The entry lists were the largest since 1929, when the stock market collapse hit yatching and there were few craft in commission for the years following until the last two seasons. Three of the Marblehead clubs join for race week, the Eastern, the oldest, the Corinthian, much younger, and the Boston Yatch club, which maintains a station at Marblehead.

Those who come from Chicago, if interested, will find the clubs, especially the Corinthian, offering the best views of the races. The Eastern offers the opportunity to witness the finishes and to hear the guns bark as a signal of victory. This week the entry list for the races reached the 375 mark and today is expected to show a total of 400 craft, all the way from stately schooners to the smart little sailing dories.

NORTH shore beaches are proving more popular than ever. The city has a private beach at Sane street, while the West Beach corporation, made up of all the year around and summer residents, maintains West Beach at Beverly Farms. Every one has heard of the Masconome Beach at Manchester where the "sands sing." It is visited by thousands every week. Magnolia has its own beach and swimming club, while at Gloucester and Rockport fine beaches are found.

Near West Beach is Little Misery Island. This island is a little gem, perhaps too barren to suit city dwellers, but a suitable camping ground for many. Only a channel separates Big and Little Misery Islands. Before the world war started there was a government air base on the island. A club house cost $250,000. Everything was done to make the property one of the best known and highly favored on the New England coast, but social life there became but a memory after 1929. Since that time the state of Massachusetts has taken over several acres which will be maintained as a bird sanctuary.

Mrs. Albert J. Beveridge of Indianapolis and Selwood, Beverly Farms, is giving a coming out party for Miss Evelyn Lily, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Clay Bartlett of Chicago and White Court, Beverly. Miss Lily is to have other parties in her honor this autumn. Her presentation to Indianapolis society was at a dinner dance given by her uncle, Eli Lily.

Mrs. Barrett Wendell Jr. has returned to her Chicago home after a visit with friends in the Myopia district in Hamilton.

ALL of the north shore colonies were represented at the annual ball of the Rockport Art association in Town Hall. It was Friday, the 13th, but this had no effect on the success of the affair. Haitian voodooism was the theme of the ball and some of the voodooism would have been regarded as rather daring even in Haiti. As usual there were guests from many distant cities. The ball is fast taking a place with the art affairs at Provincetown and other shore summer resorts.

Benefiting the North Shore Boy Scout council a costume dance was given at the Essex county club in Manchester last night. Social leaders joined in making the affair a success to help along the good work of the scouts.

Chicagoans found much to interest them yesterday and again today at the annual midsummer show of the North Shore Horticultural society, held in Manchester. Mrs. Harold G. Cutler of Wenham is the president of the society and most of the summer residents are members. All take an active part in making the north shore appealing to summer visitors.

Miss Nancy Leiter of Chicago and Beverly Farms was again among the winners in the yacht races at Marblehead this week.

Chicago Lends Its Talent to Pasadena Life

By Ruth Billheimer.

PASADENA, CAL. At least ten prominent Pasadenans, who came originally from Chicago, are numbered among the 100 members of the Pasadena Community Playhouse association, who, though seldom in the public eye as those who help "make the wheels go round," yet are actively interested "behind the scenes."

Some of them, in addition to their financial and social interest, even help with the costumes. Mrs. Harrison [Alice C. D.] Riley, mother of Mrs. Kenneth Cotton Brown of Evanston, has had many of her own plays presented either in the Playhouse Laboratory theater or in the Playbox [a private theater in the home of Gilmor Brown, who is supervising director of the community enterprise], and one has been produced upon the "big stage" as well.

At the weekly Wednesday morning breakfasts of the Midsummer Drama festival, held over a period of eight weeks each summer for the last three years, as well as at the performances themselves, these loyal supporters may be seen regularly. Mrs. Riley, home from a fortnight with her sister, Mrs. May Serena Wanick of Palo Alto, at Lake Tahoe, was back in time to attend the final breakfast of the current series this week.

Archibald B. Young holds the office of secretary to the association and Mrs. George Ellery Hale, the sister-in-law of Mr. and Mrs. William B. Hale of Mount Pleasant road, Winnetka, is a life member.

Sustaining members include Mrs. Kate Crane-Gartz, Mrs. James A. Culbertson, Pardee Erdman [whose wife is the former Eleanor Donnelly], Dr. and Mrs. Max Farrand, Mrs. John Holbrook Hardin, Dr. Robert A. Millikan, Mrs. Riley, Mrs. W. W. Stephens, and Mr. Young. Others on the list include such widely known persons as Mrs. Henry M. Robinson, Sir H. Montagu Allan of Montreal and Rufus Paine Spalding.

THE guiding light of the breakfasts since their beginning in 1935 is Mrs. Oliver C. Bryant, a woman who spent her girlhood in Chicago and is now well known in California for her interest in educational, social and cultural enterprises. She is remembered in Chicago as Carrie Louise Parsons, daughter of the late Andrew Parsons. She is a cousin of Mrs. Reva Wainwright Watts, now of Chicago.

For many years Mrs. Bryant was a member of the California state board of education and vice president of the state board of charities and correction. On Tuesday morning she will preside at the Pioneer day program at the Hollywood Bowl breakfast, for she was chairman of that enterprise for eight years before coming to head the Playhouse breakfasts.

Another Chicagoan active at the Playhouse is Mrs. Harold E. Shipley and a summer resident of Glendale, Cal., who is on the wardrobe committee and an indefatigable worker. For five years she was in charge of the Little Theater tournament at the Goodman theater, Chicago, and she was formerly a board member for the Chicago Drama league. She reports that Mrs. William J. Whyte, first president of the Uptown Players, is summering here and has attended the festival plays, which tell "The Story of the Great Southwest." Another is Miss Alice Houston of Evanston, a member of the original National Drama league, who is a regular Playhouse goer.

ANNOUNCEMENT was made here yesterday of the engagement of Miss Marjorie Cecilia Gabriel, a native of Chicago and popular Pasadena society girl, to Eugene Graham Mattison Jr. of this city. The news was told at a luncheon in Hotel Vista del Arroyo by the bride-elect's mother, Mrs. Jorie Riach Gabriel of South Pasadena. The wedding will be an event of 1938.

DETOUR

By FREDERIC BABCOCK

BRITTANY claims to have 2,937 saints—more to the square mile than any other section of the globe. . . . And from early spring until early autumn pardons are held throughout that ancient corner of France. . . . But usually the holy man or woman thus honored is unknown to the rest of the world. . . . Among the notable observances is that at Quimper on Aug. 15—today—and the one commemorating the grandmother of Jesus, at Sainte Anne de la Palue on Aug. 29.

As most travelers know, a pardon is a semi-pagan festival of the dead, dating from pre-Christian days. . . . The fête has been transformed by the church, and nowadays as many as 3,000,000 persons witness or participate in the pageantry.

● The pardon of Saint Nicodeme centers attention on the blessing of the cattle of the region. . . . Cows are decorated with ribbons and cockades and are led in the procession, with drums beating and banners flying. . . . The animals are then auctioned by the church beadle, their purchase bringing good luck to the stables where they are taken.

While the May festival of St. Anne d'Auray has become best known to tourists, the festival of the same saint, held on the last Sunday in August at Sainte Anne de la Palue, say most observers, is far more picturesque. . . . The Bretons believe that Saint Anne, the mother of the Virgin Mary, was a Breton by birth who, before the birth of the Virgin, went to Palestine, where she made her home. . . . This Saint Anne is really an early goddess of the sea, but no one thinks of her in that rôle today as the Widows of the Sea—the womenfolk of lost fishermen—form the long procession as they proceed to the church for vesper services. . . . The Goddess of the Sea was an imperious and cruel goddess, but under her new name canticles are sung to her as the one who intervenes in shipwreck or perils on the ocean.

● Many of the visitors in that region are en route to the Pardon of Sainte Anne de la Palue. They are pilgrims with minds filled with adoration and hope for miracles and restorative virtues ascribed to the fountain of the saint. . . . Nowhere else in Brittany does one see such rich costumes. . . . Every peasant who owns one of these costumes carefully preserves it year after year in a special cupboard which is never opened except for the day of the pardon.

The finest is worn by the eldest daughter, in whose dressing all the family takes part, the grandmother giving advice as she works, instructing the girl to walk in the procession with stately steps and dignified mien. . . . The chanting of the litanies, the muffled tapping of the drums, the silken banners carried by the men, make the scene both glittering and medieval.

● While all pardons are chiefly religious in character — coming down from the days when the church gave a special forgiveness for sins—the afternoons and evenings are devoted to feasting, revelry, bonfires, dancing, and family reunions. . . . The only one where dancing is forbidden is that of St. John the Baptist, held near Morlaix. . . . It is considered poor taste to dance at the pardon of a saint who lost his life because of a dancing girl—Salome.

THE VOICE OF THE TRAVELER

ROAMING WITH RAMONA.

NICE, France, July 15.—To the Travel Editor: Here I am sitting in a fourth floor bedroom overlooking the deep blue waters of the Mediterranean. I am expecting my breakfast—chocolate and two rolls with butter and jam—at any minute. I really don't envy you your ham and eggs, because I enjoy the continental breakfast served upstairs. Seems so easy to eat on a tray and look out over the water. So much easier than bothering with a table and a table cloth.

Now that I have breakfasted, I shall tell you briefly of our two weeks trip in France. We have such a pleasant group of Chicago folks with us. The little differences in living in the United States and France have been sources of amusement, rather than reasons for pet peeves. We have got a kick out of leaving our shoes outside our door and receiving a free shoe shine. The absence of tea and coffee at lunch and dinner has been adequately taken care of by a good bottle of wine at 25 cents. We are gaining on the exchange, so that traveling in France is decidedly in our favor.

The weather has been delightful. We have traveled from the north to the south of France. In the north it was cool. At Deauville we had a dip in the channel, but the water was almost too cool. The gardens around Deauville were simply magnificent. Roses everywhere. Trellises, arbors, trees simply covered with great rose vines. The motor trip from Deauville to Lisieux in Normandy was one of great interest, for we saw two or three French villages. Funny things — all the stores in the village seemed familiar, after we had toured the Streets of Paris at our own World's Fair.

The Paris exposition was a disappointment in that it was incomplete. However, the sample was sufficiently attractive to make me want to come back next year to see the fair in its entirety. We had a wonderful view from the Eiffel tower. The tower was open at night, and by paying 15 francs [60 cents] we were able to ascend to the second story. All Paris lay at our feet. Notre Dame, the Arch of Triumph, the Sacred Heart church, the Invalides—all were illuminated with soft flood lights. The lights of the exposition were bright and gay as we looked down on the grounds along the banks of the River Seine.

Paris is always fascinating. Bright lights, broad streets, and handsome monuments offer the tourist much in the way of sightseeing. Places were crowded, and the city seemed to be taking full advantage of the fair to obtain a 100 per cent occupancy of hotels, pensions, and cafés. However, the crowd was good natured and patient. Funny how much patience you acquire in Europe. Everyone is waited on in turn in railway stations, travel bureaus, and banks, and, no matter how important your business is, you must wait.

From Paris we turned south through the chateau country to Lourdes, and I need not tell you that Lourdes is one of the beauty spots of la belle France. The village is situated high in the Pyrenees, which makes it a center of excursions into the mountains. We had a grand trip to Gavarnie, enhanced by our excursion to the snow via a donkey. Our guide asked me to name the animal I was riding on. I said: "In English we say donkey." He laughed, and told me in French that it was peculiar, but both the English and the Americans had the same word for donkey. I said: "But the English and Americans speak the same language." "O, no," he said, "the languages are different." It is our accent which is so puzzling to the foreign guides trying to learn English.

Lourdes was crowded with pilgrims from all parts of the world, participating in the great exercises of devotion to Our Lady of Lourdes. Afternoon and evening candlelight processions are impressive and inspiring. Don't miss Lourdes on your next trip to Europe.

From there we traveled via Toulouse to Marseilles. Such a long train. Travel on the railways in Europe is much greater than at home, for the reason that buses and automobiles are not so prevalent. I enjoy foreign trains. I like the compartments much better than our day coaches. If the compartment is not crowded, it is so easy to stretch out and sleep for an hour or two.

At Marseilles we had a ride in a small motor boat around the harbor. A strong breeze from the Mediterranean gave us more thrills than we wanted, for the waves seemed to be mounting higher and higher, until at last our pilot turned us back into the harbor and stayed close to shore. We had more waves in that half hour than we had had in seven days on the Atlantic. I think the most beautiful view in Europe is to be had at Marseilles from the Church of Notre Dame de la Garde [Our Lady of the Guard]. The church is built on the summit of a high hill, and the view of the Mediterranean, the harbor of Marseilles, and the city itself is something never to be forgotten.

The motor ride from Marseilles to Nice was delightful. The sun was warm, but we enjoyed the scenery. So many wonderful villas. Flowers and shrubs in great profusion of colors. Bathers everywhere, picnic parties, motorists, bicyclists—all on the shores of the great blue sea that separates Europe from Egypt and Palestine.

Nice provided many attractions. Splendid bathing—but, O, for some of our Lake Michigan sand—attractive shops, good cafés and cabarets, and plenty of music and dancing. The city is known as "the queen of the Mediterranean," and I think she deserves her title.

In half an hour we are off for a motor tour to Italy, and so I will leave you with the promise to tell you about that country in my next letter.

RAMONA GIBBONS HAYES.

WE STAND CORRECTED.

Chicago, Aug. 9.—To the Travel Editor: Without being too bold, may I contradict you?

In your highly interesting article about Ghent, in yesterday's "Detour" column, you say the origin of the Beguinages' name is still a mystery.

This order was founded in the twelfth century by a priest name Le Begue, and the word Beguinage is a derivative.

FRANCINE FRERE.

NOT TOO DIFFICULT.

Chicago, Aug. 8.—To the Travel Editor: That list of Cook's agencies, sent in by Edward O'Connor and appearing in today's "Voice of the Traveler," is a difficult one, and interests me.

For some years I have been exchanging correspondence, stamps, and view cards with parties all over the globe. Some of the places mentioned are familiar; others not. Of course, I could cheat and refer to a shipping guide or an atlas. But from memory I can place: Elizabethville [Belgian Congo, Africa], Jassy [important city of Rumania], Katowice [Upper Silesia, Poland, claimed by Germany], Klaipeda [Latvia], Lobito [Portuguese Angola, Africa], Oudjda [French Morocco, Africa], Stolpce [Poland]. Burnley, Arad, Estoril, Gstadd, and Wengen escape me.

If space permitted in your section of THE TRIBUNE, a "Pen Friends" column, such as appears in the weekly overseas edition of the London Mail, would be desirable.

Your department is getting interesting. I always read it. We Americans are densely ignorant about foreign countries.

S. HYMAN.

MAIL FOR SHUT-INS.

Davenport, Ia., Aug. 7.—To the Travel Editor: I would appreciate it if you would put Miss Emma Behing of 209 Division street, Davenport, Ia., on your list to receive mail from travelers. She is confined to her bed, and it would please her immensely. Despite her affliction, she is very cheerful.

MILDRED M. PARKER.

Ottawa, Ill., Aug. 9.—To the Travel Editor: I would appreciate it if you would put the names of Margaret Johnson and Hazel Johnston, in care of the Ottawa sanatorium, on your list to receive mail from travelers. I am sure it would gladden them greatly.

Antietam Battle to Be Re-enacted on September 17

HAGERSTOWN, Md., Aug. 14.—[Special.]—A quarter million visitors are expected in this section Sept. 17 to view reenactment of the Battle of Antietam—called the bloodiest one day's fighting in the history of America.

The director of the mint this week delivered 50,000 half dollars to the Antietam celebration commission. The pieces will be used to commemorate the 75th anniversary of the battle, fought at Sharpsburg, Md., just south of Hagerstown, Sept. 17, 1862.

On this battlefield a Union enfilade met stubborn Confederate resistance, and 5,000 soldiers were dead in less than 30 minutes. In a short while Gen. George B. McClellan, once a student of Gen. Robert E. Lee at West Point, and later commanding the Army of the Potomac, forced Lee from Maryland back into Virginia.

London Muscles in on American Slang

LONDON.—(AP)—Pupils in England's schools are using Americanisms such as "make a getaway," "she's the bees' knees," etc., to the grief of some teachers, the admiration of others.

"Slick Americanisms," said Miss D. N. Glenday of Clifton High school, "meet the children's need and are far more effective. Classical sentences are old-fashioned and somewhat boring."

Other teachers say the trend is ruining the language.

Then there are the compromisers, one of whom said:

"I defy any one to substitute a better word for 'debunk.' On the other hand, I don't think children ought to say to their mothers, 'O. K., baby.'"

Pilgrim Play in Hollywood Hills Draws Throngs

By Edith Weigle.

VISITORS to Los Angeles this summer have a highly unusual experience in store for them.

In the Hollywood hills, in an open air theater, is given the only spectacle of its kind in the country, the Pilgrimage play. It is now in its fifteenth season and is under the direction of Robert G. Vignola, long associated with screen and stage.

Founded by the late Christine Wetherill Stevenson of Philadelphia, this drama is a faithful transcription of the New Testament, covering the life, teachings, and works of Jesus of Nazareth. Six hundred and forty thousand persons have attended 645 performances since it was started.

It is produced by a nonprofit organization. Still on its board of directors is Mrs. Chauncey D. Clark, one of the public spirited citizens of the southwest who was associated with Mrs. Stevenson from the time the play was founded.

The hills which form the theater are remarkably like the hills of Judea, where Jesus lived. Action of the play takes place on a dozen different levels, and illumination transforms the groupings of the play into a series of colorful tableaux that resemble oil paintings. The costumes are all authentic, 1,006 of them having been brought back from the holy land especially for the eleven episodes in which they are used.

The theater's auditorium seats 1,310 and performances are given nightly except Saturday. A cast of 100 depicts the beautiful story, enacted with the simplicity, reverence, and sincerity which have made Europe's Oberammergau play famous. The natural beauty of the hills and the canopy of the night sky, filled with stars, form a perfect backdrop for this ageless drama.

Miami Plans Royal Poinciana Festival

MIAMI, Fla., Aug. 14.—Gardening is taking its place alongside of fishing, swimming, and boating as a major Miami activity, owing to preparations this city is making for its first annual Royal Poinciana festival, scheduled for next summer.

Thousands of poinciana trees are being set out in uniform planting throughout the metropolitan area, following the adoption of their flaming red flower as the symbol of midsummer Miami.

BEG YOUR PARDON

AN Associated Press dispatch in the Travel section on July 25 gave the minimum fare of the Dollar Lines' round the world cruises as "slightly more than $1,000." The figure should have read $888. The dispatch also quoted an agent as saying that twice that amount is needed to pay for side trips and entertainment. Representatives of the Dollar Lines call attention to the fact that the average spent for these extras is not more than $150, and that in connection with the cruises both the American Express company and Thomas Cook & Son offer complete foreign shore programs for $179, first class.

A House of Magic for a World of Make-Believe

By GUY MURCHIE JR.

FROM the outside it looks like an ordinary two-story building. From the inside it looks like a mixture of a doll's palace, King Tut's tomb, a bandana factory, and the ladies' dressing room in the Savoy Royal hotel of Bagdad during carnival week.

● Such is a visitor's first impression of Schmidt's costume and wig shop at 920 North Clark street, Chicago. This extraordinary place is at once factory, apartment house, experimental laboratory, museum, warehouse, display room, dressmaker's shop, and retail store. It was the first building in the United States built especially for a costume business.

● Just inside the entrance are showcases full of magnificent costumes of Indians, costumes of Chinese princesses, suits of armor, gayly colored masks, and wigs. And there is one big case full of the most exquisitely dressed figurines you ever saw, representing famous women of the world during 3,000 years of changing modes of dress.

● In the rear are large storerooms with shelves rising twenty feet high containing boxes of costumes fit to clothe anybody from Hannibal's mess sergeant to a green-eyed goblin out of the Red Fairy Book. Labels jotted down at random read like James Joyce having a nightmare: "Gypsies, Pirates, Shepherdess Hats, Dutch Boys, Jack Frost, Irish, Red Bellhops, Scotch Jackets, Boy Blue, Valentinos, Boy's Uncle Sam, Tan Bloomers, Pilgrims, Egyptian Collars, Assorted Plumes, Juvenile Wise Men (second grade), Trees, King Winter, Donkeys, Golden Pages, Ghosts, Brown Flannel Bear, Brownies, Cats, Cleopatra, Aida . . ."

● Near by is an ironing room, and beside that the factory sewing room, where six power-driven sewing machines daily hum over new getups for women who want to look like Marie Antoinette or for little boys who want to play alligator.

● The founder, owner, and manager of this colorful concern is Minna Moscherosch Schmidt, a keen-eyed, firm-jawed German woman of 71 who, aided by her husband and her son, has run the business since 1894. In her spare time she has studied law and has won a degree of master of laws. She has studied costuming until her reputation as an authority has caused her to be appointed dean of the Schmidt College of Costuming, and she has long been a leader in the cause of uplifting womanhood in every possible way.

● Let her tell briefly in her own words how she got into the spectacular business of being a costumer:

● "My love for costumes dates back to 1870, when, at the age of four years, I could

There is a seasonal shift in the public taste for costumes. Colonial costumes are popular around Washington's birthday. White wigs always are most in demand.

Storeroom shelves rising twenty feet high contain boxes of costumes fit to clothe anybody from Hannibal's mess sergeant to a green-eyed goblin out of the Red Fairy Book.

Power-driven sewing machines daily hum over new getups for women who want to look like Marie Antoinette or for little boys who want to play alligator. Mrs. Minna Schmidt, founder of the costume shop that is the subject of the accompanying article, used to operate a sewing machine herself.

A young woman poses in one of Mrs. Schmidt's quaint costumes which recalls the fashions in vogue in this country and abroad during the late seventies and early eighties.

Exquisitely dressed figurines in the Schmidt costume shop represent famous women of the world during 3,000 years of changing modes of dress. These tiny figures are assembled, costumed, and supplied with appropriate wigs by the shop's experts in such lines. When completed they are placed in a large showcase.

Senoritas of Cinema—Fire for the Films

Hollywood's Spanish Touch

FATHER JUAN CRESPI, a Spanish priest, looked upon the Indian village of Yangna and decided it should have another name. That was 168 years ago this month. He called it Nuestra Señora la Reina de los Angeles, and thus, without knowing it then, founded the city of Los Angeles, a metropolis that today in the minds of millions of movie fans revolves about a highly important civic area known as Hollywood.

The Spaniards held California for quite a spell. Then the Mexicans, who are of Spanish blood, had their turn at ruling California. The acquisition of the territory by Americans ninety years ago meant the beginning of the gradual decline of the Spanish influence there. Of course, the hot tamale vender lingered on, rich folk continued to build sprawling one-story homes after the Spanish fashion, and there was a little bit of old Mexico still left in the center of Los Angeles. But for the most part the half gay, half tragic, and wholly charming touch of old Spain was gone.

Dolores Del Rio, nee Asunsolo, is perhaps the best known of all the senoritas who have been starred in the films.

Known only as Margo, this little Mexican once had the name of Margarita Bolado. Her first big hit was in "Winterset."

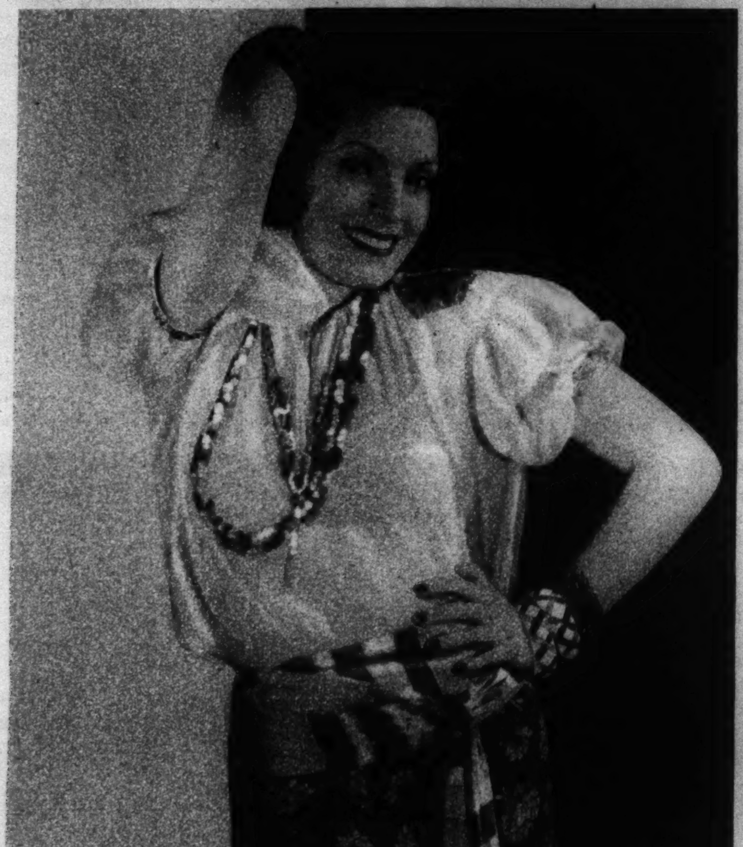
The real name of Raquel Torres is the un-Spanish Paula Osterman.

This is the fiery Lupe Velez, whose matrimonial battles with Johnny Weissmuller have become historic.



Born in San Sebastian, Conchita Montenegro was educated in a French convent in Madrid.

The movies moved west and made Hollywood the world's cinema capital. Then everything there went cosmopolitan. British and Russian play actors, celebrities of stage and screen from the world over, every one with even the faintest interest in moving pictures flocked to this important part of Los Angeles. Even Spain came back to Hollywood!

Jewel-eyed daughters of Spain, Mexico, and other Spanish lands today are highly essential in the production of Hollywood's pictures. They have that fiery temperament so necesary in many rôles. In their faces smolders all the passion of a race long haunted by tragedy. The mists that float above the Cantabrians, the smoke that once poured from Popocatepetl—these still are reflected in fancy in the eyes of the red-lipped Spanish girls.

From time to time various señoritas from Mexico, Spain, and other Spanish-speaking countries have played rôles in the films produced in Hollywood. The young women pictured on this page are among those perhaps best known right now. Take Dolores Del Rio, for example. Although she is not seen so frequently in the films as she was a couple of years ago, she still is definitly an active, first-rate artist. She was born Dolores Asunsolo in Durango, Mexico, thirty years ago, studied in a Mexico City convent as a child, and was taken to Europe at the age of 14 to complete her education. The name Del Rio she acquired as the result of an early marriage. Her present husband is Cedric Gibbons. Señorita Dolores entered pictures as a lark, appearing in the rôle of a siren in a play called "Joanna." That was back in 1925, when she was only 18 years old. She was seen this year in "The Devil's Playground."

Like Miss Del Rio, Margo, an actress and dancer of the films, is a native of Mexico. She was born in Mexico City twenty years ago, and her real name is Margarita Bolado. At 11 she made her stage debut with a stock company in Los Angeles and a year later was dancing in the movie "In Gay Madrid." Last season she was seen in "Winterset" and "Lost Horizon."

To Hollywood from Madrid, Spain, where she was born in 1910, came Rosita Moreno. She came by way of Buenos Aires, however, where she made her professional debut as a child of 8, and by way of the American vaudeville stage, upon which she was dancing professionally at the age of 15. Among important rôles played by her were the feminine lead opposite Richard Arlen in "The Santa Fe Trail" and with Clara Bow in "Her Wedding Night." One of her latest rôles was in "The House of a Thousand Candles."

Raquel Torres is another movie actress who was born in Mexico, the place of her birth being Hermosillo, Sonora. She will be 29 years old next November, and she is married to Stephen Ames. Her real name, by the way, is Paula Osterman, which doesn't sound very Spanish. Her first picture was "White Shadows in the South Seas." She has a long list of rôles to her credit, including one in "The Bridge of San Luis Rey."

Conchita Montenegro is Spanish by blood and birth. She was born in San Sebastian in 1912 and educated in a French convent in Madrid. "The Cisco Kid," "The Gay Caballero," and "Hell in the Heavens" are among pictures in which she has appeared.

Relatively new to the films is Movita Castenada, who appeared in the rôle of a South Sea Island girl in "Mutiny on the Bounty," and who has a similar rôle in the new production, "The Hurricane." Señorita Castenada, who is generally known as just plain Movita, was born in Nogales, Sonora, Mexico.

Of all the present supply of film señoritas, Lupe Velez (full name Gaudalupe Velez De Villalobos) has had perhaps the widest and fullest experience before the camera. She was born in San Luis Potosi, Mexico, in 1910. She was a Wampas baby star in 1928. That was after she had danced in a musical comedy in Mexico City and elsewhere. Since her appearance with Douglas Fairbanks in "The Gaucho" quite a little while ago she has been almost constantly employed in rôles calling for her particular type of acting. Last season she was seen in "Gypsy Melody." Her husband is Johnny Weissmuller, the actor and swimmer.

But these are not the only ones. Here are a few others, at present not so well known, but whose work in the films may carry them to the dizzy heights of stardom in the next few years:

From Mexico—Renée Torres (real name Osterman), Armida Ventrello (known simply as Armida), Mona Rico (real name Maria Enriqueta Valenzuela), Carmen Laroux, Lupita Tovar. Carmen Guerrero, Carmen Samaniego (Ramon Novarro's sister), Virginia Fabregas, Victoria Blanco, Nancy Torres (no relation of Raquel and Renée), Nelly Fernandez, Alma Real, Andrea Palma, Consuelo Franck, Adriana Lamar, and Hilda Moreno.

From Spain—Rita Cansino (name changed to Rita Hayworth), Rosita Diaz, Catalina Barcena, Maria Alba (last name Casajuana), and Luana Alcaniz.

From Argentina—Mona Maris and Berta Singerman.

From Chile—Cristina Montt.

Voice of the Movie Fan

Letters published in this department should be written on one side of the paper. If you wish a personal reply please inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Dear Mae Tinée: In looking over the Graphic Section of The Chicago Sunday Tribune there appeared a picture designated as "Spanky" McFarland. Several of us feel that it is a picture of "Porky," and, being unable to find other pictures of him, we would be pleased to hear from you to remove all doubt.

"SPANKY" McFARLAND

There has been considerable hesitation on our part in writing or thinking that the wrong "cut" was used, yet the resemblance is so much that of "Porky" that we want you to advise us.

Yours very truly, NORA O'DELL.

Editor's note: You're right! By mistake Spanky's name and Porky's picture got wrongly assembled. As yours was one of several worried letters regarding the matter, we're printing it and Spanky's picture in hope that everybody will be happy. Thanks for taking the trouble to write.

Dear Miss Tinée:

Last night I saw a platinum cloud
Away up in the blue,
And memory stirred to happy hours
Under the spell of you.
I smiled a smile and laughed out loud
At the things you used to do,
Then I looked again through misty eyes
And the sky was serenely blue.

JESS.

Editor's note: Lovely!

Dear Miss Tinée: Would you be kind enough to let us know if Kenneth Harlan is dead? If this is so, who were the four men in "Marked Woman" who went to the Club Intimate and were entertained by Mary and her friends. I have a bet on with the girls at the office that one of the three men left who went to the show-up was Kenneth Harlan. They say he died years ago.

Also, about Monroe Owsley. Just read in the paper where he died some time before Harlow. What was the trouble?

Thanking you very much for your information, I am DOROTHEA WILSON.

Editor's note: You win! He's alive! Mr. Harlan has had a number of "bit" parts in pictures recently. He appeared in "Marked Woman." Mr. Owsley died June 8 of a heart attack. You're welcome—and come again!

Dear Miss Tinée:

MY STARS

My favorite star is Janet Gaynor,
Although I admire Louise Rainer;
For Loretta Young my heart has flown,
And reaches out to Simone Simon,
And as for funny Martha Ray,
She's always there to save the day.
And now about my favorite actors
I'll tell you just a couple factors:
Robert Taylor's first of all,
And for him any girl would fall.
Nelson Eddy's on the list—
Not one of his pictures have I missed.

MARIE BARTHIAUME.

Editor's note:
Your poem fills my heart with joy
With its kind words for girl and boy!
And pleased will be actress and actor
To meet up with a nondetractor.

Dear Mae Tinée: It amuses me to note how the youngsters rave over the authenticity of "The Plainsman" and resent "the gibes of our English cousins." Yet our English cousins have a right to gibe. They probably know that historically the picture is absurd.

JEAN ARTHUR
She played role of Calamity Jane.

Merely as a picture to exemplify the popular conception of glorious glamor it may pass, but not for a single instant or in any way should it be taken seriously. The whole works is hooey, absolutely. I am not criticizing actors who have worked under directions and are in the game for the money there is in it. Nevertheless those in the leading rôles come no nearer bringing Wild Bill and Calamity Jane to life than would Punch and Judy.

How the boots in the old Boot Hills must have kicked when the spirits of their owners saw the passing show! In fancy I can hear Bill cursing over the Cooper-Wild Bill draw. Tonkawakan must be grinning in the happy hunting ground. I can hear him gibing at Ole Bill: "Misture, if yo' drew like that, no wonder yo' got shot!"

As for Jane: She probably tucked her pants in her boots and spat: "Wot th' hell, Bill, wot th' hell! Me, I'm glad I'm dead!"

What right have I to rant? Probably none at all. What right have we old-timers to speak or write at all? We should have cashed our chips before such games as this could be invented. There is some consolation in the thought that our English cousins knew and liked us as we were. It seems our children's children will make pretty puppets of us all. We thought we won the west, but now we find the credit goes to Hollywood and Palestine. Yours, COUTEAU GENE.

Editor's note: Write and "rant" all you want to! The column welcomes your interesting comments with open arms.

Dear Miss Tinée: Just a word of agreement with Mrs. Methot. I liked the players in "Banjo on My Knee." They made an effort to make something out of nothing. The story was just no good. I think you fell down on the job when you reviewed this flop. Your judgments are generally the best.

Thanking you for the time,

IREENE GLESSNER.

Editor's note: Thanking YOU!

New York Divorce Laws Breed Perjurers

So Its Citizens Find Freedom in Reno

By WILLIAM FULTON

New York.

ABOUT the time that King Henry VIII. was divorcing, beheading, and marrying queens a new principle of common law arose to prevent a married couple from hoodwinking the courts of the realm. It was called collusion. The periwigged, snuff-pinching judges of those days gradually came to rule that a husband and wife could not put their heads together to obtain a fraudulent divorce.

That venerable item of English common law is springing into prominence in New York today because a majority of the divorces granted in this state are marked by collusion. Fraud and perjury are practiced by the man and wife who want their freedom because the rigid state law allows only one ground for absolute divorce—adultery. New York is the only state in the union which prescribes adultery as the single legal ground for dissolving the marriage bond.

The devious methods which divorce-seekers resort to here in order to circumvent the courts differ from those in vogue in King Henry's day. Then the law on collusion was laid down to prevent a man, whose fancy had lighted on some village wench, from beating his wife into an agreement that she had sinned against him and that therefore he could discard her. Today there's no beating. They just talk about it across the table from each other.

Collusion occurs when a breach of the seventh commandment is faked, for example, in a hotel room, for the purpose of obtaining a decree. Or there may be collusion in annulment when it is sought on the grounds of a trumped-up deception by one of the spouses before marriage. The only other alternative for the hapless New York citizen is migratory divorce—a trip to Reno or some other haven from the storm of domestic strife.

The method most in vogue is the bedroom farce. The husband usually assumes the stigma because the woman shrinks from wearing the scarlet letter. At the time and place agreed upon the wife's witnesses burst into a hotel room and with studied amazement discover the husband in purple pajamas and a nameless blonde (almost always a blonde, although it may be brunette propaganda) in filmy peach negligee. The action is filed. Judges wink at perjured testimony. The decree is granted.

These are undefended actions.

Millicent Rogers, daughter of the oil millionaire, spread her divorces around. She got her first in Paris and second in Reno.

Between 3,000 and 4,000 uncontested divorces will be granted this year in New York City alone. The city recently witnessed the maddest divorce scramble in history, the annual June rush in which hundreds of unhappy mates raced to obtain their decrees before the summer adjournment of the courts.

The last legislature, like its predecessors, closed up shop without liberalizing the divorce law in any particular. The New York statesmen failed to take a leaf from the English parliament, which recently added other grounds than adultery for divorce following a campaign on the part of A. P. Herbert, the British wit and M. P. from Oxford. With telling force Mr. Herbert pointed out that the divorce seeker "must commit either adultery or perjury." At his behest the house wrote new grounds of desertion, cruelty, and incurable insanity into the law.

Prior to Mr. Herbert's one man campaign, many British people who desired divorce were forced to perform a hotel room farce, usually at Brighton, the seashore resort, or perhaps in Paris. It was in a Parisian atelier that Mrs. Wallis Warfield Simpson charged that her husband, Ernest, had been found with a woman. The successful prosecution of that charge led to the divorce which cleared the way for "Wally" to wed the duke of Windsor in the culmination of a romance that fairly shook the foundations of British royalty and the empire.

When New Yorkers can't get together for an American version of the trip to Brighton, annulment is the alternative. Many are the fanciful tales spun about fraud, misrepresentation and duress to be swallowed by the judges. In 1935 there were only a handful of annulments in New York. This year the number will approach 1,000.

But for those who want to be fashionable, Reno is still the mecca for freedom hunters. Approximately half the Reno crop of divorces go to New Yorkers. Reno is the popular spot for the bon ton, the cafe society and the Broadway boys and girls who flit from mate to mate with the greatest of ease. The bright lights of the theatrical world incubate sensational romances that die out shortly and suddenly and conveniently—for the next marriage—in Reno.

Events are conspiring, though, against migratory divorces. Judges are showing a marked tendency to question the legality of the quick out-of-state divorce. And so some spouses are left dangling in a twilight zone of bigamy and free love when they have remarried.

Take a look, for example, at the recent case of Rufus T. Bush, the youthful heir to the Bush Terminal millions who discovered one day that he was the husband of one woman in Missouri and of another in New York. The perplexing situation came about when he married the daughter of a Kansas City motor sales executive after obtaining an Arkansas divorce from his first wife. Mrs. Bush No. 1 brought suit for separation in New York Supreme court on grounds of abandonment, failure to provide, cruelty, inhuman treatment, and affection for another woman. Invalidating the Arkansas decree, the New York court recognized the plaintiff as the only legal Mrs. Bush and allowed the separation and alimony.

More and more these migratory divorces are hinging on the question of residence. A fly by night residence was the moot point involved in the outlawing of a Reno divorce by the Illinois Appellate court, Chicago division, on June 29. This ruling was a distinct shock to many New Yorkers who are poising for a flight to Reno or who have gone there in the past. The action was begun by Mrs. Dorothy F. Jardine, daughter of the late Charles G. Ferguson, wealthy real estate dealer, who sought an annulment of her marriage to Charles F. Jardine, New York accountant. Jardine had previously obtained a Reno divorce.

In her plea for freedom Dorothy maintained that Jardine's six weeks' residence in Reno was not bona fide. Judge Oscar F. Nelson granted the annulment, holding that a month and a half in Reno is not a legal residence and therefore Jardine's decree was a nullity. The appeals court concurred in the view. It was the first ruling of its kind on a Reno divorce.

Yet one New Yorker discovered that the question of residence did not concern her. This was Mrs. Janet Brodsky Bashein who went to Chicago to sue for divorce from her surgeon husband, Hyman, also a New York resident. She charged cruelty on a little known provision of Illinois law that grants a divorce to nonresidents if the act of cruelty occurs in the state. Judge John C. Lewe indicated he would sign the decree.

President Roosevelt saw two of his children go to Nevada for divorces because New York, which he served as governor for two terms, did nothing toward liberalizing its divorce laws. Elliott Roosevelt had been divorced by the former Elizabeth Donner at Minden, Nev., in the summer of 1933. Four days later he married Miss Ruth Josephine Googins of Fort Worth, Tex. Anna Roosevelt Dall, who also went to Minden and obtained a divorce there in 1934 from Curtis B. Dall, is now the wife of John Boettiger, a former Chicago newspaper man.

But for the most part the resident of New York stays at home and makes a travesty of the law when he or she wants to shuffle off a mate. Phony adultery divorces are clicked off daily in the New York borough courts, with Brooklyn leading. Brooklyn has a special court for divorce, a branch of the county Supreme court, known as Special Sessions, Part V.

Special Sessions, Part V, holds forth in a low-ceilinged room on the eleventh floor of the municipal building in Brooklyn. There are no chairs except up front The divorce-seekers, their witnesses, process servers, bustling lawyers, hired detectives and a spectator or two sit on hard benches. The scene resembles a doctor's office with the action speeded many times but without any back number magazines for the patients to read.

Two deputies scurry about the chamber continually, conferring in whispers with the various waiting people. Occasionally a group of three or four will be corralled and herded into the front enclosure. As soon as one case has been heard the next is ready.

The lawyer picks up a typewritten sheet of stereotyped questions, prepared in advance by the clerk, faces the wife on the stand, and as though by rote, begins:

"Were the acts of adultery alleged in the complaint committed with your consent, connivance, privity, or procurement?"

The answer is no. A few more rubber-stamped queries and the wife steps down. A man appears on the witness stand, a friend of the family. He testifies that he knocked at a hotel room door one night and when it opened he saw the scantily clad defendant. In a nearby bed was the inevitable blonde in negligee, pulling the covers over her head. Step down. Next case. Once in a while a second or third witness is called and the lawyer inquires: "If I asked you the same questions would your answers be substantially the same as the previous witness?" an answer in the affirmative and the witness is excused.

Countess Kurt von Haugwitz-Reventlow, the former Barbara Hutton, who cast off the late Prince Alexis Mdivani, of the marrying Mdivanis, in Reno.

It's as simple as that. It takes from three to five minutes to hear one undefended action.

The professional divorce lawyer is as much in evidence in New York as in Reno, more so, in fact, because it is he who obtains the fake co-respondent, hires the detective and other accomplices. There are actually men and women who hire themselves out for an evening as special co-respondents, sometimes called the "bedroom gigolos" and "taxi-divorce girls." The fee is generally twenty-five dollars. They rarely meet their hotel room companions afterward, although there have been instances when the blonde was dated up by a forlorn husband.

In some cases, however, the husband and wife are willing to cook up a case without going through the comedy. This is collusion at its worst. Justice Salvatore A. Cotillo, a veteran on the New York bench, remarked recently that 75 per cent of the undefended actions were collusive. Justice Peter B. Smith went further to declare that there was perjury in every one of the uncontested cases. The New York law states that "a husband or wife cannot contract to alter or dissolve the marriage."

And what of adultery? Adultery is as much a crime in New York as collusion and as much unpunished. For committing adultery one may be sent to jail for not more than 6 months and pay a fine of not more than $250. But one never is.

A sort of back-fire punishment for adultery crept up on the unsuspecting Morris Estrin, an alien who had just taken out his first naturalization papers when he became the defendant in a divorce action. When he applied for his second papers he was denied them in the Federal court although he pleaded that the supposed infidelity did not occur and the whole thing was collusive. The court ruled that he had committed a crime involving moral turpitude.

While there are hundreds every year who will take the same chance that Estrin took, an increasing number of New Yorkers, chained to unsatisfactory mates by the rigid divorce law, are seeking the annulment way out of matrimony.

One of the most celebrated annulment cases of recent months was that of 20 year old Sylvia Sirotta Berney, daughter of a trader in a brokerage firm, who sought freedom from Paul Berney, a theatrical producer. Appearing before the late Judge Paul Bonynge, both swore that they had married on a lark at Mount Kisco, N. Y. Then Sylvia demanded an annulment on the grounds that Paul had overrated his theatrical business, that he had refused to go through with a religious ceremony after the justice of the peace had performed his function, and finally that she was a kissless bride.

Judge Bonynge was more than skeptical. He said:

"Such a recrudescence of religious fervor in the present age tends to tax the credulity of the court. Nor are its doubts allayed by the extraordinary lack of ardor and curiosity manifested by the young benedicts, or the quite exceptional fortitude and virtue displayed by the females of the species.

"Hence, if the plaintiff will submit to a physical examination by a physician to be designated by the court and if his findings corroborate her claim that the marriage never was consummated, the court will defer to his superior wisdom. Otherwise the complaint will be dismissed."

Hannah Williams, Broadway musical comedy star and her husband, Jack Dempsey, former heavyweight champion. Miss Williams went to Reno to divorce Roger Wolff Kahn, son of the New York banker.

Paul and Sylvia were wrathful about that opinion. "I wouldn't let her humiliate herself that way," asserted the young unwanted and unwanting husband. Sylvia hurried off to Carson City, Nev., and was granted an uncontested divorce there on grounds of extreme cruelty. The papers were sealed.

On the other hand 24 year old Joyce Johnson Freeman, a Broadway showgirl, had bounded in and out of court on three different occasions, bagging an annulment each time. Thrice her testimony of being a kissless bride went unchallenged.

The first marriage was annulled because she was a minor. Then in 1929 when her show was playing in Montreal she met and married David L. Johnson. It was not until 1936 that she asked an annulment. There had been drinks and a moon, she told the court. "I didn't mean to marry him and anyway it was never consummated," she said in a teary voice. An interlocutory decree of annulment followed.

On May 21, the night of the day that the decree was granted, there was a bit of a celebration and Joyce wound up at 4:30 a. m. before a preacher at Mount Kisco. She became for the moment Mrs. Charles Freeman, wife of a stock salesman.

"I went to sleep in the car on the way home. Then I went to a hotel by myself. Really, it wasn't legal for me to get married, anyway, because of that interlocutory decree."

This was Joyce's story to Judge Frederick P. Close two

A Business that Caters to Make-Believe

To satisfy that common desire of men and women to pretend to be other than whom they are, the costumer's shop must have on hand at all times an abundant variety of costumes. Tiers of boxes and rows of coat hangers hold these curious wares.

The more grotesque the mask the more fascinating it is to the childish mind. Any time of year may find children buying false faces.

thread a needle. I liked to dress my dolls in lady fashion. Crinolines going out, bustles coming in, were practical on them. My darling grandmother was ever ready to help and encourage me. Afterward I practiced on my brothers and sisters and developed home talent. As I was the oldest of seventeen children, my parents could not assist my fanciful whims. Out into the high school of life I ventured at the age of 14, to Stuttgart and Frankfort, and nursed my yerning for knowledge in their fine libraries, art museums, stage productions, and elegant carnival revelries.

"Arriving in Chicago at the age of 20, engaged as a governess, I found myself ahead of many because I had stored up some useful talents. A friendship that started in Tubingen, an old university city of Germany, caused the prince of my own fairy tale to follow me across the ocean and we were married in Chicago in 1887. Housekeeping and babies delayed my profession, but the Chicago World's Fair in 1893 woke me up. Frail in health, handicapped by family and by money shortage, the start was full of obstacles. My faculty for teaching prompted me to open a dancing school in which I also produced pageants for clubs. In slack summer time I did solo dancing on the vaudeville stage, which revived my strength and endurance and gave me self-earned dollars with which to buy materials for the winter season. I started to make the costumes for my pupils in my own plays in an 8 by 10 foot attic room all alone, forty-three years ago. The antagonistic attitude of the local costumer (I had to rent sometimes) spurred me onward with greater zeal. For thirteen years I paid rent, then I bought a building that I had tested for two years to see whether or not it would warant expansion. Ten years later I bought a corner lot 50 by 150 and erected the first building that was constructed to suit a costume business, with modern ventilation, plenty of show windows, and readily accessible on three sides."

This is where the business is situated today, flourishing as never before under Minna Schmidt's diligent and lively mind—helped along by her 75 year old husband who handles the bookkeeping and secretarial end of the enterprise, and by son Edwin, who has a taste for dramatics, is a make-up expert, and a reliable consultant on Shakespearean characters and minstrelsy. Outside of the immediate family there is Emily Moscherosch, who has been associated with Mrs. Schmidt for thirty years and who is an expert wig maker and authority on headgear of all kinds. The little wigs of the figurines depicting famous women of the world were made by her. Emily's husband, Henry Moscherosch, is Mrs. Schmidt's nephew and has been a general helper in the business for the last five years.

But as you delve deeper into the inner mysteries of this costuming enterprise, you realize more and more that the personality of Minna Schmidt is the only real driving force behind it and without which it would not exist. She not only knows costumes from A plus to Z minus but she knows how to run a business. She knows how costumers must deal with customers in order to make customers deal with costumers—and many a subtle variation of the theme. Her long experience of seasonal shifts in the public taste tells her that colonial costumes are popular around Washington's birthday, civil war uniforms are in demand during the week of Memorial day, Pilgrims, Quakers, and Indians are much sought for Thanksgiving week-end, and at Christmas time biblical costumes are at a premium.

She knows that for the common run of masquerade party peasant costumes are more popular than any other type, being both colorful and practical. Austrian, Swiss, and Black Forest costumes are probably the favorites among all peasant dress. Oriental styles are not in much demand now, having declined considerably since the peak period a few years after the Russo-Japanese war when Madame Butterfly was in full flower. It is the same with western costumes and gold rush get-ups, which have lately gone down in the public favor. Masks, too, once considered an essential part of every masquerade costume, now are the exception, probably because they are too stuffy and cumbersome for the modern trend toward simplicity and the streamline. As for wigs, white wigs are the most popular. "They look more dignified," explains Mrs. Schmidt.

As an example of the direct relationship between the customs of customers and the costumes of costumers, the annual occasion of Twelfthnight, which before the war used to be the cause of such festivity that it was the high point in a costumer's year, now gets practically no recognition at all. The same is true of the big public balls of bygone years, which were once a costumer's constant delight, but which today are so few that they mean nothing to his business—their place being taken in his budget book by the innumerable small parties that are now relatively more popular, and by an endless succession of school, college, and church plays, and historical pageants.

Mrs. Minna M. Schmidt, owner, founder, and manager of a going concern that caters to the world of make-believe.

Unpacking and packing, mending and ironing, and hanging away garments by the hundreds provide the daily routine of the costume shop.

Putting all these bits of experience into her storehouse of wisdom throughout the long years of dealing in golden plumes and wooden shoes and spangled Spanish skirts, Mrs. Schmidt can now pull out a philosophical plum at almost any hour of night or day. Here is her hard earned recipe for success in her chosen profession:

"The greatest factor for success in the costume business is 'Costumes,' good, clean, valuable costumes and in great variety. The same should be said of wigs. The builder or owner of a costume business should put himself or herself second, the business first, until the art of making profit has been mastered. While I was building my business, I refrained from all social ambitions. My living expenses were cut to necessities; so was my personal wardrobe. I never did play cards. In the gay '90s when others rode bicycles I designed costumes, and later when others drove autos, I drove the motor of a sewing machine. Having read of Chinese customs, I adopted one. Instead of buying nonsensical Christmas presents, I paid every bill Christmas week—even the January rent, which left no burdens for the new year. This is the greatest happiness of the owner—no debts—and knowing that even in the slack season he can pay with ease the salaries he has promised."

As to the fullness of life in a costume shop, continues Mrs. Schmidt: "A costume business conducted in a modern way is related to all live wire institutions and is a benefit to the community. The ten commandments, the finest rules of living that have come down the ages to us, are used today amongst eighty-six nations and tribes and they have been in use for more than 3,520 years. If you take 3,420 years of style, multiplied by eighty-six nations and tribes that have lived around this globe, you will have the answer as to how much a successful costumer should know about clothes, plus the things that phantasy and competition will add."

To begin at the beginning—as Mrs. Schmidt had to do when she started the serious study of costumology—what are costumes for anyhow? Why did human beings ever take up the peculiar habit of wearing clothes? Could it have been modesty that first prompted them to drape their loins? "No," says Westermarck, who wrote that famous and exhaustive work called "The History of Human Marriage." "The facts appear to prove that the feeling of shame, far from being the cause of man's covering his body, is, on the contrary, a result of this custom; and that the covering, if not used as a protection from the climate, owes its origin, at least in a great many cases, to the desire of men and women to make themselves mutually attractive."

In demonstration of this idea, authority Charles J. Seymour points out that clothing "almost always tends to accentuate rather than conceal the difference between the sexes." He adds, "There is the evidence of competent observers to show that members of a tribe accustomed to nudity, when made to assume clothing for the first time, exhibit as much confusion as would a European compelled to strip in public."

The earliest dress, then, seems to have been intended as a lure rather than as a protection against modesty or mosquitoes or the weather. The weather, in fact, we are assured by the authorities, has had relatively little to do with clothes except in a few obvious cases, and it is pointed out that the Arabs wear very full robes despite the extreme heat of the desert, while th natives of Terra Del Fuego wear nothing but a single animal skin in the icy wind of their antarctic climate.

Practical considerations, of course, have affected dress in many cases. The women of northern China and Eskimo women wear trousers, which are better suited to their strenuous life than skirts, which have been traditionally worn even by men in the easy-going tropics. In the case of the Scotch Highlanders, the kilt was found to be better suited than pants for walking over wet heather.

And so goes the history of dress and costume, a succession of innumerable and simultaneous variation—some caused by practical considerations of comfort or efficiency, some by superstition and religion, many by simple human vanity and the natural desire to look attractive, and even more by the decrees of royalty and the dictates of merchants. The latter, through the power of their money, according to Mrs. Schmidt, have probably been responsible for more changes in styles than any other single factor, a typical example being the recent sudden popularity of Princess Eugenie hats, which vogue was so ardently promoted by the producers of ostrich plumes.

From the fourth to the tenth centuries while the church virtually ruled the known parts of the western world, the prevailing dress was the sexless garb of the monastery. Corsets were introduced by the merchants of the twelfth century, accepted by the vanity of women of influence and high station, whereupon form began to mean something in dress styles. For many centuries after that the principal changes seem to have come by royal decree and the iconoclastic effects of wars.

In the renaissance period the summit of costliness and elaborateness was reached. Dresses in Queen Elizabeth's time could be made only by years of expert hand work and the ribbons, laces, and jewelry required of a fashionable lady were enough to strain the financial resources of the very wealthiest men—yet, because Elizabeth wished it thus at her court, there was no possible relief from the fashion while she ruled.

Costumer's Shop Place of Mystery

ace of Louis XIV. of France. Louis had beautiful long, curly, blond hair of which he was very proud. One day his courtiers gave a surprise party in his honor, each appearing adorned in a wig resembling the king's magnificent coiffure. But instead of feeling pleased at this intended tribute, Louis was piqued and gave orders that in future no one but himself was to appear in long blond curls and that, if the courtiers wished to wear wigs, they must choose a different color. The courtiers accordingly, not wanting to pick a darker shade for the reason that their natural hair was dark, chose white. And thenceforth the wearing of white powdered wigs became general in Europe, spreading from Versailles to the court of Charles II. in England and from there to America. Under Queen Anne in England wigs reached their climax of development, commonly being worn so long that they covered the back and shoulders, with corkscrew curls even floating down over the chest.

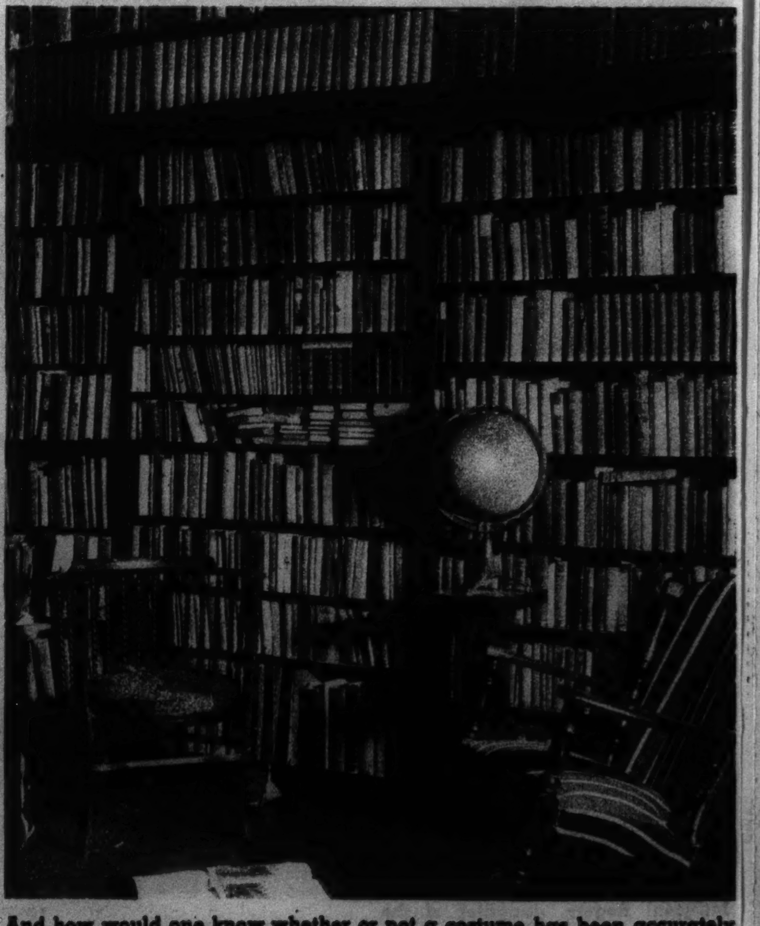
During most of the white wig era men wore knee breeches, a tight fitting garment that clearly revealed the shape of the legs. But when George IV. came to the throne in England, he was so fat that he looked a sight in breeches and it was a problem what to do about it. The solution at last came from Beau Brummel, who proposed that the king should wear long pants. The king accepted Brummel's plan—and the world has been wearing long pants ever since.

Variations in recent years have been inspired by such public idols as Rudolph Valentino, who started a run on "Valentino suits." The "Gibson girl" was created by the imaginative hand of the great illustrator to take living form in the dresses and ways of the girl of the twentieth century. Ziegfeld "glorified" her, modernizing her lines still further.

And so on the fascinating study of costumes through the ages which, in the dynamic mind of Minna Schmidt, is the living force that drives the sewing machines and clicks the scissors and sews the gold buttons on splashy scarlet vests in that rare establishment on Washington square where in a twinkle anybody on earth can become the Great Khan, the Angel Gabriel, or Benjamin Bunny for the asking. As Mrs. Schmidt truly says: "After all, traveling, studying, buying, designing, cutting, constructing, teaching, trimming, and renting costumes are lots of fun and profitable work. They keep one out of mischief. There is not one minute to be wicked."



And how would one know whether or not a costume has been accurately designed to the style of the period intended without a complete library of books on manners, customs, and costumes?

Hairdresses of History on Display

By ELEANOR NANGLE

WHAT is perhaps the most remarkable one-man show in the world is on display in the "Museum of Hair" in Paris. The proprietor is Antoine, the coiffure artist who has done more than any other to make women conscious of the vast difference between a haircut and a hairdress. The gallery is a modernistic marvel of marble and crystal. Each offering is an elaborately executed coiffure depicting the fashions of hairdress down through the ages. And the whole showing is cloaked in more solemnity and artful showmanship than characterizes the most important exhibitions of priceless art.

Antoine is a sculptor who turned hairdresser fifteen or twenty years ago and brought to his craft an appreciation of line that most of his competitors lacked. He also brought showmanship. Antoine was quick to realize the value of being talked about. It was news when he ousted a temperamental duchess from his Paris salon. It was news when he introduced brightly tinted hair. He encouraged the well dressed women of the continent, the most photographed and talked-about group, to be sensationally smart as to coiffure. He launched the fashion of lackering hair bright blue, purple, or green. He saw to it that "coiffure by Antoine" became a continental slogan.

Antoine single-handed did more than any man or woman to bring hairdressing out of the servant classification. He is an artist and insists upon being regarded as one. He has establishments all over the world and from time to time makes what amounts to a grand tour of America and Europe, showing his coiffure creations as dramatically as any couturiere displays her fashion collection.

For years Antoine has been working on his collection of hairdressing models, doing painstaking research and devoting much of his time to study of the art of all periods. He has used human hair, metal, and raffia for his models and has housed his collection in a beautiful little museum in the building where he maintains his magnificent Paris apartment.

The visitor ascends in a lift that can only be compared to a crystal jewel casket—tiny and shiny. At the door of the little showroom she is met by a beautiful young Frenchwoman gowned in a long robe de style of white, who escorts her about. The walls are white, but concealed lights achieve a dozen soft effects in color from time to time. High on the left is a huge silver organ from which come the soft notes of classical music. No one is seated at the organ, but the lights and music change without a break. The workaday world is unbelievably remote in this high-ceilinged room bathed in soft lights and filled with soft music.

There are dozens and dozens of coiffure models, most of them on classic white pedestals. Feminine figures of all ages, women of history, of legend, and of art, are represented. Against one wall is a beautiful head of the Botticelli Venus, her fly-away golden hair a shimmering, brilliant study against the white background. In one corner are half a dozen versions of the coiffures of China, sleek with lacker.

Antoine has even reproduced in lackered raffia the wild head of Medusa, who according to legend had a crowning glory not of hair but of writhing serpents and whose head was credited with the power of changing to stone any one who looked upon it. In the Antoine version straw serpents' heads wreathe her brow and gleaming black braids take on the tortured coiling of countless snakes.

The Empress Josephine coiffure is silver and blue. Antoine, who loves the elaborate, apparently dwelt long and lovingly on the period of the Louises. There are any number of coiffures of this period—the puffed, delicately curled hair in silvery white, many of them further bedecked with tulle, billows of blue plumes and a variety of jeweled ornaments.

What Antoine himself considers one of his best in coiffure reproduction is that of Simonetta, copied with breath-taking fidelity from a tableau in the Musée de Chantilly. The coiffure is of human hair, braided and lackered in a brilliant gold, interspersed with strands of gleaming pearls. The sculptured bust is beautifully modeled.

The hairdresses of the Greek period are classically simple in line, in many cases effectively ornamented with crystal beads and severe gold bands. The Egyptians are well represented. To achieve his effects Antoine has made artful use of metals, jewels, feathers, fabric, and straw. The face of each model typifies the period of the hairdress. Some are in wood, some in clay, and some in porcelain.

A glass staircase along one side of the little exhibition room leads to a narrow gallery above, where many pieces of Antoine's own sculpture are displayed Instead of railings the gallery is encased in wide bands of crystal in ruby red and topaz. All lighting is indirect. There is a guest book, signed by the famous who flock to this unique show, considered important from the art standpoint as well as that of beauty. Here and there about the rooms are huge crystal vases filled the year around with white calla lilies, the only flower Antoine permits in any rooms where he works or lives.

Antoine now believes in the elaborate artificial hair ornament for modern use—not the wig of old, made of human hair and artfully coiled to look like anything but a wig. Antoine believes that the hair ornamentations should almost be in the hat class—that women should wear them for effect, with deliberate emphasis on their picturesque artificiality. He has contrived hundreds of them—whims in human hair, raffia, and ribbon, many of them in color or gold and silver and most of them stiff and shiny. The idea is that women who make use of these can achieve almost any effect. Their own hair is kept at a suitable length to dramatize them. If one feels like looking Chinesey on a certain evening one simply claps on a Chinese ornament and smooths one's own hair back to suit. Or if it's the directoire influence a woman wants to stress she wears for a certain occasion a brightly lackered little headband and brushes her own hair over it in soft curls.

All fashion trends for the coming winter point to the elaborate, the rich, and the gorgeous. Simplicity in dress is threatened by the avalanche of bright colors, precious fabrics, elaborate jewels, and costume designs that emphasize the richly picturesque. Antoine feels that this same elaboration should extend to hair arrangements. And human hair in itself can only be adapted to fancifulness to a slight extent. He believes that we must look to artificial ornamentation to achieve the truly smart effect, with the hair arrangement taking second place in the whole head picture.

Some of his most interesting hair ornaments are in the modern manner—sleek bands of silver or gilt feathers that can be arranged to make a gleaming tiara, and even bands of metal that in themselves have no softness but rather the stark simplicity that is the chief motif of contemporary expression. It takes courage to wear these, and high style, but the woman who does will be stamped with chic after the French fashion.

Leilani and Frisco—Attractive Fruit Salads

By MARY MEADE

MEET sweet Leilani and Frisco Sal(ad). They are the two pretty platefuls pictured to the left and to the right respectively. Why the originator of these fruit salad arrangements should have named them thus isn't quite clear. But they are attractive, aren't they?

A whole banana, a dozen melon balls, a sprig or two of watercress, and a few leaves of chicory form the first combination. Fluted banana slices cut diagonally, a handful of red raspberries, two half slices of pineapple, and a green-leafy garnish make up the second. The latter was photographed on a raffia place mat which sets off its simple formation and color scheme.

NEXT WEEK: Fresh vegetables as health and beauty givers.

What's New in World of Air Transportation

Evolution of Autogiro Continues

By WAYNE THOMIS

ALTHOUGH no autogiros are being manufactured for commercial flying anywhere in the world today, the development of this strange air vehicle has not waned. Instead engineers most familiar with the peculiar problems of the craft are steadily and quietly plugging away to perfect the machine and develop what may well be the ultimate foolproof airplane that will enable every one to fly safely.

At the moment the engineers are concentrating on four problems, to wit:

1. A direct jump takeoff which will eliminate a forward run.
2. Direct control of the rotor blades, obviating necessity for ailerons, rudder, or elevators to steer the airplane.
3. Streamlining, which will enable autogiros to approach cruising and top speeds of conventional airplanes of equivalent power.
4. Development of "roadability"—the arrangement of a gearbox which will permit the giro's motor to drive its landing gear wheels, so it may be handled along highways like an automobile as well as flown.

A moment's reflection will convince the reader that any one of these four problems is a man-sized job in itself. As a matter of fact, however, the first two are pretty well solved. Giros already are making jump takeoffs to heights ranging from six to twenty feet, and all the giros now flying are equipped with the so-called direct controls.

Landing of one of the Kellett giros on the postoffice roof in downtown Philadelphia. The pilot carried with him a small bag of mail brought from the commercial air field at Camden to deliver to Postmaster General Farley.

Both these improvements need refinement. This requires time, expenditure of funds, and considerable experimental flying. The development of the autogiro received a severe setback last Dec. 9 when Juan de la Cierva, inventor of the windmill machines, was killed.

These are the reasons for the seeming departure of the autogiro from the aviation scene.

But Cierva's closest associates at the A. V. Roe factory in England are pooling their knowledge with engineers from the Pitcairn and the Kellett autogiro factories in Philadelphia, the two producers of giros in this country. They are working in England at this time, and they plan to continue their efforts until they have produced an air vehicle which answers all the questions hitherto raised against these machines.

One indication that the day of the autogiro has not passed may be seen in the army air corps' order for six machines from the Kellett factory. The order was placed last March 3, and in the communique which accompanied public announcement of the order it was asserted that the machines would be used for staf transportation, artillery spotting, and coöperation with cavalry, infantry, and mechanized units.

These machines, now being delivered, are powered with Jacobs L-4 engines developing 225 horsepower at 2,000 r.p.m., cruise at 103, have a top speed of 125, and a minimum flying speed of 16 miles an hour. All of these machines will have the new jump takeoff feature.

Another indication that the possibilities for operation of these flying machines from cramped quarters has not been overlooked is the suggestion contained in a favorable report of the house of representatives postoffice and post roads committee that giros be used to transport mail directly from postoffices in large cities to airports, where commercial air lines can pick it up.

Pilot Louis Levy not long ago landed a Kellett giro very similar to those purchased by the army on the postoffice roof in downtown Philadelphia and delivered mail brought from the airport directly into the hands of Postmaster General Farley.

In Germany, France, Italy, and Russia experiments with autogiros are being conducted. Reproduced herewith are photographs of the French Breguet giroplane which won a prize given by the air ministry. The machine hovered in a circle with a 30-foot radius for half an hour or more and then flew at 60 miles an hour over a straight course. It was powered, however, by a 350-horsepower motor, and the speed of the giroplane is exceedingly slow compared to that of a conventional plane with like power.

Another of the photographs reprinted on this page shows a German autogiro with twin rotors. It was designed by Prof. Heinrich Focke and flight-tested only a short time ago at Bremen airport. The machine flew successfully and hovered almost motionless during part of the flight. The German government, it is understood, is interested in this strange appearing machine.

At this stage of the game these unrelated efforts may seem to be inconsequential. Nevertheless the autogiro is being perfected and soon—within the next three years at least—it again will be on the market. Only this time it will have no queer faults to cause its enthusiastic backers to lose faith in it.

Collusion or Reno!

N. Y. Divorce Laws Breed Perjurers

months after the third wedding. Annulment granted.

Justice Close wasn't embarrassed by his decision, however, as was Official Referee John Ford who gave Simon Braunstone his annulment decree. This was one of the most ludicrous cases in the history of the New York courts.

Elizabeth Braunstone, daughter of the 71 year old Agnes Murphy Mulligan, New Jersey real estate dealer and first woman graduate of the New York university law school, was a pupil in a Brooklyn school in which Braunstone was an instructor. They eloped to Armonk on July 11, 1936. Four months later Braunstone won an annulment on a plea that "my wife has refused to live with me."

Subsequently, Elizabeth went into court demanding that the annulment proceedings be reopened and she be granted alimony because she was to become the mother of Braunstone's child. Justice Aaron J. Levy essayed the role of cupid and a reconciliation was effected.

Annulment took a new form when Rose Collins, a showgirl who sang "torch" songs, married Michael Cleary, a West Point graduate who wrote them. In a few months they parted. Rose came into court pleading for an annulment on the grounds that her husband, the author of "I Fell in Love While Dancing" and "Singing in a Bathtub," had failed to keep his promises to write a musical comedy for her and make her a star if she married him. Justice Bernard L. Shientag annulled the marriage.

With a tidal wave of trick annulments and fraudulent divorces sweeping through the courts, a novel scheme has been proposed by Referee Joseph Morschauser. He would have a "defender of the marriage bond," an assistant district attorney, sitting in on each case and acting in somewhat the same manner as the king's proctor in England. If evidences of fraud or collusion were discovered the applicants would not only be denied decrees but they would face trial for perjury.

On the other hand there are the forces that would loosen up the law rather than stiffen it. They are headed by one Theodore E. Apstein, secretary of the National Divorce Reform league and a well known authority on divorce law, who annually attempts to thaw out the legislature on the subject. Morschauser and Apstein to the contrary, New York citizens will probably struggle with the ancient law for some time to come. Some of the more outstanding of the divorce experiences of prominent or notorious New Yorkers are reviewed in the paragraphs following:

1. Mrs. Mary Arnold Childs Crocker Lewisohn was married to Ludwig Lewisohn, the author, in 1906 and they have been scrapping much of the time ever since. He obtained a Mexican divorce decree in 1935 and married Thelma Bowman Spear. Mrs. Lewisohn refused to recognize it until he agreed to bury "The Case of Mrs. Crump," a novel in which the principal character explained frankly why he couldn't get along with his wife. A new suit filed in Reno is the result of his acquiescence.

2. Mrs. Madeleine Talmage Force Astor Dick Fiermonte was widowed by the death of Col. John Jacob Astor who was drowned when the Titanic went down. She married William K. Dick in 1918 and went to Reno for her divorce in 1933. Then she married Enzo Fiermonte, Italian pugilist and race track driver. Enzo recently spent five days in a New York jail on an old speeding charge.

3. The career of Mrs. Lucy Cotton Thomas Ament Hann Magraw runs somewhat parallel to that of Mrs. M. T. F. A. D. F. Lucy, of the show "Up in Mabel's Room," widow of the late publisher of the New York Morning Telegraph, married Lyton Ament in 1927. A Reno divorce followed in 1930. She then married Lieut. Commander Charles Hann in 1931 and divorced him the next year. Next she went to the altar with William M. Magraw, sprinkler magnate. For a time she promoted the stock of Steve Hamas, a prize fighter. It was proposed that Mrs. Fiermonte's Enzo be matched against Mrs. Magraw's Steve but nothing ever came of it.

4. Reno has been the most popular spot for discarding Mdivanis, the much married Georgian princes. Barbara Hutton, granddaughter of F. W. Woolworth, chain store millionaire, chose Reno rather than New York as the place for casting off Alexis Mdivani prior to her nuptials with Count Kurt von Haugwitz-Reventlow. The decree was granted on grounds of cruelty and would have been unobtainable in New York.

(Associated Press photos.)

The late Frank Hart and Muriel Constance Woodworth whom he married the day he got a Reno divorce from Marion Alexander Hart. The courts later established Hart's first wife as his legal spouse.

5. Members of the fabulous Vanderbilt family have tripped off to Reno when occasion demanded. Consuelo and Muriel Vanderbilt, fifth in line from the fierce old Commodore who founded the clan, both sojourned in Reno, the former to divorce Earl E. T. Smith and the latter to part from Henry Delafield Phelps.

6. Millicent Rogers, daughter of an oil millionaire, spread her divorces around. She divorced Arturo De Pernalta-Ramos, Argentine playboy, in Reno last December and married Ronald Balcom, New York broker, three days later. Her first husband was Count Ludwig Salm von Hoogstraeten from whom she obtained an uncontested divorce in Paris in 1927.

7. Evelyn Wilson, the dazzling dancer of the "Scandals," went to bat on the home grounds in New York and scored with an undefended divorce from Eugene Clayton Corum, theatrical manager. She charged he kept a tryst with an unnamed woman at a Jersey City hotel.

8. Rudy Vallee, the supercrooner, has flitted in and out of the New York divorce courts. His former wife, the late Fay Webb, in a series of sensational suits, sought to keep Rudy from suing outside of New York state. On one courtroom appearance Rudy took a swing at his wife's attorney and missed. Finally a settlement was reached and Fay was granted a divorce in Los Angeles because Rudy had caused her "much physical and mental agony."

9. Mrs. Elsie Lefferts had been the wife of Julius Oppenheimer, New York diamond dealer, for fifteen years when she became enamored of Henry M. Lefferts and trotted off to Reno. Lefferts married Elsie and soon after went into the army during the World war. Twelve years later he refused to pay one of her charge accounts on the grounds that her Reno divorce was not legal. The courts upheld him.

10. Geoffrey Bonnell, war time aviator and broker, suffered the misfortune of having his Mexican divorce from his first wife, Florence, declared invalid by the New York courts several years after he had taken a second wife, Dorothy Stuart Fargo (divorced wife of Jimmy Fargo, grandson of the express magnate). Bonnell and his second spouse moved to Connecticut to avoid the stigma of living in free love in New York. Then Florence's ardor cooled and she asked an annulment. It was granted.

11. Frank Hart, wealthy oil operator, went to Reno for a divorce in 1935 from Marion Alexander Hart, neglecting to see that she was served with papers. On the day of his divorce he married Muriel Constance Woodworth and with equal speed remade his will, dividing his estate into four parts, one for the new Mrs. Hart and one part each for the three children by his first wife. He was killed in a plane crash and the first Mrs. Hart then persuaded the courts to establish her as his legal widow. Thus she became entitled to dower rights and one-third of his fortune.

12. Mrs. Barbara Smith Loew, model, showgirl and wife of Arthur M. Loew, first vice president of Loew's, Inc., which controls Metro - Goldwyn - Mayer, sued first for a legal separation and $3,000 a month alimony at White Plains, N. Y. She charged "cruel and inhuman conduct," backing up her accusations by affidavits describing scenes at drinking parties. When her husband showed fight she transferred her attack to Reno, where she obtained a divorce last year. The terms of the settlement were not made public.

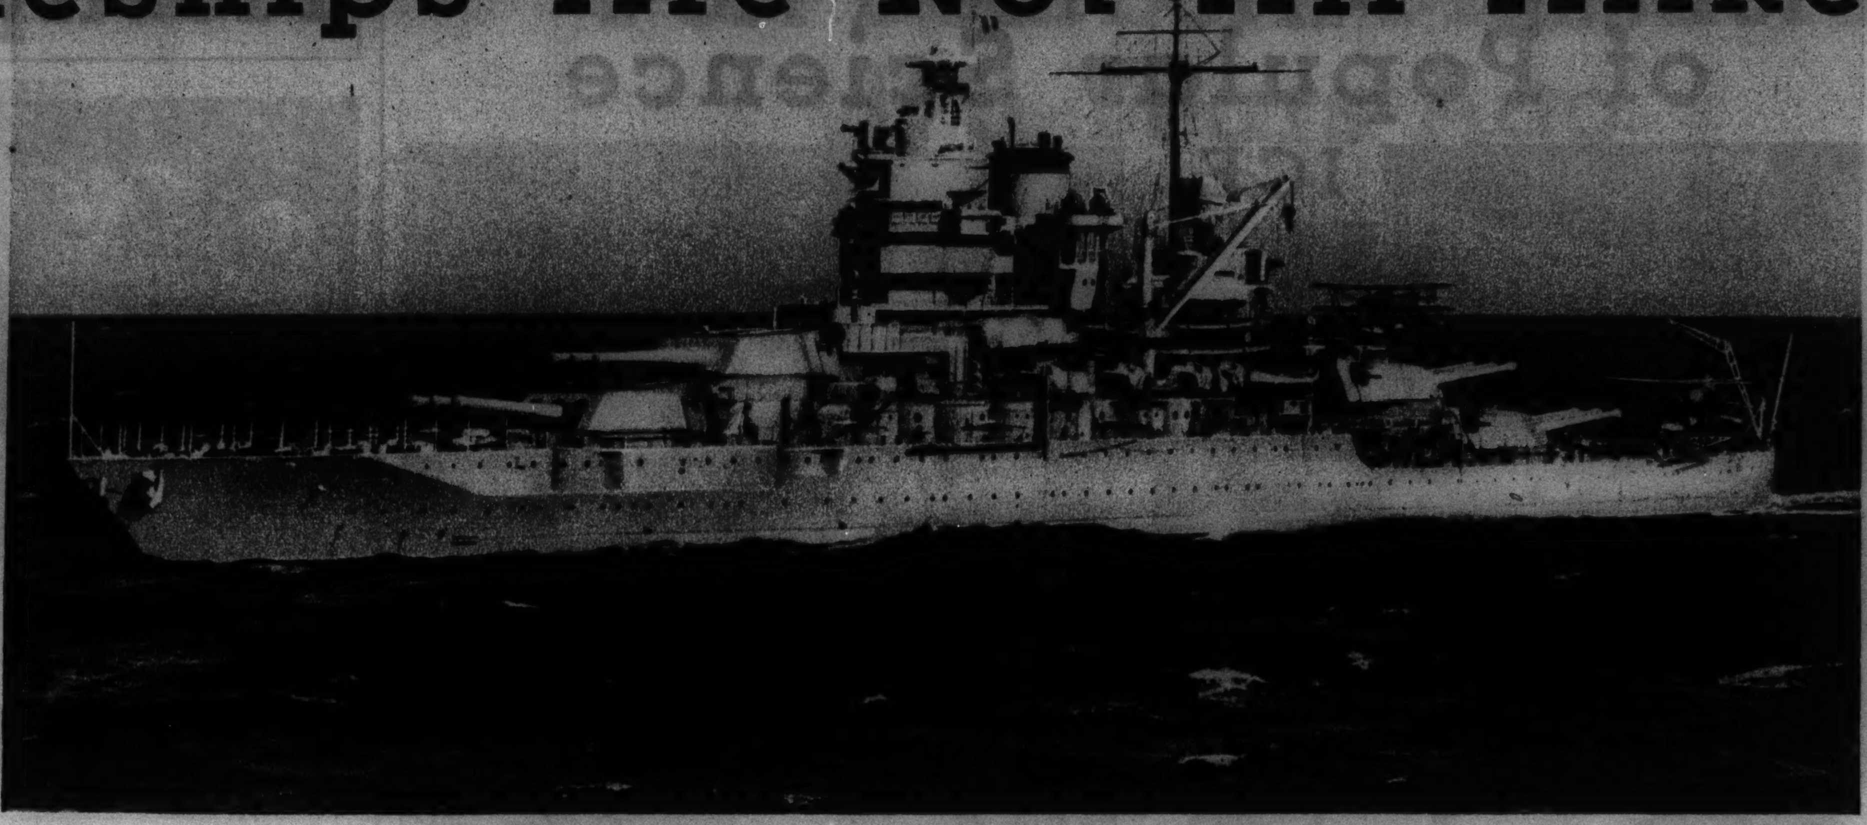
13. Hannah Williams, Broadway musical star, now happily married to Jack Dempsey, received a Reno divorce from Roger Wolff Kahn, son of Otto H. Kahn, the banker, in April of 1935. She charged cruelty. Dempsey was the divorced husband of Estelle Taylor, the film actress.

14. Mrs. Elizabeth Orloff sought a divorce in the New York courts from Vladimir Orloff, former Russian army officer and now head of a physical culture school. Her witnesses testified that they found the muscular Orloff entertaining a pajama-clad "society girl" in his apartment.

15. Mary Anne King, daughter of Mrs. Ida French King of Manhattan and Chattanooga, sought an annulment on a charge that Robert Evelyn Greenway led her to the altar after falsely posing as the son of Mrs. Isabella S. Greenway, Arizona congresswoman and a bosom companion of Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Why Battleships Are Not All Alike

Experiments Call for Changes in Design



This is the U. S. S. Idaho at sea. It is a modern battleship with the latest type of bow, designed to deflect the spray from the ship's decks and below water to offer as little resistance to the ship's forward motion as possible. Its conning tower practically does away with masts. (Tribune photos.)

DON'T you often wonder what all that junk on a battleship is for? And why it seems to be different on almost every warship—and why some ships have vertical bows and some leaning bows—and some have masts that look like tall baskets and some scarcely any masts at all?

Well, here is your answer—at least an answer to some of the more common questions about how and why fighting ships are put together so.

First take the actual hull of the ship, which is made of steel plates. In the case of a modern battleship, which is virtually unsinkable, the plates are about a foot thick along the sides of the vessel from just above the waterline downward, but tapering to only an inch or two of thickness at the bow and stern (which are not vital points), and at the keel, which is in a well protected position.

The thick sections of plate are strong enough to withstand torpedoes and shells exploding against them almost indefinitly and are further protected by a "blister," or outer compartment, consisting of an inch-thick wall of steel constructed outside the hull in such a way as to leave an empty space three feet thick between it and the main armor. Torpedoes exploding against the "blister" leave the real hull untouched and do little damage other than tearing a hole in the easily repaired "blister." Likewise a torpedo, mine, or shell exploding against the relatively thin plates near the bow and stern could produce only minor damage, for strong partitions and water-tight doors strategically placed throughout the vessel make it a simple matter to isolate any portion of the ship which may have sprung a large leak.

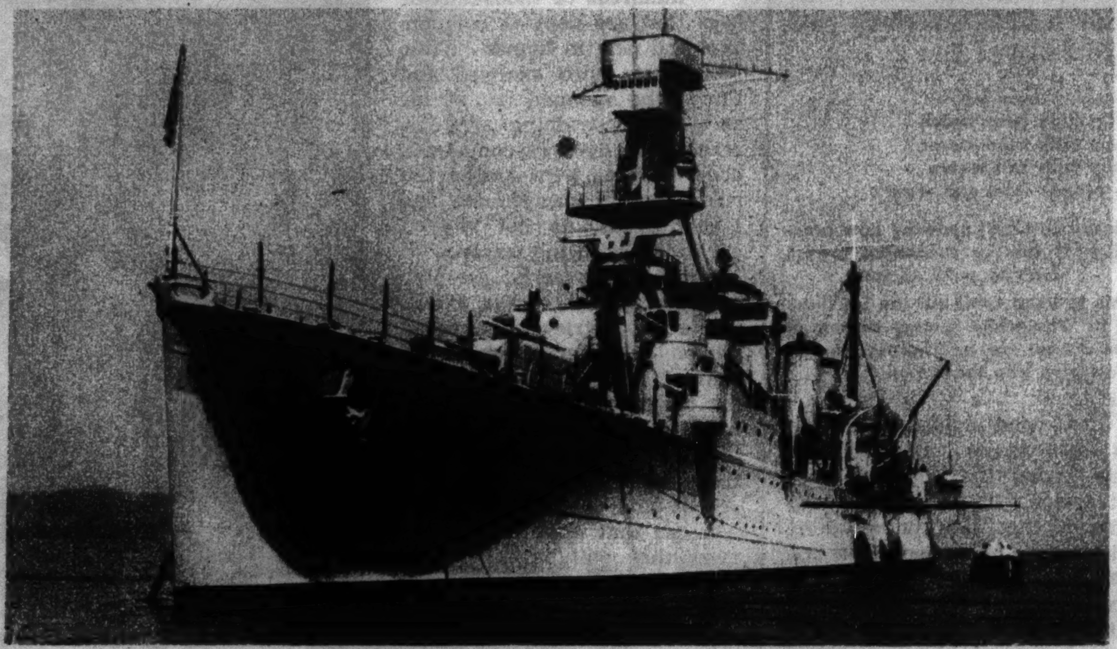
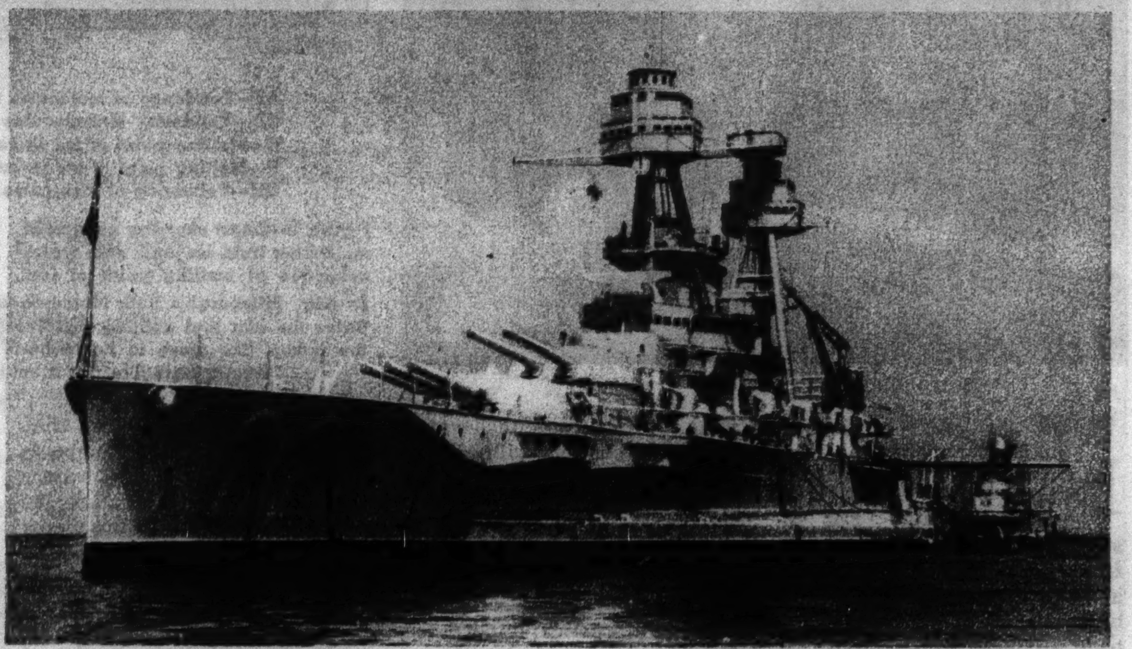
As for the shapes of warships' bows, several kinds have been tried out with a view to increasing the speed and efficiency of the ships. The later types have been developed after exhaustive experiments in a testing tank, using ship models a few feet long and carefully checking the effect of different shapes of bow and hull not only in calm water but in every type of wave formation found in the real ocean.

The so-called clipper bow is the style now being generally adopted by the navy. The portion above water leans forward wedge shaped, and the portion below water also extends forward in a rounded spheroidal shape, giving the whole somewhat the effect of a plow. The submerged spheroidal part has the virtue of being streamlined to the maximum degree, while the upper part has the virtue of diverting the spray in a heavy sea from descending in full force upon the deck. The old "rammer" type of bow, with its nearly vertical upper portion, allowed the seas to rain so heavily upon the deck that the seamen were often hampered in their work.

Coming to the subject of masts, the oldest type of battleship mast still in use is the cage mast, which presents a sort of wickerwork or basketlike appearance. This originated in the old days when ships fired solid shot, for it would withstand this kind of projectile remarkably well. In 1927, however, the tripod mast was introduced as having greater resistance to explosive shell fire. In this type, in which the lookout and fire control stations are supported by three stout supports, any two of the upright supports may be shot away and the remaining one will continue to hold up everything unassisted.

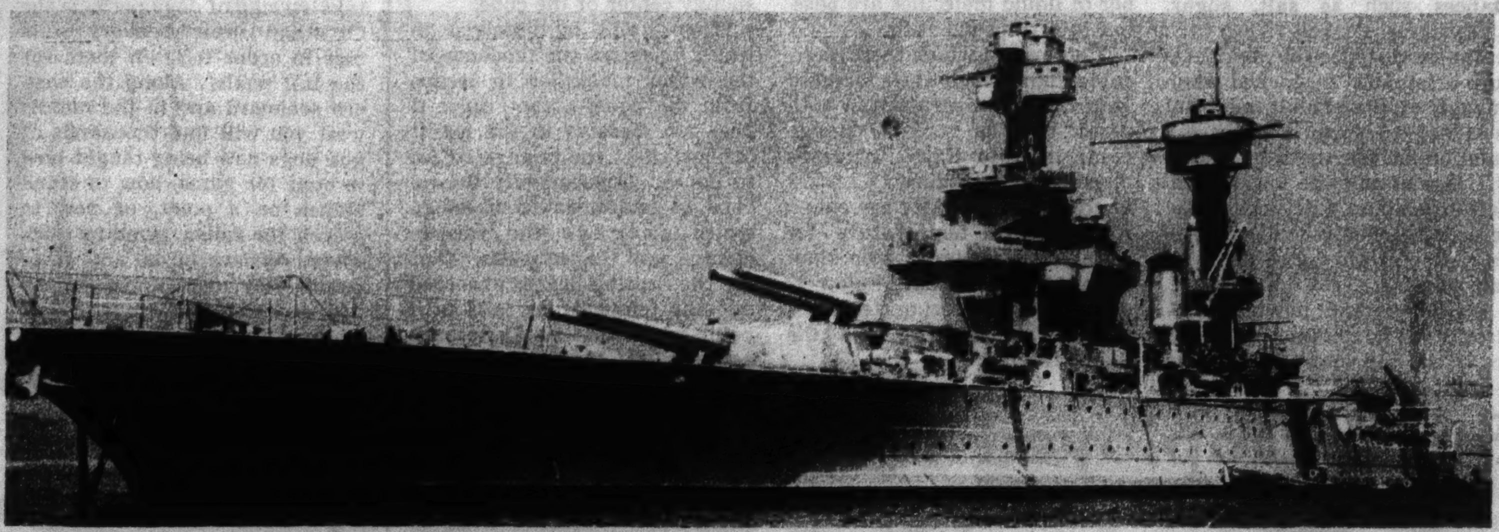


Here is the U. S. S. Marblehead, a light cruiser, at anchor in San Francisco harbor. It is of 1924 vintage. Its biggest guns are ten of 6-inch bore. It also has two 21-inch triple torpedo mounts.



The U. S. S. Nevada is a battleship built in 1916, which has since had her cage masts replaced by the tripod masts shown. Her bow remains of the old "rammer" type, which is not so good at keeping spray off the deck.

Recently the idea of having no mast at all has come into favor, with the result that the latest warships have a built-up bridge and fire control station, a structure known as a conning tower, though they generally have a light mast aft merely for the purpose of supporting radio antennæ and signal flags. The conning tower, of course, does not extend as high as a mast, but height is becoming less important in these days of airplanes, for now the airplane is the lookout station for all large ships of war, and air observation of gunfire effect on the target is so superior that there is no need of building masts for the purpose. Warships still check on each other's firing, as formerly, and that is the purpose of the large dial that looks like a clock and is placed in a high and prominent position, facing both fore and aft, on all battleships. The dial has ten numbers, each representing a thousand yards in range when pointed at by the short hand and 100 yards when pointed at by the long hand. Thus each ship can easily signal to ships ahead of it and behind it that it is firing at a range of, say, 8,300 yards, by turning the short hand to 8 and the long to 3.



This is the U. S. S. West Virginia, anchored in San Francisco bay. Although she retains the old cage masts (left over from the days of solid shot), her bow is more modern and her turrets of two 16-inch guns each are of an improved type, as the accompanying article explains.

As to guns, battleships have their larger ones arranged in turrets, generally two main turrets fore and two aft, one set above and behind the other. In former years three big guns were usually placed side by side in a single turret and designed to fire simultaneously, but recently the number has been reduced to two in the case of 16-inch guns, with the result that some ships have three-gun turrets, some two, and some mixed combinations due to the guns being of different calibers.

The reason for reducing the number of guns per turret is that the guns are found to fire more accurately if placed farther apart than is possible with three 16-inch guns in a turret. Two or more projectiles traveling through the air on parallel courses only a few feet apart affect each other considerably, the more so as the distance between them is decreased. When one gets a little ahead, its wake, being a partial vacuum, enables another to speed up until it passes it, whence the process is reversed, causing a seesawing motion as first one and then the other gets ahead. But this generally results in deflecting both shells from their proper course somewhat, and is avoided by removing the middle gun from the old three-gun turret.

Smaller guns on warships are used in firing at shorter range, and there are numerous anti-aircraft and machine guns placed about the upper decks for defensive fire against attacking aircraft. The function of the seaplanes seen upon the decks, and which can be catapulted into the air on short notice, to be picked up from the sea later by special cranes, is too obvious for further mention.

The top cruising speed of most of the battleships on this page is around 20 knots, but new superdreadnaughts now being built will be able to go nearly 30 knots, which is the speed of the aircraft carrier Lexington. Speed is extremely important to an aircraft carrier, because the takeoff and landing speed of its planes is reduced by exactly as many miles an hour as the ship is moving. At the takeoff and at the landing ship and planes both always move directly into the wind.

ICE

Frozen from ocean water, nevertheless this iceberg contains no salt, for salt does not dissolve in ice.

CD—Tendency of molecules to escape from water.
E—Melting point of ice in contact with pure water.
F—Melting point of ice in contact with salt water.
GH—Tendency of molecules to escape from salt water.

At left: Pittsburgh's Ruth Morse does this to keep cool, but the ice illustrates the fact that nothing dissolves in it. The white spongy centers of the cakes, like those in home-made ice cubes, are air trapped by the final freezing before it could dissolve into the water.

By DR. THOMAS M. BECK

NOT all kinds of ice are pleasant to think about these days. For instance, there is one variety of frozen water that can be made as hot as boiling water. No one has ever seen it, although it has been produced by scientists. It forms when water is subjected to extremely high pressures.

This sounds paradoxical, since it is a well known fact that the melting point of ice is lowered when pressure is applied.

This decline of melting point with increasing pressure continues until the pressure reaches about 2,000 atmospheres. There ice melts at 5 degrees below zero. Then as the pressure increases the melting point starts to rise. Eventually a melting point of 212 degrees is reached, somewhere in the neighborhood of 30,000 atmospheres.

This high-melting ice, although it is still solidified water, is of a different crystaline structure than icebox ice. It never is seen, because when its container is opened the release of pressure causes it to melt, or, if the temperature is low enough, to change to ordinary ice.

Of more practical importance, however, is the depression of the melting point of ice by the presence of water-soluble substances such as salt, sugar, glycerin, or alcohol.

The lowest possible temperature attainable is reached when enough of the soluble material is added to form a saturated solution in the melted ice. In the case of salt the lowest temperature, about 6 degrees below zero, is reached when the ice is in contact with a 23.5 per cent salt solution.

To understand how salt, although without direct effect on ice itself, can lower its melting point, we must remember that 32 degrees is not the temperature of ice, but of ice water; that is, the temperature at which the solid and liquid forms can exist together. Although the two forms in contact with each other may not appear to change at this temperature, actually some of the molecules of the ice are passing into the liquid state, and an equal number of liquid molecules are passing into the solid form.

The rates at which these molecules change their state increase with rising temperature in both cases, but the rate of change from solid to liquid increases more rapidly (Figure 1). At 32 degrees the two rates are equal. Above this temperature ice changes to water faster than water changes to ice. Below 32 degrees the freezing tendency exceeds the melting and the liquid freezes.

Now, what happens when salt is added to ice water? Everyone knows that salt dissolves in water. It is not so well known that salt, or anything else, does not dissolve in ice. Icebergs contain no salt. When ice cubes freeze in the refrigerator the dissolved air is expelled when the last portion of the water freezes, and the trapped bubbles form the white, spongy center of the cube.

When salt is dissolved in water it lessens the tendency of the water molecules to escape from the liquid state. Since it does not dissolve in the ice, it cannot affect the change of ice to liquid. Consequently the escape of molecules from ice to water exceeds the reverse change, and the ice melts. During the melting heat is absorbed and the temperature falls to a point where the two rates are again equal (Figure 2).

Stills Employed to Purify Metals

1 Invented by the Arabs about a thousand years ago, the still has come down through the ages as a useful and sometimes lawless device. Inasmuch as alcohol and gasoline are its two commonest products, most people naturally think the still can be used only to purify volatile organic liquids. The moonshine still above and the huge commercial petroleum refinery at right are divergent yet basically similar developments of the Arabic device. Chief addition has been the fractionating column, a vertical tube in which ascending vapor is gradually cooled so that compounds of different volatility can be condensed in different places.

School Days Near for Hunters

Smokey has just retrieved the dummy and is waiting for the trainer, Martin Hogan, to take it. The spaniels, retrievers, and most of the setters and pointers are taught to retrieve fallen game in this country.

THE changing seasons do not mean a great deal to hundreds of thousands of dogs that are kept as companions and pets in homes. True, many get more exercise and fun in the summer, but so far as work or training are concerned the lives of companion dogs, such as wire-haired terriers, Scotties, dachshunde, and other breeds, do not vary a great deal with the seasons.

But for the setter, pointer, springer spaniel, cocker, Chesapeake Bay retriever, Labrador, golden retriever, Irish water spaniel, and other breeds used by the sportsman, late summer and early autumn often mean "school." It's time for these dogs to be in a training school and practice their lessons, so that when October arrives they will be able to go afield and help their masters in hunting game. Many thousands of sporting dogs also go through a training routine in preparation for field trials. In fact, there are trainers of pointing breeds that take strings of dogs north to the Canadian prairies every summer in order to train them for the fall trials. Along the eastern seaboard and in the middle west you will find thousands of gun dogs now being taught how to hunt for game, how to stand stanch on a point, or how to search for fallen game in thick cover, retrieve birds, and other points they must know if they are going to be smart, alert workers in the field.

Not many people appreciate the amount of work behind the good performance of a setter, pointer, spaniel, or retriever. Even a dog with a tremendous amount of natural ability, zest for hunting, keen nose, and tractable disposition has to be trained day after day and week after week to give it the perfection of performance that the hunter or field trial enthusiast wants and needs.

If you have a hunting dog and you use him in the field while hunting it will pay you to have him trained. To attempt to use such a dog without training is just an aggravation, because a dog, no matter how intelligent, must have direction if it is to give anywhere near a perfect performance. The corner stone of all the dog's work is obedience. Nothing is so annoying as to work behind a dog that hunts to please itself, ignoring spoken commands and the whistle, running ahead scaring the game, and never coming in when told. That isn't good dog work, and it doesn't make for pleasant or efficient hunting. A course of training under a good man teaches that dog to respect a command and to hunt for the gun and not for itself.

Inasmuch as we enjoy hunting, have hunted over just about every kind of sporting breed, and get a real thrill out of smart dog work, we always urge owners of gun dogs to have them trained for their personal use and also to run them in field trials. Running dogs in field trials is a fast-growing sport in which even the ladies now take part. This is especially true of the spaniel and retriever trials. These trials are intimate in character, give the spectators good chances to see the dogs work because the dogs do not range very far from the gallery, and more nearly approximate average hunting conditions. The wide-going setters and pointers, always staging top-notch shows with their tremendous speed and range, make it necessary for one to follow them on a horse to see everything going on.

Whatever the cost or the trouble of training a dog for hunting, we can assure any owner that it is worth it when October days come, because there is no bond between man and dog quite as close or as distinctive as that between the hunter and his dog. Such a dog is more of a partner than a canine aid in hunting—so much so that a hunt is not complete without it.

White as the snows in the land where it originated is the Samoyede, a working breed of much appeal and beauty. Here is a handsome Samoyede that has won its bench championship—Dobrynia, owned by the Very Rev. Msgr. Robert F. Keegan of New York City.

DOG NOTES

The setter breeders have something to talk about this summer since Champion Sturdy Max, a beautiful English setter, won best in show at Morris and Essex. We wonder when and if the entry for this show will be topped next year. A total of 4,104 dogs in one show is the largest ever recorded in America.

It's surprising how many troubles may be ascribed to the fact that the dog either is spoiled or has had practically no training. For example, consider the dog that always has been taken with the family when it has gone out. It never has been left alone anywhere or any time. Result: it howls the first time left alone. If the dog had been trained to go to a place and stay there alone it would not howl and be such a nuisance.

Dogs that jump on people, that refuse to come when called, that run away when they are let out, that bark when left alone, and generally refuse to do what they are told, are dogs that have not been taught obedence.

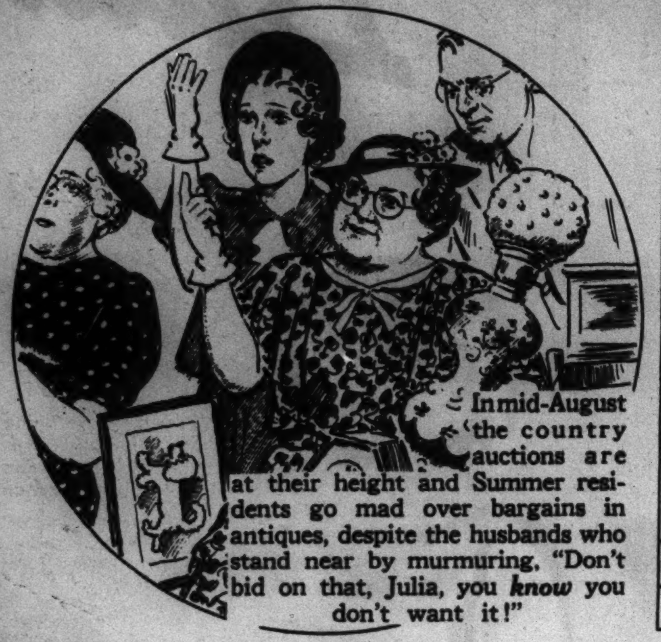
MID-SUMMER MADNESS

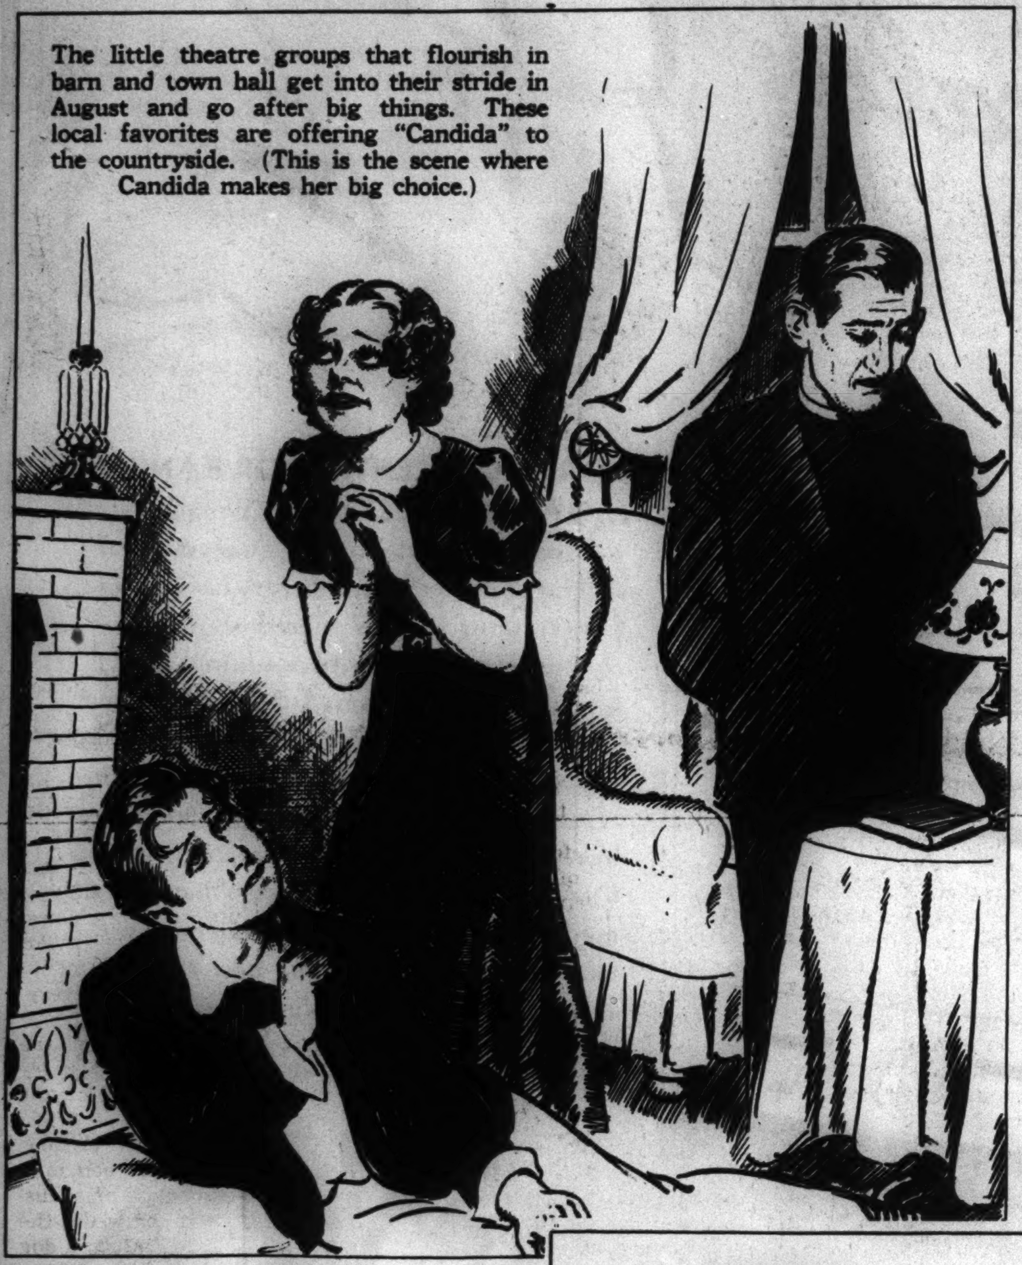
By W. E. Hill

Copyright, 1937, by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Syndicate, Inc.

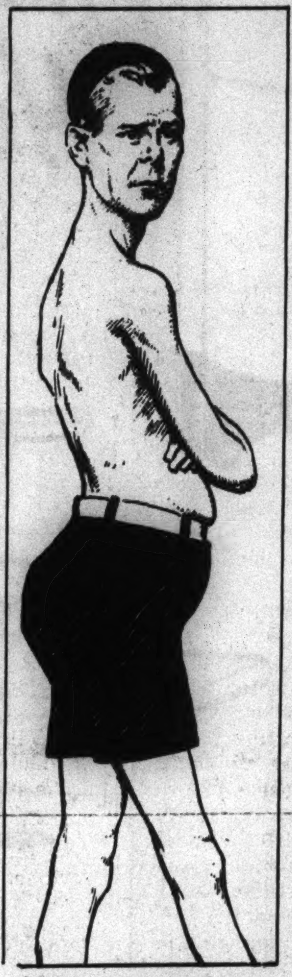


In mid-August the country auctions are at their height and Summer residents go mad over bargains in antiques, despite the husbands who stand near by murmuring, "Don't bid on that, Julia, you know you don't want it!"

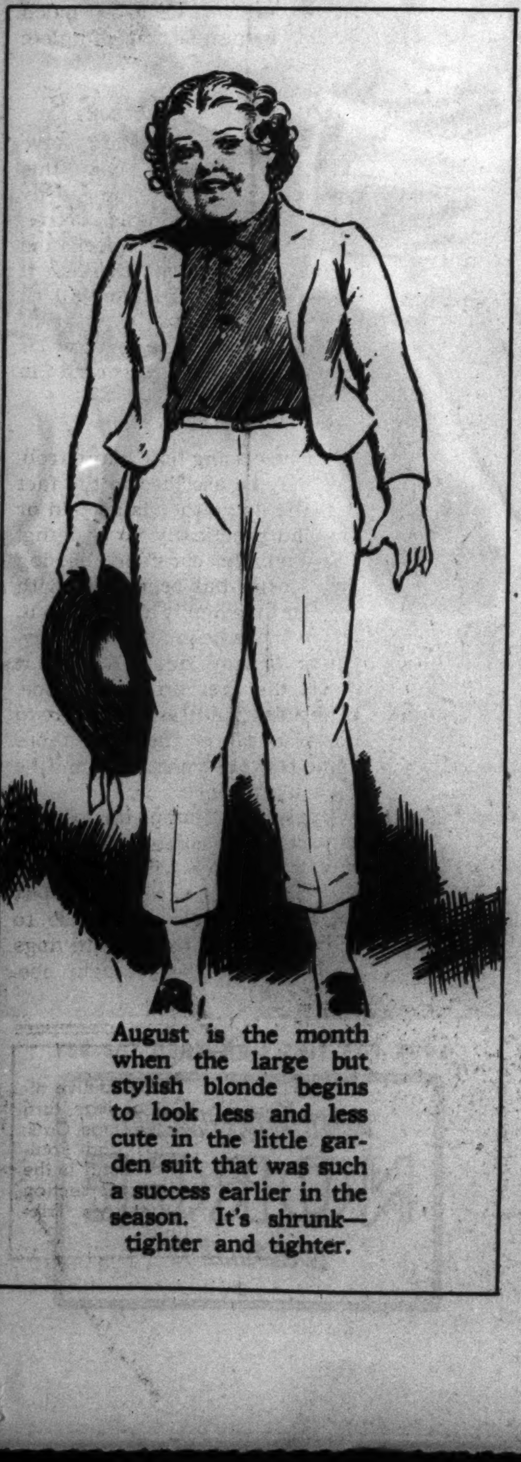
The hay fever addict who walked through the field of goldenrod and brought on the old trouble.



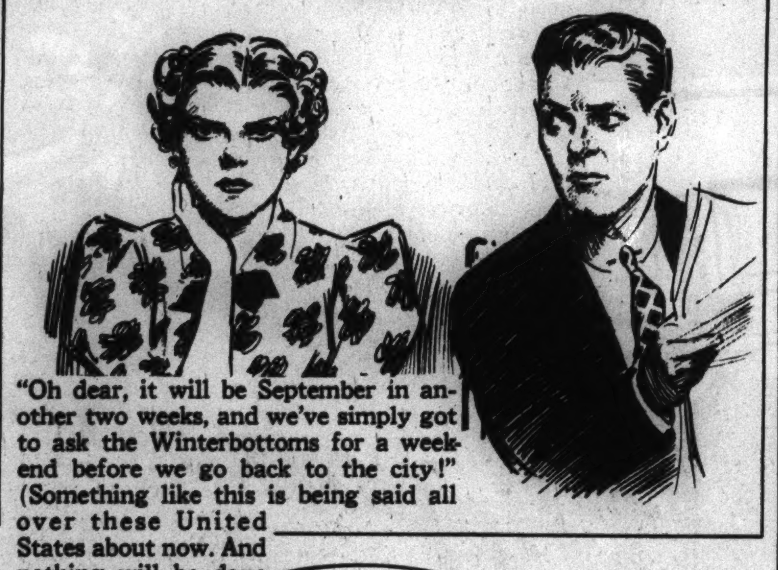
The little theatre groups that flourish in barn and town hall get into their stride in August and go after big things. These local favorites are offering "Candida" to the countryside. (This is the scene where Candida makes her big choice.)



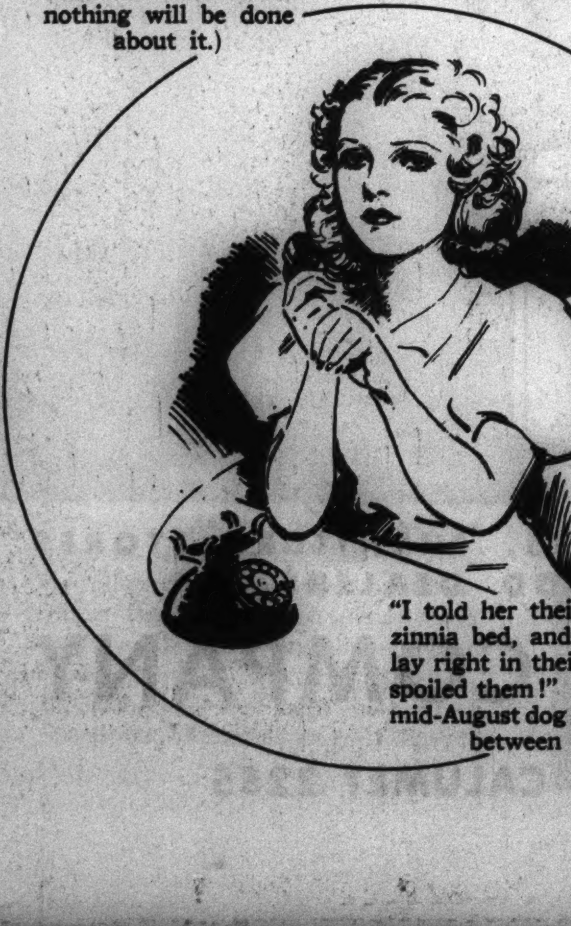
Along toward the middle of August, the beach boys who weren't so sure of their appearance in June, lose all feeling of self-consciousness and pose around like anything.



August is the month when the large but stylish blonde begins to look less and less cute in the little garden suit that was such a success earlier in the season. It's shrunk—tighter and tighter.

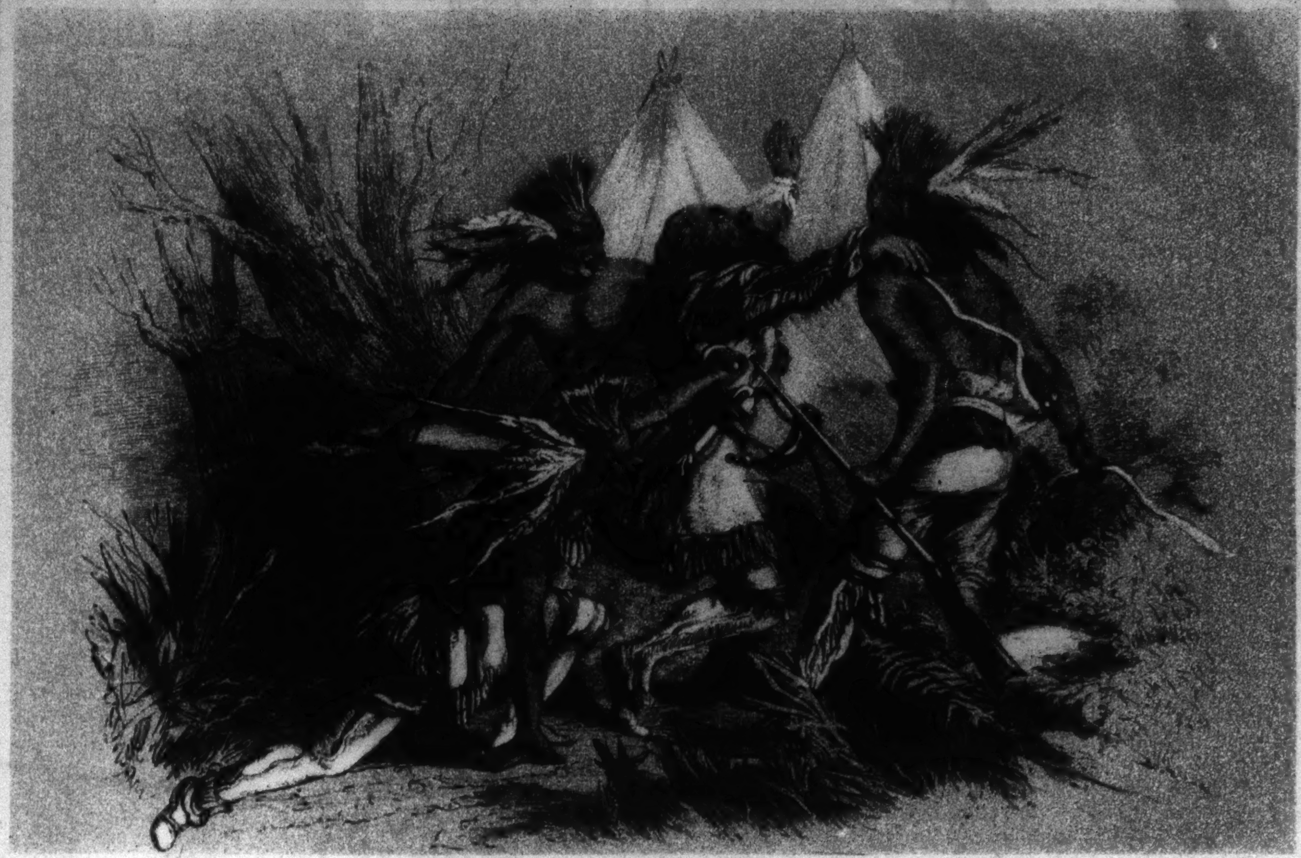


"Oh dear, it will be September in another two weeks, and we've simply got to ask the Winterbottoms for a week-end before we go back to the city!" (Something like this is being said all over these United States about now. And nothing will be done about it.)



"I told her their dog dug up our zinnia bed, and she says our cat lay right in their nasturtiums and spoiled them!" (Just one of those mid-August dog and cat complaints between neighbors.)

Fort Dearborn Massacre 125 Years Ago



(Reproduced by courtesy Chicago Historical society.)

A hand-to-hand battle of the Fort Dearborn massacre, as drawn by an early artist.

First Great Tragedy of Chicago

THIS very day 125 years ago was one of the darkest in the whole history of Chicago. Considering what occurred on Aug. 15, 1812, it is to the credit mainly of the courage and perseverance of the American pioneering spirit that a great and marvelous city has risen.

Past the historic spot now speed swift electric trains bearing peace-loving citizens. The noises of commerce and industry now echo and reëcho about the site where once flintlock muskets hurled death, where women and children shrieked amidst a scene of butchery.

The Fort Dearborn massacre was not an unavoidable tragedy, if we are to believe historians. Capt. Nathan Heald, who commanded the garrison of the little log stockade on the south bank of the Chicago river about a half mile from its mouth, could have stood a siege.

Gen. William Hull's order to Heald, brought to the fort on Aug. 9 by Winnemeg, a friendly Potawatami chief, told the captain to "evacuate the post if practicable, and in that event to distribute the property belonging to the United States in the fort, and in the factory or agency, to the Indians in the neighborhood."

Heald, with ammunition and supplies to last six months, was warned by John Kinzie, who resided near the fort, and by others, of the treachery of the Indians, but he went ahead with his plans to abandon the stockade. Instead of distributing excess arms and ammunition among the savages, as he was advised to do in Hull's order, he had them destroyed in an effort to keep the Indians from becoming more formidable than they were. This act fanned the fire of hatred in the breasts of the savages.

Although officers and men of the garrison were aware that the Indians were in a sullen mood, they marched out of the fort at 9 o'clock on the morning of Aug. 15, heading southward along the shore of Lake Michigan. Indians to the number of about 500 escorted them, moving parallel with the retreating whites along the ridge of sand that lay a few hundred feet from the lake. There were fifty-four regular soldiers in the group and between ten and fifteen civilians who had been enrolled as militiamen. In addition there were the officers, Captain Heald, Lieut. Linai T. Helm, and Ensign George Ronan, and the garrison physician, Dr. Van Voorhees. Accompanying the retreating band were wives and children of the officers and civilians. Kinzie had dispatched his family toward St. Joseph, Mich., in a boat.

The retreat moved slowly along the lake shore, the savages, mostly Potawatamis, keeping abreast of the soldiers. The garrison band struck up the Dead March from "Saul." A Captain Wells, a relative of Mrs. Heald, who had been living among the Indians, joined the group with a party of friendly Miamis. Wells' face was painted black in the Indian manner. He knew what was about to happen.

When the retreat reached a point along the lake somewhere between what are now 18th and 22d streets the Indians began firing. The battle raged for about fifteen minutes, the whites putting up a desperate fight as they were being shot down one after another. Finally Heald surrendered, the uninjured of his command having been promised their lives. But in the terms decided on there was no protection for the wounded. Many of these the Indians killed shortly after the fight. According to the most reliable authority there were slain twenty-six regular soldiers, twelve civilians, two women, and twelve children. Wells, Ronan, and Van Voorhees also lost their lives. The Indians lost about fifteen. Most of the survivors finally found their way back to friends in the east. The fort was burned by the Indians the day after the massacre. It was not rebuilt until four years later.
